Brilliant Home Wedding On Saturday Afternoon

Nuptials of Mr. Donald Alexander Fraser and Miss Eleanor Muriel VanBuskirk—Many Guests Witness Ceremony—Great Array of Wedding Gifts—Description of the Bridal Costumes, Decorations, Etc.

Beyond question the most fashionable home wedding which this city has witnessed in modern times took place at the palatial residence of Mr. and Mrs. James F. VanBuskirk, 160 York Street, at 4.45 o'clock on Saturday afternoon, when their youngest daughter, Eleanor Muriel, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Donald Alexander Fraser of this city, son of Mr. Archibald Fraser, president of the Fraser Companies' Limited, the largest lumbering concern in Eastern Canada. The ceremony was performed by Rev. F. H. Holmes, pastor of the Wilmot United Church, in the presence of about one hundred and fifty guests, including relatives and friends of the contracting parties and many members of the younger social set of the city. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Jean VanBuskirk, and by Miss Sylvia Shore of Halifax, N. S., as bridesmaids; by Miss Nan Fraser, sister of the bridegroom, as maid of honor, and by little Frances Kitchen, niece of the bride, as flower girl. Mr. Richard D. Murphy of Edmundston discharged the duties of best man, while the ushers were Mr. Allison H. Taylor and Mr. Arthur H. Slipp of this city.

Splendid Decorations.
The interior of the VanBuskirk home, easily one of the finest and most elegantly furnished in this province, was most gorgeously decorated for the occasion, the work having been done under the supervision of Miss Ada Schleyer, the Charlotte Street florist. Pink and green were the predominating colors, and no pains or expense were spared to have the work done in the most artistic manner. The eastern end of the drawing room, which was set aside for marriage ceremony, was banked with palms and ferns, in front of which had been erected an arch of smilax and carnations and from the centre of which was suspended a large white bell illuminated by an electric bulb. The drawing room decorations, brightened by the glow of white and colored electric lights, called forth many exclamations of wonder and admiration from the assembled guests. The hall and parlor on the opposite side were decorated with potted plants and the bannisters of the stairway were entwined with smilax, the effect being very striking.

The Bridal Procession.
The bridal procession was formed in the upper hall, and to the sweet strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, rendered on the piano by Mr. Walter McGinn, at the appointed hour moved slowly down the spacious stairway and on to the rear of the drawing room where the bridegroom and his best man were in waiting in front of an altar stool covered with silk cloth. Eight vivacious young friends of the bride, dressed in pastelle shades, acted as ribbon bearers and followed in the wake of the bridal party. These were Misses Maggie Chestnut, Isabella Babbitt, Kathleen Gibson, Grace Phillips, Irma Scott, Margaret Chestnut, Claire Broderick and Helen Crowe. The bride entered the drawing room leaning on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage.

The Bridal Costumes.
The bride, effulgent in the light of youth, looked very winsome and pretty in a costume of pink crepe chiffon, heavily beaded with silver crystals, and pink tulle veil and rhinestone bandeau, shoes and stockings to match. She carried a beautiful bouquet of lavender orchids and pink tipped lilies of the valley.
The maid of honor was appropriately gowned in pink chiffon vested with pink and gold net and lace, and wore gold colored shoes and stockings. Her hat was of green mohair with flowers to match.
The bridesmaids were charmingly attired in pink chiffon and gold lace lined with pink chiffon, and picture hats trimmed with gold lace and pink roses. Their shoes and stockings were of a golden shade and they carried bouquets of Columbia roses.
The little flower girl the only grandchild of the bride's parents and a great favorite, looked very sweet in a costume of pink chiffon with ruffles and streamers of pink and blue ribbon, little picture hat trimmed with pink and blue ribbons, and carrying a basket of sweetheart roses.
The bride's mother was becomingly attired in a princess dress of gold and green metal lame, with beaver trimmings and displaying old fashioned gold jewelry.

In the Dining Room.
The solemn ceremony which made the young couple man and wife being at an end the guests moved forward and showered their congratulations and best wishes upon the newly wedded pair. An adjournment was then made to the dining room where a buffet luncheon was served. Here again the floral decorations were on a grand scale and came in for much admiration. The table design, which was the handiwork of Miss Jean VanBuskirk, was strikingly pretty and effective. A massive wedding cake, with a miniature figure in bridal robes as a crowning piece, adorned the centre of the table, while suspended just above was a large illuminated bell of white material. The bridal cake a wonderful creation of culinary art, was surrounded by a wreath of pink and yellow artificial lilies, each enclosing a miniature electric bulb. Silk streamers, carnations and smilax also loomed up conspicuously in the table decorations, while palms and ferns were tastefully arranged about the walls of the room.

The Wedding Gifts.
The great popularity of the young couple and the prominence of their respective families was attested by a magnificent array of wedding gifts. They were the remembrances of friends far and near and their value would run into many thousands of dollars. The list included several parental checks running into four figures, a victory bond of large denomination from the Mr. Donald Fraser, uncle of the bridegroom, and numerous costly gifts in silverware, cut glass, etc. The bridegroom's gift to the bride was a plantinum and diamond bracelet watch; to each of the bridesmaids and maid of honor he gave silver vanity and coin purses; to the flower girl a gold locket and chain; to the ushers and groomsmen sterling silver cigarette cases, and the ribbon bearers each received a five pound box of chocolates.

The Honeymoon.
The reception and luncheon over, the happy couple followed by almost the entire wedding party, motored to the C. P. R. station, where amidst showers of taffeta they embarked on a two weeks honeymoon trip which will include Montreal, Toronto, New York and Atlantic City. Upon their return the young couple will reside at Edmundston.

The bride's going away costume was a sport dress of red and grey silk moravian, with gray squirrel coat, gray felt hat, trimmed with silver ribbon and shoes and stockings to match.

A Popular Couple.
The bridegroom, who is the eldest son of Mr. Archibald Fraser and the grandson of the late Mr. Donald Fraser, who founded the immense business of the Fraser Companies, was educated in Toronto and holds a responsible position in connection with the Fraser Paper Mill, recently erected at Madawaska, Maine. He is a young man generously endowed with sound, common sense, is not afraid of work and undoubtedly has a bright future before him.

The bride is a young woman of engaging personality and of a most lovable disposition. She is very popular in the younger social set of the city, and her numerous friends will join heartily in the wish that she and her worthy consort may have a long and happy wedded life.

In the evening Mr. and Mrs. VanBuskirk entertained the wedding guests to a ball at their home. A program of dances was carried out to music furnished by McGinn's orchestra. It was easily the most enjoyable social function of the season. The genial host and charming hostess were assiduous in looking after the welfare of their numerous guests and saw to it that "all went merry as a marriage bell." The pleasant gathering broke up shortly before midnight.

NEW YORK LIKES ROUGH AND TOUGH

Under the above heading W. O. McGeehan, sporting editor of the New York Tribune-Herald, writes amongst other things:

"Back of Madison Square Garden is the Polyclinic Hospital which is most conveniently located for the gentle sport of hockey. Since the professional hockey league put a team into New York the night shift in this hospital has been working overtime.

"The other night there were two broken noses to be straightened out and many scalp wounds to be stitched. While these hockey players are professionals, they seem to be amateurs at heart. They are playing the game for all that is in them. In most of the professional sports the players become jaded business men. But not the hockey players. Their minds are on the game and not on the weekly cheque.

"There are feuds of long standing among the hockey players. Some time ago a player, now for New York broke the ankle of a Boston player, in a collision on the ice. The other night the Boston man contrived to break the nose of the New Yorker and to cause cuts in his face that required considerable stitching.

"They took the New Yorker to the hospital where repairs were made and his nose was secured by bandages. He was on the ice in the next period playing with all of his accustomed dash. He would not complain. 'It was a personal matter,' he declared. 'We had a little trouble once before and I expected this. We will meet again.' It was a private feud.

"I doubt if any of our prize-fighters would care to step right back into the battle after receiving injuries of the sort sustained by the New Yorker. But the hockey player seems to feel that these things are all in the game.

"The petulant pop bottle frequently hurtles into the ring at the Montreal rinks, especially when a certain referee is officiating. Baseball is not the only sport that excites the innocent bystander to thoughts of homicide.

THE POORHOUSE OPTIMIST

Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania said at a reception in Washington:

"The law-breaking that goes on everywhere nowadays fills us with something like despair. The man who can look on at all this law-breaking without despair is worse than the poorhouse optimist.

"After the poorhouse optimist died the superintendent of the institution said:

"What an optimist the old boy was, to be sure! Once he failed in business, but thanked heaven he had his health. Another time he failed in health and thanked heaven he had his business. Finally, just before they brought him here, he failed in health and business simultaneously.

"Oh, well," he chuckled then, "what good is the one without the other?"

Mrs. Pryer—Do you think the Van Shoots are real dyed-in-the-wool aristocrats?

Mrs. Guyer—Why, they can't be, my dear! They pay cash for everything, don't they?

Dr. Wood's
Norway
Pine Syrup

Mrs. S. E. Little, 103 Inkerman St., London, Ont., writes:—"I got a very severe cold which settled in my bronchial tubes.

I coughed night and day, and although I tried several different remedies I could get no relief until a friend advised me to take Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. This I did, and I must say that it gave me almost immediate relief as I got rid of my cough very quickly. I hope this testimonial will be the means of helping others."

"Dr. Wood's" is put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.
