THE METHODS OF COUE.

Philoop Emile Coue, he who made famous the phrase: "Every day, in every way, I am getting better and better," unquestionably did much therapeutic good. There was nothing new in the theories underlying his methods; it was only in the methods themselves that he was original, although it may very well be that he, as he said, thought out the principles independently of others. But, like all healers, when his time came he had to die.

Coue claimed much more for his methods and theories than conservative science will allow him. But they worked in numberless cases; they cured. He believed that mental suggestion was very frequently responsible for physical disability. He was right. He believed that mental suggestion was responsible. Again he was right. It was in his belief that mental suggestion could cure disabilities for which mental suggestion was not responsible that he entered informal ground.

There is no doubt that mental suggestion will, and does, do much to help along the cure of such afflictions. Conservative physicians depend on it daily. They strive to inspire cheerfulness, and the will to recover in their patients. But that mental suggestion alone is sufficient for their cure is not admitted by them.

KEEPING YOUNG.

John D. Rockefeller, 87 years old, plays his nine holes of golf in 44. Lord Balfour at 70 still plays tennis. The elder Chamberlain, one of the ablest men in parliament in modern times, refused to take exercise of any sort. He boasted that he never walked when he could ride. Ponce de Leon, feeling old, set forth to find the fountain of eternal springtime in Florida. That was 400 years ago, and old men and old women have been hunting for it ever since.

We do not know that the fountain of youth is not to be come upon in the deep forest. It is within us.

Rockefeller and Balfour, whatever their health rules, are right. They are young because they are young inside. They live not in the past. They live in today and tomorrow.

If you want to keep youth, don't hark back to the good old days. Don't tell what you use to do and how you used to do it when you were a youngster. Read the newspapers. Keep up with the times.

Be interested in what happened this morning and what may happen day after tomorrow.

Coun. Kirk of New Maryland is of the opinion that the U. N. B. authorities should endeavor to realize more revenue from the forest lands belonging to the college. No doubt there are many of the neighbors of the New Maryland councillor who share his views, but as Chancellor Jones pointed out, the tract of woodland belonging to the college is valuable for instruction purposes in connection with the forestry department. The wood used for heating the college buildings is all taken off the land belonging to the institution, and besides this there were sales of wood last year to members of the faculty which yielded a revenue of $192.

Many of friends in this city will regret to learn of the sudden death at his home in Chatham yesterday of Hon. Robert Murray, a prominent lawyer of the town and a former Provincial Secretary Treasurer. Hon. Mr. Murray sat in the Legislature some twenty years ago as a supporter of the Tweedie Government, and came back in 1917 when he became Provincial Secretary Treasurer in the Foster administration. At the election in 1917 he was defeated and retired from public life. Hon. Mr. Murray was a genial, whole-souled man, who made friends and kept them. His death removes one of the outstanding figures of the North Shore section.

Sydney Record: One of the unpleasant revelations made during the Customs inquiry was that during the 1926 campaign a New Brunswick candidate intended for a convicted smuggler-bootlegger on the score that the man was "a precious help" at election time. The incident was "a precious help" to that candidate's opponents during the Customs probe and an injury to his political friends. Politicians should get it out of their heads that the day still remains when inclusion of law-breakers in their entourage can be helpful. The more bootleggers and smugglers a candidate has on his side the better for his opponent.

A steady discovery is announced from Leipzig—a method of producing vitamins artificially. Thus foodstuffs deficient in this form of nourishment can be supplied with it, to the great pain, no doubt, of the public health. Isn't science wonderful? There was a time, of course, when mankind didn't know what vitamins are and ate regardless of the nice balance of elements now regarded as essential. They took what they liked or what agreed with them, and let it go at that. And sometimes they deluded themselves into thinking that they were perfectly well.

Premier Baxter and Ex-Premier Veniot were both in Montreal this week and were interviewed in regard to the situation in New Brunswick. Premier Baxter says that the Conservatives will not lose any seats in this province in the pending election. Ex-Premier Veniot on the other hand predicts gains for the Liberals. Bad leadership was largely responsible for the Liberal slump at the last election and there are no immediate prospects for an improvement.

Mr. John O. Rockefeller, reputed to be the richest man in the world, quietly celebrated his 87th birthday yesterday. Mr. Rockefeller has been in good spirits during the past week and his generosity in distributing dimes has been unprecedented.

Let a mar engineer the water to a first class boil for the 3-minute eggs and he'll go around for a week, all feather-pigeon chested fatuously convinced he's learned all there is to domestic science.

The Municipal Councillors who are in session here this week have already inspected the plant of the U. N. B. and the County buildings. There is a circus coming on Saturday and they should not fail to attend it.

Our own opinion is that the man who spent $195 on long distance calls to tell his wife he still loved her, did protest too much and too expensive; suspicious.

If the Great Statesman says he is inclined to sympathize with the spirit which prompts the proposal and that he will take the matter under serious advisement, the ultimate answer is No.

The Chicago bill-poster who claims to have splattered 500,000 bills over the face of nature during his 20-year career certainly must have kept up a good, steady paste.

Mr. Ziegfeld, who "glorified" the American girl by taking away her clothes, is about to humiliate her by giving them back.

"Nothing will be given to anybody until Italy is satisfied," says Mussolini. There you have the explanation of the dictator's popularity.

The Good Old Days were those in which no graver problem faced the populace than the age of Ann.

It is a little strange that lessons are given by mail in cornet playing and none in learning how to endure it.

Sackville Tribune: Mr. and Mrs. F. E. McDiarmid of Fredericton are in town, Mrs. McDiarmid being the guest of her sister, Mrs. Kenneth Trenholm, while Mr. McDiarmid is attending Summer School.
