PREVENTION.

"Intelligence is the price of life," Dr. Francis Carter Wood told students and faculty of the University of Michigan. Dr. Carter is an authority on cancer.

Dr. Carter warned particularly against relying on quack doctors and quack remedies. He told of cases of cancer which would have been easily curable had the patient gone to a reputable physician, but which had become incurable through delay caused by reliance on quack remedies. He said that today, even in enlightened communities, only 1 per cent of cancer cases are cured, whereas if prompt remedies were applied promptly in the beginning, 90 per cent or more would be cured. He said that every well ordered family should have a thorough physical examination periodically, so that cancers could be detected in their beginnings and cured.

What Dr. Wood said about cancer is true about other diseases to a greater or lesser extent. If caught in time they are much more subject to cure at less suffering, illness and expense than if allowed to progress untreated for some time; the folly of submitting to quack cures is equally as apparent, and the periodical physical examination will disclose tendencies toward such diseases so that they can be checked in time.

According to Hon. John S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture millions of dollars have been lost by Ontario farmers who have invested in worthless stocks. In addressing the Toronto City Club Hon. Mr. Martin outlined the Government's plan to educate farmers in more advanced methods of financing. The farmer was able to make money, Mr. Martin said, but he did not seem able to keep it. He was an easy prey to salesmen of stocks that were worthless. The same thing can be said of many farmers in other parts of Canada. Here in New Brunswick there are many farmers who have invested their hard earned money in stocks, which promised a big dividend but which proved worthless.

At the close of the fiscal year 1911 the net debt of the province of New Brunswick was $4,648,857, and the revenue for that year totalled $1,347,077. For the year 1925, fourteen years later the revenue was $3,667,620.99, while the net debt at the close of the fiscal year was $30,722,459.90. The population of the province between the year 1911 and 1921 increased by thirty thousand souls. It would seem that the time had about arrived for this province to call a halt in public expenditures.

Arrested for a robbery, a wife said she did it to help her in the care of a crippled husband. Investigation proved the husband to be in the best of physical condition. Her excuse, however, was found to be very lame.

The 70-year-old Iowa farmer who claims he could "give Jim Corbett a boxing lesson" is slightly reminiscent of Father helping Willy out with his trigonometry.

Marksmen in flivvers are attempting to rid a western Kansas county of coyotes. Guns seem superfluous if the coyote is to assume the status of a pedestrian.

Don't become discouraged if he seems to have a mania for getting off on the wrong foot. An all-wise providence doubtless intended him for a Charleson dancer.

A New York workman is reported to have fallen 12 stories and landed in the basement of a building, without even a scratch. The thirteenth story in that sounds like a big one.

Since Prohibition had yet to be invented, whatever it was that was rotten in Denmark was probably not law enforcement, says an American exchange.

Fairy Story: "Well," said the city dweller as he shoveled nine tons of snow off his walk, "this will certainly be a fine thing for winter wheat."

Evidently, the rooster out in Atchison, Kas., that few against a fire truck and broke one of its headlights was a Plymouth Rock.

Another advantage of the old-fashioned minuet was that they didn't have to condemn the hall after it was danced a couple of times.

If history can be depended upon, the earliest of the old-time fiddlers was Nero.

One of the primitive forms of clo- ture is a derby hat over the end of the cornet.

THROUGH OUR SIEVE

It's pretty hard to accept as final the opinion of the fellow who doesn't agree with you.

It is true there is too much dis- respect for law and always has been.

We suppose the people who want rubber will have to do as with potatoes, pay the price.

When each side to a controversy tries to get the better of the other side they call it a deadlock.

Gilbert K. Chesterton says "a stomach full of raspberry jam is not a happy stomach." The same thing may be said of a stomach full of jazz.

We suppose that in an earth- quake region, say sections of Cali- fornia, the people never know when they go to bed what time they're likely to get up in the morning.

God bless the universal mother! When her son goes wrong her ever- faithful, loving heart tells her he was influenced by evil companion- ships.

"There is some danger," remark- ed the Man on the Car, "that the word 'moron' soon will be misused and applied to everybody who may not know as much as we think we know."

However much we love mankind in general we can't help conserving our emotions in the case of the fel- low who thinks a healthy sneeze is one that covers a fan-shaped area of ten or twelve square feet.

PRAISE FOR MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE

(Canadian Poultry Review)

Hon. Lewis Smith, Minister of Agriculture for the Province of New Brunswick has taken a strong and personal interest in several of the laying contests and has written most congratulatory letters to Mr. A. T. Reed, winner of the New Brunswick contest, who patronized the New Brunswick egg laying contests since they were inaugurated in 1920, and to Mr. W. E. B. Tait, whose pen of Barred Rocks carried off championship honors in the Nova Scotia egg laying contest. Mr. Tait is also a pioneer in con- test work. Another letter of con- gratulation was directed to Mr. Morris McD. Steven who made a wonderful showing with his pen of Barred Rocks in the New Brun- swick contest. Mr. Steven is in im- portation, a sturdy Scot and Hon. Lewis Smith refers to this in his letter. It is gratifying to see those in high places take such an in- terest in contest work, and the impetus that such letters give can not be over estimated.

PUBLIC OPINION

Editor Daily Mail.

Sir—In response to young ladies who criticize their mothers so free- ly, I wish to protest. My mother is in the 60's and well able to enjoy herself, and I would be the last one to criticize her, and hope my sons and daughters will never have to criticize me. When a mother has done her duty by her home and children she deserves some pleasure and should not be looked on as a mere household drudge.

A few years back we girls did not have the privileges our girls have today. I recollect my most cherished ambition was to be athletic, but in my girlhood which isn't so long since, such actions were deemed bold. Such a thing as attending the theater without a male escort wasn't to be considered and who ever heard of women or girls traveling around the country as free and unhampered as they do today? Of course, we had our good times, but it meant work for our mothers especially the parties when there were no servants in the home and daughters at school or at work.

Why shouldn't mothers have some of the fun? Of course there are a few foolish 50-year-old flappers but most mothers are sensible in every way.

MOTHER OF FOUR.

Fredericton, Feb. 6th, 1926.

SOME THINGS YOU NOTICE.

That the Con. last Friday even- ing was a great success.

That the weather man has an over supply of snow.

That the city council now opens its monthly meeting with prayer.

That some unkind critics say that the Council needs it.

That despite all that is said against the "Modern Girl" she seems good to us.

That U. N. B. made a good start with their first Hockey Game of the season.

That the Charlotte County Songs and Dances, and the French Canadian Folk Songs made a big hit at the High School Building last Wed- nesday evening.

That a Queen Street merchant says that his wife may be a Golf Widow in summer but he is a Bridge Widower in the winter time.

That a further increase in school taxes is announced.

That the tax payers are getting fed up on these increases.

That the stork is still on the job judging by the number of baby sdeighs seen on Queen Street every fine afternoon.
