SOUTHERN GALES SWEEP ON TO MOBILE; KNOWN DEAD IN THE FLORIDA STORM PLACED AT 325

New Orleans, Sept. 20—Mobile was being swept by an 88-mile gale at 8 o'clock tonight attaches of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company there reported to their New Orleans office tonight over a telegraph wire that was maintained in operation only a few minutes. The barometer reading in Mobile at that time was 28.91.

The telegraph operator at Mobile who sent the message telegraphed that he was unable to give any estimate of the damage because the men working in the telephone office had been unable to leave the building because of the strong winds for many hours and were not in communication with other parts of the city.

Known Dead 325.

Miami, Sept. 20—The known dead in Florida's storm area as a result of Saturday's hurricane and tidal wave stood tonight at 325, the number of injured was estimated at over 4,000 and the property damage was placed at $50,000,000.

Approximately 40 persons were missing.

Miami proper had 125 dead and approximately 2,000 injured; Miami suburbs, including Coral Gables, Miami Shores, Little River and Hialeah total 45 dead and the injured was numbered into hundreds.

John E. Taylor, personal representative of Governor Martin, advised the president that 173 were killed and approximately 1,400 injured along the lower east coast. He listed 79 as dead in Miami and 500 injured; Hollywood and Dania 60 dead, 700 injured; Fort Lauderdale, 27 dead, 200 injured; Florida City, 7 dead.

Mr. Taylor said he found "terrible property damage," in Miami, but not so bad as at first reported. Fort Lauderdale, Dania and Hollywood were practically wiped out, he reported, and Hialeah was virtually ruined. Coral Gables was badly damaged.

194 Dead in Miami.

Florida East Coast Railway officials estimated the number of dead in Miami at 194, with 54 victims at Hollywood and 200 at Hialeah. Two staff correspondents of the Associated Press reported here that their survey of the stricken section would indicate a death toll of between 600 and 1,500.

The nation responded quickly to the calls for help for the storm sufferers.

President Coolidge issued a proclamation calling on the people of the United States to aid. The national headquarters of the American Red Cross made an initial appropriation of $100,000. Newspapers, cities and fraternal organizations poured in subscriptions. Offers of help were received from several states and proclamations for aid in relieving the victims were issued by State Governors.

Relief Trains Pour in.

Relief trains, loaded with doctors and nurses and carrying food and medicine supplies poured into the Miami district.

The government departments at Washington placed their resources at the disposal of Governor Martin. Eight coastguard vessels were ordered to proceed to the East Coast and naval reservists in the Miami district were ordered to active training service.

Moorehaven, 75 miles northwest of Miami, suffered the most severely of any inland city. Fifty-six bodies had been removed from the wreckage and placed in a temporary morgue at Avon City and almost 200 others were reported missing.

Refugees reported that many buildings in Moorehaven were demolished, some frame structures having floated two miles from their original positions. All the brick buildings remained intact, however, the town of Clewiston, unheard from until today, reported it had come through the gale unscathed.

Damage to citrus fruit in the wake of the hurricane was placed at $10,000,000.

Heroism and Sacrifice.

Stories of heroism and personal sacrifice seeped out over the ravaged district today as refugees, some traveling in box cars, made their way out of the area.

A mother with her three children tied to her, braved the surging waters at Moorehaven when Lake Okeechobee overflowed and flooded the city. Huge waves enveloped them and two of the children were drowned. The mother, undaunted, cut them from her and devoted her attention to the survivor.

Raising it to her shoulder she held out until rescued.

Still clutching two of his children, the body of a man was washed ashore. A couple who had taken refuge atop a house were thrown into the water when the building collapsed and for five hours they clung to palmettoes before being rescued.

Families Torn Asunder.

The fate of several houseboats anchored along the Miami Bay front still was undetermined tonight. One with two persons aboard was seen to break away and drift towards the open sea.

Reports received here told of families being torn asunder and many children separated from their parents, anxiously searched the ruins of what had been their homes.

Sheets of galvanized iron roofing were carried about as if made of paper during the nine-hour storm at Miami Saturday morning, a Pullman conductor reported on his arrival here. Scores of persons were injured by the flying debris.

Storm in 3 Sections.

The storm at Miami came in three sections, Roy Jackson, a Pullman porter said, the gale becoming worse after each brief lull.

"We stayed in the car most of the time," he said, "and about 25 people came and stayed with us for shelter. Their homes had been washed away and they had no place to go.

"You couldn't see ten feet in front of you, and the wind blew so hard it rocked the car like it was a cradle. You can't imagine such a wind.

"Along about daylight Saturday morning, you could see roofs of houses and big timbers sailing along through the air and the rain came in regular sheets before the wind. You could sit in the car and see parts of houses go sailing by and telephone poles would snap off right close to the ground. Automobiles parked along the streets were blown away bodily or washed against buildings by the water that rushed through the streets."
