PREMIER BALDWIN WILL NOT REOPEN NEGOTIATIONS UNTIL BIG STRIKE IS CALLED OFF

London, May 9—While a limited number of electricians in London and other cities went out during the week, this was done sectionally, the question having been decided by the individual unions themselves and not in response to any call from headquarters. Textile workers and men and girls employed in the woollen mills as well as the boot and shoe factories are also in the second line.

The third line of defense comprises scavengers and general laborers in all the allied trades represented in the Trades Union Congress. If Congress should order out both these lines, more than two million workers will cease their tasks, bringing the total number of strikers involved in the movement to approximately five million.

Strikers Warned.

C. T. Cramp, president of the National Union of Railwaymen, warned the strikers today that it might be necessary to take further steps to win their cause. In the meantime, however, the crews of British mercantile marine ships have been instructed to continue at their tasks as the question of a sympathetic strike by them has not been decided.

Trains were kept off the streets today and suburban trains only were in operation around London. The day was full of anticipation for the civilian population; many thousands attended church to hear what comfort the ministers could give and offer prayers for the speedy termination of the struggle.

Hope From Churches.

It is in this direction that hope springs for a resumption of the negotiations which might find the parties to the dispute in a more reasonable frame of mind. In his broadcast message of last night Premier Baldwin told again of his readiness to take up negotiations as soon as the general strike is called off, and in reply to this the Council of the Trades Union Congress today called attention to the failure of the Premier to mention withdrawal of the mine owners' lock-out notices, and added significantly: "If, as the Premier says, no door is closed, it is essential that he make clear that these notices be withdrawn as well as the general strike notice, so that the negotiations might be taken up on the basis existing before the government broke off the negotiations."

Premier's Statement.

Before the Government can reopen negotiations, the general strike must be called off, declared Premier Baldwin in a broadcast statement last night. "The mining dispute could then be settled. It would be a thousand times better to accept this than confront the situation that might develop. The statement was made because of widespread rumors being circulated throughout Great Britain that government officials were withholding much news and disseminating only that favorable to the government."

The Prime Minister went on to say that he was a man of peace and was longing, working and praying for peace but that he would not surrender the safety and security of the British constitution to threats of violence.

The Government, he asserted, was not fighting to lower the standard of living for the miners or any other workers.

The Premier's full statement was as follows:

"I have done my utmost to secure an agreement upon the basis of the commission's report, and when the time comes, as I hope it will soon, to discuss the terms under which the mining industry can be carried on, I shall continue my efforts to see that in my settlement justice is done both to the miners and coal owners."

Direct Attack.

"Could there be a more direct attack upon the community than that of a body not elected by the voters of country without consulting the people, without consulting even the trade unionists, and in order to impose conditions not yet defined, should dislocate the life of the country?"

"Who is it that is attacking the standard of living for the people? Is it the Government who have only sought to bring about a reasonable settlement of the mining industry, or the Trades Union Council which has decreed a strike which, if it is continued, cannot fail to increase unemployment, to burden rates and taxes and ruin the whole standard of life of the people."

Government Aims.

"I wish to make it as clear as I can that the government are not fighting to lower the standard of living of the miners or any other section of the workers. The suggestion is being spread about. It is not true."

"I do not believe that any honest person can doubt that my sole desire is to maintain the standard of living of every worker, and I am ready to press the employers to make any sacrifice consistent with maintaining the industry itself in order to bring about that object."

"I want to repeat that the government are prepared now, as they have always been, to accept the commission's report, and the full report if the other parties will do so. We are prepared as soon as circumstances permit to consult with the owners and miners to see how effect can best be given to this policy, and the country may rest assured that when the time comes the government will be ready with proposals."

"The Trades Union Congress have only to cancel the general strike and withdraw the challenge they have issued, and we shall immediately begin again with utmost care and patience the long and laborious task which have been pursued for so many weeks of endeavoring to rebuild the coal industry on an economic foundation."

"That is our position, and while the position remains as it is we have no course than to do our duty."

"Meanwhile, notwithstanding the dislocation of transport and fuel supplies, I hope the employers will do all in their power to keep their works running in order to mitigate the hardships which must necessarily be on people in an emergency such as this."

"I am a man of people. I am longing and working and praying for peace but I will not surrender the safety and security of the British Constitution."

"Can you not trust me to ensure a square deal for each party and to secure even justice between man and man?"

The rapid development of the fish oil and fish products industry on the Pacific coast this year may necessitate the fitting up of three coastwise vessels as tankers to carry oil from the reduction plants. Last year one vessel found this method successful. Fish reduction plants, it is estimated, will produce 10,000 tons of fish meal and fertilizer this year.

President E. W. Beatty, of the Canadian Pacific Railway, has asked approval of the shareholders for the construction of two new passenger vessels of the type of "Montcalm," "Montclare," and "Montrose," to be available for service in May, 1927, and five freight vessels of 8,500 tons, with a sea speed of about 14 knots, also to be ready for 1927.

During the past season 1,235 moose and 3,508 deer were killed in New Brunswick. Of the former 207 fell to the guns of non-resident hunters and 617 of the latter. In the same year animals killed for fur included 1,567 raccoon; 6,017 skunk; 18,314 muskrat; 5,410 foxes; 9,470 ermine; 177 martin; 2,823 mink; 105 otter; 67 fisher and 192 bear.

Their Majesties King George and Queen Mary paid a private visit to the first Exhibition of Paintings and Sculpture by Canadian artists which is being shown in London. According to an announcement by D. C. Coleman, vice-president and general manager of western lines of the C.P.R. at Winnipeg, the Canadian Pacific Railway is to construct a hotel of 200 guest rooms on a downtown site at Regina. This hotel is being built in response to a request voiced on many occasions by representatives of the citizens of Regina.

"The Barrier" is the photo play at the Capitol for the first half of the week featuring a star cast.

The suspense and indeed whatever interest "The Barrier" possesses may be credited to the excellent work of Lionel Barrymore as the girl's villainous father. The very sight of him is enough to send cold chills down your spine and his characterization is splendid. Marceline Day, a sweet and pretty newcomer is decidedly appealing and it can be stated without much fear of having to retract later that she is due to become very popular. Henry B. Walthall has a mighty difficult role but he handles it with skill, though without any particular finesse and makes it interesting and sympathetic as well. Norman Kerry is seen as the soldier hero, a role in which he hasn't much to do but which he makes romantic enough to suit all the feminine patrons.
