Aug. 8. Detectives also were checking over seized gems worth $18,000.

Five cases of jewelry were stolen from "The Breakers" the Newport mansion two weeks ago, while the Vanderbilts were entertaining friends at dinner. It was suggested that uninvited guests had gained entry, mingled with the others, and ransacked upstairs rooms when opportunity offered.

Former Gov. Charles S. Witham of New York was retained by Gen. Vanderbilt to direct the search and detectives were put on the trail by insurance companies. A gardener found three cases containing some unset stones. Servants were examined, but exonerated.

Vancouver, Aug. 23—Opening his campaign in Vancouver Centre here last night, Hon. H. H. Stevens, minister of customs, gave denial to statements which he charged Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King had circulated to the effect that he had obtained the information from which he based his investigations into the customs department from government sources.

"I obtained it," Mr. Stevens declared "from Mr. Sparks, president of the Merchants' Protective Association, and to him the people to Canada owe a debt of gratitude."

Hon. Mr. Stevens added that he obtained the information upon which his customs resolution was based in November of last year, and prepared at that time his resolution and filed it with the clerk of the House. It was not he declared, until the then minister of customs and the minister of trade and commerce became aware that the resolution was on file and that Walter Duncan was sent to Montreal to obtain information upon which to act in the dismissal of Bisailon, which took place in December.

"They say they discharged Bisailon," Mr. Stevens said. "They fired him because I had prepared a resolution to put on the order paper. There was not a move until I had taken action. He operated all through 1925, although his record had been laid before the government in February of that year," he charged. Hon. Mr. Stevens declared that the information he had brought out before the parliamentary committee far exceeded what was covered in the Duncan report.

"But I now say to Mr. King," he continued, "that if I did get my information surreptitiously, which is not true, have I done any injury to Canada by getting it?"

"I should parliament leaks in the treasury estimated to be at least $30,000,000, based on information furnished me."

The huge carp on the other end did some pulling on his own account and pulled little Mazie right into the water over her head. Mrs. Charles Ford heard her scream rushed into the water and rescued her.

Mazie is hopping mad, though. You see the fish got away with her hook and line.
