FOX RANCHING IS CONSIDERED A GOOD REVENUE PRODUCER; FITS IN WELL WITH FARMING

Farm economics experts, almost without exception, agree that the highest net returns come from those farms with more than one source of income. A farm featuring some one crop or class of live stock can usually fit in another line or lines that can be operated in spare time and without excessive additional equipment to advantage.

With this in mind, a number of farmers in every province have installed a small back fox ranch which they operate in conjunction with their regular farm crops and stock. Probably the most effective combination in this respect is that of fruit growing and fox ranching. Orchards provide an excellent site, with their shade and for a large part of the year their freedom from noise and excitement.

An extensive area for a fox ranch is not necessary as five acres are sufficient for a reasonably good-sized plant and two acres is usually all that is needed for a start. A half-acre will accommodate six pairs of foxes, and it is wise as a rule not to start with too many until experience in caring for them has been gained.

Location of the Ranch.

The location of the ranch is important, but in a bulletin headed "The Silver Fox," which has just been published, Mr. R. J. McNeill, of Tyne Valley, Prince Edward Island, says:

"When one sees the different sorts of places, the different sized pens and the different kinds of houses and dens where foxes are successfully raised, he hesitates to describe his ideal site."

"However," he adds, "there can be no doubt as to where the site should not be.

"1. Avoid by all means a wet or damp place. 2. Avoid a place where snowdrifts are deep in the winter time. 3. Avoid any place that cannot be kept scrupulously clean.

"Some positive advice would be: 1. Place ranch if possible in a hardwood or softwood grove. I have proof that foxes need shade. 2. Place the ranch where snow does not bank deeply. 3. If possible, keep the foxes on a southern slope with a southern exposure. 4. Have a good high snow fence or a thick grove on both the northern and eastern side of the ranch.

"The location, having been decided upon," he continues, "allowances is made for the size and number of pens desired, for the alley-ways and for additional pens which might be needed later on. It is a good plan to have a few extra pens. Sometimes a sick or quarrelsome fox, or one requiring isolation, special food or other separate treatment, might with advantage be placed in such a pen. The guard fence should be at least ten feet from the nearest pens as otherwise the foxes might climb on the pens and from there jump over the guard fence and escape. It should be eight feet high, made of boards and an additional 3 or 4 feet of 2-inch mesh wire on top of that with an overhang of two feet, if a snow fence is required; or a fairly cheap fox netting, if in a sheltered place. Try to have a southern exposure. An inside overhang of cheap netting, two feet wide, prevents the foxes from climbing over, and a similar strip on the ground keeps them from digging under the guard fence.

LADIES!

Don't wave your hair daily—or even every week. Here's a way to keep it wavy for days at a time. BEFORE you use your iron, or curlers, DAMPEN the hair with DANDERINE. Just a few DROPS on comb or towel. Your locks will then behave for a MONTH! Of course, you know what Danderine does to dandruff; dissolves every speck, within five minutes of rubbing into the scalp. But as a wave-preserver on the hair itself, Danderine is a JOY. The best dressing in the world because it doesn't show. Any permanent wave or water wave lasts much longer and looks much nicer when Danderine is used instead of water to "set" the wave.

ASK YOUR DRUGGIST

Get a bottle of Danderine and start its benefits today. Every drugstore has it, for only 35c. For the finest dressing you could find, and the best aid to hair health yet discovered, just try—

Rancher's Busy Months.

"April and November are the rancher's busiest months. In April most litters arrive, and in November he is busy getting things in shape for winter. It is now that he pairs his foxes, cleans and fumigates houses and den-treats his foxes for worms and fleas, and watches for the priming of foxes he wishes to pelt.

"While I mention November as the month for pairing foxes, much late pairing sometimes brings good results. On January 4th, 1916, I moved to Penacook, N. H., and there paired seven pairs with the result of five litters from which I raised seventeen pups.

"As cold weather comes on in October and November, the foxes to be pelted are fed more generously. Fish, such as chub or tommycod, or any kind of fresh fish, are fed once a day alternately with meat, such as beef or rabbit. Cod Liver Oil Biscuits forms a portion of the ration, the balance being such as circumstances might allow or suggest. In fact, quite an assortment might be fed with good results."

Other portions of the bulletin refer to the care of the foxes during the mating season, types of houses, treatment of disease, etc.

Purchases of the initial breeding stock, naturally take considerable capital as it is not wise to start with inferior foundation stock, but farmers with suitable sites for rearing foxes can sometimes interest business men in undertaking a ranch on a partnership basis. Mr. H. S. Arkell, Dominion Live Stock Commissioner, owns a pair or two of black foxes on a basis somewhat similar to this. And on last reports was finding the venture a successful one.

LIBERALS ARE DIVIDED OVER PROHIBITION

Toronto, Oct. 28—Officially the split in the Ontario Liberal party over the question of the Ontario Temperance Act, came tonight, when E. P. Tellier, member for Essex North in the late legislature, issued on behalf of the recognized anti-prohibition faction of the party, a manifesto pledging, among other things, in event of their re-election on December 1, support to the repeal or amendment of the act and the substitution therefore, of temperance legislation providing for government control of the sale of liquor and beer on the local option plan.

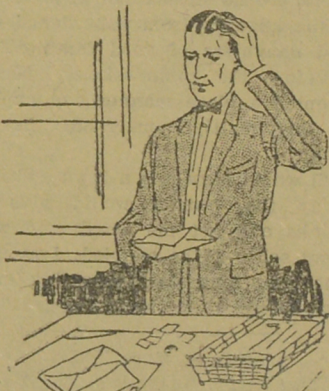

The document bears at present, in addition to Mr. Tellier's signature, those of A. Belanger, ex-M. L. A., for Russell; J. A. Pinard, ex-M. L. A., for East Ottawa; and E. Proulx ex-M. L. A., for Prescott. Mr. Proulx's signature carries with it the reservation, "subject to the approval of the Liberal Association of the County of Russell."

Liberals of Glengary, North Cochran, Temiskaming and some ten other constituencies who are said to have taken part in the conferences which engendered by W. E. N. Sinclair's out-and-out advocacy of maintenance and enforcement of the O. T. A. culminated on the official "break" have assured Mr. Tellier, and his faction that their candidates will be requested to subscribe to the manifesto in question.

It is unwise to guess the weight of a letter to determine the amount of postage required. Such guessing, often results in "Postage Due," which may cause delay in delivery and, in the case of business letter—often results in a dissatisfied customer.

BERNARD SHAW BARS OYSTERS

London, Oct. 29—George Bernard Shaw wants a bean supper held at the next Colchester festival, one of the biggest in England, because he felt that he could not attend the festival, that has just been held, because oysters were served. Shaw is a vegetarian. In declining to attend he said: "It is impossible. As a vegetarian, I must not eat oysters. Beans are an excellent substitute. Why not have a bean feast next spring."

Doctor—I would suggest a diet.
Patient—Well, it will have to be something that agrees with the cook.
