REPORT THAT CLOSURE IS TO BE ADOPTED IN PARLIAMENT IS DENIED BY HOUSE LEADER

Ottawa, Feb. 22—The probability of an adjournment of the House of Commons at the end of this week is still talked of.

Two-thirds of the proposed long adjournment will then have been taken up in extra debate on the address and various amendments, the debate having been prolonged by keen opposition from the Conservative benches.

A rumor that the government intended to bring down closure today, to take effect tomorrow, was promptly denied by Hon. Ernest Lapointe, acting leader in the House.

Another rumor that the Opposition intended to terminate its participation in the debate tomorrow night was denied by the Conservative party's whips, who stated that the Opposition intended to continue the debate indefinitely and keep the house sitting.

Unofficial Feeling.

Unofficially, however, there is a feeling about corridors that all parties in the house will be willing to terminate the debate by the end of this week.

The government will have then only two of six weeks' respite it asked for in which to reorganize the cabinet and assemble its program of legislation for submission to the house. When the debate on the address is finished the House automatically adjourns until March 15.

French Gowns Worn

Stewart McClenaghan, Conservative of Ottawa, made a plea for Canadian made clothes in the debate on the address in the House of Commons today. He would venture that not ten per cent of members of the House were wearing all-Canadian made clothing. More than half the gowns worn by women at the opening of parliament and at the drawing-room, he understood, were French. Mr. McClenaghan thought mail order houses should be compelled to contribute something in taxes to the communities in which they operated.

A. J. Anderson, Conservative, High Park, Toronto, charged that the government had treated Rt. Hon. G. P. Graham as a "back number" and with ingratitude.

The debate dragged through practically the whole afternoon and evening sittings. For the greater part of the day, Conservatives held the floor.

No Idea of Closure.

The only Liberal speaker of the day, W. K. Baldwin, of Stanstead, declared: "I don't wish to give away secrets, but they (the government) have no idea of putting on closure."

Conservative talk of the Australian treaty, he added, was a camouflage to "befool, bemuddle and befuddle the mind of the farmer to make him believe that you love him."

E. F. Armstrong, Conservative, of South Temiskaming, and I. D. Cotnam, Conservative, of North Renfrew, were the last speakers of the day.

Praise For Graham.

Ottawa, Feb. 22—Rt. Hon. Geo. P. Graham was praised in the House this afternoon by Hon. Ernest Lapointe, acting leader of the Government, and Mr. Meighen when the former announced Mr. Graham's resignation as Minister of Railways and Canals and the appointment of Hon. Charles Dunning as his successor.

"I am sure," said Mr. Meighen, "I am not going beyond the demands of courtesy when I say that, aside altogether from the merits of Mr. Graham's defeat in the contest, all of us regret his absence from this House as a fellow member. He has been connected in a most distinguished fashion for very many years with the public life of this country and has been at all times a popular member of the House of Commons."

"I stated that my remarks are entirely aside from the merits of the rebuke of the Government which was passed by the electors in the late contest, in which rebuke Mr. Graham shared, but I can add this, that if ever there was a defeat of which the causes went to the root of public policy and the demerits of the administration as a whole and were not personal to the candidate himself, it was the defeat of Mr. Graham. I feel that he has taken the right course in offering his resignation. I am only sorry that such a good example has not been more generally followed. I again express regret that Mr. Graham has passed from the stage of our public life."

Hon. Mr. Lapointe, following, said: "I rise for the purpose of expressing to my right honorable friend, Mr. Meighen, my deep gratitude for the kind words he has said with regard to Mr. Graham. Mr. Graham is certainly one public man who has richly earned affection and respect. I should say the love of all those with whom he has come into contact. I only hope, indeed, I feel sure, that his services to the Canadian people will be continued in some other high capacity."

AN AMERICAN PUBLICATION UNDER THE BAN

Ottawa, Feb. 22—"Liberty," a weekly illustrated magazine published by the Chicago Tribune Company of Chicago, has been barred from Canada, according to an order issued today by the Department of Customs and Excise.

The authority for such a move is item 1,201 of the customs law, providing for the prohibition of the importation into Canada of "Immoral and Indecent Publications."

A few days ago in the House of Commons Hon. Dr. R. J. Manion, Fort William, called the attention of the government to its importation and read a telegram from the Local Council of Women of that city protesting against an article appearing in that magazine dealing with the life of the late Queen Mother Alexandra. The question was at once referred to the Postmaster-General, and since then another article has appeared regarding the Prince of Wales.

As a result of the publication of these two articles and in view of the provisions of the law, the Customs Department has felt warranted in taking the steps announced today.

LORD BURGHLEY FOR THE ARMY

London, Feb. 22—Lord Burghley, England's champion hurdler, has announced, on reaching his majority that he intends to take a permanent commission in the Grenadier Guards. He has already had six months' training with this famous regiment and as a student at Cambridge has been devoting himself to military subjects. He said, however, that he intends to continue athletic competition after entering the army.

Lord Burghley was a member of the British team at the 1924 Olympic games. He made two athletic invasions of the United States last year when he chalked up victories in the 400-meter hurdles at the University of Pennsylvania relays and in the 120-yard high hurdles in the track meet between Yale-Harvard and Oxford-Cambridge teams. He is the son and heir of the Earl of Exeter.

THE WHOLE WORLD AIDS IN THE MAKING OF LEAD PENCILS

(Philadelphia Inquirer.)

What if a pencil famine should suddenly develop and it became impossible to secure another of those enormously useful articles, with which the average being is now so wasteful? Not that there is even a remote contingency of such a condition developing, because the pencil business is established on an exceedingly firm basis in this country.

But inability to secure them would in all probability give rise to the first serious thought one would have as to whence and why they are.

A visit to a modern pencil factory is a revelation to the uninitiated. The innumerable handlings and the machine operations required in the making of a pencil make it well high in conceivable that it can be produced to sell at the low price of two, three or five cents.

Whole World Aids.

In the making of a pencil the products of forest, and mine, are brought together from all parts of the world—cedar wood from Florida, Alabama and Tennessee, for the better grade of pencils, or the California incense cedar for the cheaper grades; graphite from Mexico and Ceylon; clay from Austria and Germany; stearine from the Orient, principally Japan; rubber from South America and so on, for the multitudinous material requirements entering into the manufacture of pencils from near and far.

Many people are under the impression that a lead pencil is a piece of wood with a hole bored in the middle and the lead poured in. Far from it! For each pencil is fashioned from two pieces of wood made from slats which are cut from cedar trees. These slats when cut from the log require kiln drying and seasoning before they are fit for use in pencil making.

The slats are then grooved to make six pencils, the grooves being filled with prepared leads, and a simular grooved slat is glued on the leaded slat.

Shaping Pencil.

After gluing process is finished the slats are sent through various so-called "shaping" or "rounding" machines, containing operative knives made with wonderful mechanical precision, rotating at high speed, in order to make

C. P. R. TRAIN SERVICE BETWEEN OTIS AND FREDERICTON.

The Canadian Pacific Railway will operate a special shopping train on Saturday's only between Otis and Fredericton. This new service will be effective on Saturday, February 27th and will continue until further notice.

Train will leave Otis at 8.00 A. M. local time, Millville at 9.05 Upper Keswick 9.35 Cardigan 10.10 North Devon 10.55 South Devon 11.00 and will arrive in Fredericton 11.45 A. M. On the return will leave Fredericton 3.15 P. M., South Devon 3.25 North Devon 3.35, Cardigan 4.20 Upper Keswick 4.55, Millville 5.35 and will arrive at Otis at 6.35 P. M.

It is expected this service will become very popular, and will be a great convenience to those concerned.

the pencil of the various shapes required by the trade—round, hexagonal, triangular, flat, oval or otherwise. Up to this stage, it has required about 3 months' time in preparation from the day the slats arrived at the factory until they could be used and manufactured into pencils, up to assuming definite form.

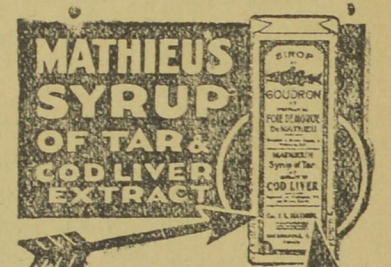

The preparation of the lead, representing the life and the soul of the pencil, is an industry in itself, representing the highest development of the chemist's art in laboratory work and mechanical manipulation of the machinery required, down to the last stages of the so-called "burning" process.

As a matter of fact, the word "lead" used in connection with a pencil is really a misnomer. The material used in making the "lead" is a composition of graphite and clay, mixed in proportions that vary the gradings from extremely soft to extremely hard.

The variegated colors in the finish of the stamping of pure gold leaf, metal aluminum or foil, the metal tips with their inserted rubbers, the packing etc. require machinery of every description.

PROBE INTO THE DEATH OF FIVE NUNS

Dickinson, N. D., Feb. 22—An investigation to determine the cause of death of five nuns at St. Joseph's Hospital continued tonight following the death of fifth victim, Sister Secundis, this afternoon. While no definite reason has been given by local physicians for the deaths it was reported that gas poisoning from wood stain applied to a recently completed portion of the hospital might be responsible. This belief is doubted.
