YOUNG CHILD BURNED TO DEATH

A SHOCKING TRAGEDY AT STONE RIDGE

Five Year Old Child Burned to Death Wednesday.

WAS PLAYING NEAR A STOVE
Clothing Was Set on Fire by a Younger Child.

A terrible tragedy occurred Wednesday at the home of Harvey Morehouse of Stone Ridge a short distance from Burr's Corner, when his little daughter aged five years died from burns received during play with a younger sister.

Threw Child in Spring.

Mrs. Fannie Morehouse wife of Harvey Morehouse left the house to attend to some duties outside. She left the two children playing near the stove which had a fire in it. Soon afterward she heard anguished screams from the elder child and rushing into the house found her clothing in flames. She seized the little girl and rushed with her to a spring near the house into which she threw the child to extinguish the flames. When she touched the little girl clothing and flesh fell away together in several places.

Dr. Robertson Attended.

A call for medical assistance was sent out. Dr. O. E. Morehouse was unable to respond being absent from home but Dr. B. W. Robertson did so and found the child unconscious and so badly burned that there was no hope for recovery. Death ensued some five hours after the accident.

Struck by Blazing Brand.

The mother learned from the children that the clothing of the elder had been set afire by the other who pulled a burning stick from the stove and struck the other with it or put it under her clothing.

THE MAN WHO SMOKES IS MORE DEPENDABLE

Baltimore, Oct. 22—The man who smokes is likely to be a more dependable and steadier worker—more dependable, perhaps, than the non-smoker, according to experiments by Dr. Knight Dunlap, professor of experimental psychology at Johns Hopkins University.

So far as women is concerned, "no scientific investigations have been made to provide material bearing on the question," Dr. Dunlap says, "and persons who say that women cannot smoke as men does without injury speaks without evidence in support of what they say. Tobacco is a sedative. The man who smokes is more likely to go along in his work with even production in amount and quality than is the man who does not."

QUEEN MARIE IS CROWNED THE STYLE QUEEN

Designers Follow Her About With Pad and Pencil.

OTHERS MAKE MENTAL NOTES

Her Majesty Changes Her Costume Quite Frequently.

Washington, Oct. 22—Marie, Queen of Rumania, also has become, by popular acclaim, queen of style. Expert designers of hats, shoes, dresses and flowers follow her with pencil and pad stenographers read avidly of the latest wrinkle in her dress, and society is making a mental note of what her gracious majesty wears from her head right down to her toes.

Marie had on the same dress last night that she wore when she stepped off the Leviathan in the morning but apparently the party is well supplied with changes of costume for its three-day itinerary of Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia. Thirty more bags went to a hotel where the remainder of the entourage is staying.

The Queen changed coats between the Leviathan and Union Station in Washington. When she led the walk with Secretary of State Kellogg out of Union Station she wore a gray astrakhan coat trimmed with a black fox collar and edged with black monkey fur around the bottom, cleverly combined with the gray astrakhan.

Princess Ileana, looking very calm and older than Prince Nicholas, was in gray squirrel trimmed with platinum fox, a blue velvet hat trimmed with a dash of rhinestone, and light shoes and stockings. Marie's hat and shoes didn't quite match the gray and black coat—the hat was Bergundy and gold cloth, and the shoes gold beige kid.

The Rumanian legation was jammed with flowers, including great baskets of chrysanthemums and Easter lilies—and more boxes were coming. Marie wore a corsage of orchids, and both she and the princess carried bouquets which members of the diplomatic corps brought to her in the station.

PRISONER HAD TO BE EJECTED AS TERM ENDED

Port Madison, Iowa, Oct. 21—An inmate of the Iowa State Prison was forcibly ejected today after he had argued with prison officials for more than two hours that he was being wrongfully cast out into freedom.

The prisoner, E. J. Brown of Tafa County, was sentenced to a five year term for larceny by embezzlement. Good behavior had reduced his sentence by more than a year and it expired today.

Advised by Peter Neal, prison clerk, that he was free, Brown reminded the official that Judge Nichols had sentenced him to five years and that he was going to remain.

Persuasion failed and after two hours of fruitless effort to induce the prisoner to leave, guards were called upon to throw him out. This they did, but Brown battled with them to the outer door.

PROHIBITION WAS A FAILURE IN NORWAY

London, Oct. 22—The defeat of prohibition in Norway's plebiscite of Monday elicits varied editorial comments from some London newspapers. The Daily Mail says that the Norwegian prohibition law, "like that of America," has been a failure and has led to "increased drunkenness, evasion and law-breaking."

It refers to "attempts to change human nature by means of legislation" and asserts that in no country where prohibition has been tried has it been "even reasonably efficacious."

The Daily Chronicle says Norway's prohibition "challenged the sporting spirit of the opposition" and resulted in hard drinking.

The Westminster Gazette thinks Sweden's experiment of rationing spirits is the most promising of the schemes for drink control yet tried.

WOMEN OPPOSE LYING MIRRORS IN THE STORES

London, Oct. 22—London society women are up in arms over the "lying mirrors of Mayfair." The expression is their own. It was coined to designate the trick looking-glasses which have been placed in many fashion salons to make plump girls look slim.

These mirrors are slightly convex and give a delightful illusion of slenderness to the woman who is trying on a new frock. But they may not survive. The women have learned of the deception.
