SHOCKING A MAGISTRATE.

A New York woman of twenty-eight years stopped on Fourteenth street the other day to "roll" a stocking. Now she could have rolled it at home and displayed it on Fourteenth or any other street without comment. But "one of them was slipping," she explained to a magistrate, and so she fixed it. A policeman saw her at the job and promptly ran her in to the Tombs Court. "She scandalized the men," the shocked policeman complained, and the equally shocked magistrate sagely remarked that "women shouldn't roll their stockings in public. They really shouldn't." And so he sent her to the House of the Good Shepherd to ponder the enormity of her crime.

Now just suppose it had been the other way around; that it had been a man instead of a woman; that a stocking had become unclasped and he had paused to attach the garter. Would the shocked policeman in question have interfered? Would he have dragged the offender before the equally shocked magistrate and told how he had rolled up his "pants" leg and thereby "scandalized the women"?

Many queer things are happening in these days, not the least of which is the discovery of the fact that a New York policeman and a New York magistrate can be shocked at anything.

GAVE GOOD ADVICE.

When Johnny Miles, king of Marathon runners, faced the inmates of a Boston prison a few days ago he had something to tell them worth remembering. Miles is a preacher as well as a runner. He said: "You are not the only ones who have made mistakes in life. Rise above yourself."

Rise above yourself. The fact that man can do that gives cause for all his hope and faith. Not many of us are good. But the important fact is that we actually have the capacity to rise above ourselves. That takes effort.

After all, most things that matter are finally determined by the degree of laziness with which you allow yourself to be afflicted.

Sir Henry Drayton is undoubtedly told what was absolutely true, when he stated that no campaign literature was sent out by party headquarters at Ottawa attacking the late Hon. George H. Boivin after news of his death had been received. Some literature in which his name appeared was sent out a week or so before news of his serious illness had been received, and the editors of some country weeklies, after learning of the ex-minister's death neglected to make use of the blue pencil.

Where do you get your ideas anyway? Bishop Johnson, Colorado, says: "We have been stampeded by a generation of reformers who are not experts, by men with a vision and a challenge who need to take lessons in Christian charity, and by political and religious humco-steerers." Try that on your piano.

New Brunswick is getting a good share of tourist travel, but the business is as yet only in its infancy. This province with its glorious summer climate, its attractions in the way of sport, its magnificent scenery, its historic spots and wealth of tradition should have thousands of visitors where it now has hundreds.

William R. Cooper, of Minneapolis, told the National Wholesale Jewelers' Association that the women of today "are wearing expensive jewelry out of sight of the male glance, such as decorated garter buckles and lingerie sets." Whaddye mean, "out of sight," Mr. Cooper?

We gather from reports into the investigation of that four-year-old New Brunswick murder that it has now been fairly well established the rector and Mrs. Mills were killed by someone.

Edward Browning, adopter de luxe, is also of the opinion that "we men know we're married, and don't need a jewel to remind us of it." Nevertheless, the jewel does frequently remind us of it.

Professor Julian Huxley says his observations have convinced him crabs have a form of courtship. There is supporting proof for his contention. Many of them are successful, too. Ask Ma, she knows.

Dr. R. T. Gunther, a British savant says baldheaded men are the brainiest, but that won't ruffle the starched locks of those long-haired sheiks, who never make any claim to superior intelligence.

A physician says there is absolutely nothing in the idea that eating fish builds brains, although letting one get away tends to improve the imagination.

FISHERMEN DROWNED OFF THE N. S. COAST

Halifax, Aug. 15—Fifty-two seamen drowned, 47 of them fishermen from two Nova Scotia schooners and five sailors for a Norwegian steamer.

Tonight it seemed extremely likely that this was the death toll exacted by the storm which a week ago swept the Atlantic coast of Nova Scotia and completely destroyed the Norwegian steamer Ringhorn and the Lunenburg schooner Sylvia Mosher, besides causing the disappearance of the Lahave schooner, Sadie Knickle, now feared to have been lost with all hands.

The Ringhorn ran on the rocks off Seatarie Island, Cape Breton, a week ago last night and was battered to pieces. Five of the crew were drowned while attempting to reach shore through the tempestuous breakers. On Tuesday last the Sylvia Mosher was discovered on the north bar off Sable Island, a hopeless wreck, and since then a diligent search of the Atlantic wastes by the government steamer Lady Laurier has failed to bring to light any trace of the 25 fishermen comprising her crew.

Yesterday word reached Halifax that the Sadie Knickle, last seen in the vicinity of the Sylvia Mosher off Sable Island, was overdue several days and that grave fears were felt for her and her crew of 22 men.

An ominous lack of news last night and today served to strengthen the belief that she, too, had been swept to her doom and that to the already long list of lost seamen should be added the names of the fishermen who named her.

However, owing to the absence of definite proof that the Sadie Knickle met a fate similar to that of the Ringhorn and the Sylvia Mosher, there are some who maintain that she may have escaped destruction by being driven out to sea.

The Sadie Knickle is now the only Nova Scotia fishing schooner not accounted for.

SPECIAL ATTRACTION AT GAIETY THEATRE

"What Happened to Jones" is the photo play at the Gaiety for Monday and Tuesday. It was a madly stage comedy and it has been made into a picture that is a sure cure for all aches, pains and ailments.

From the moment Tom Jones, well characterized by Reginald Denny is catechized as to his moral fiber by his fiancée's parents, one starts giggling in the sure knowledge that many untoward events will overtake him before his marriage on the morrow.

And there is not long to wait. Disaster "follows thick and follows faster." A raided poker game, a funny flight down fire escapes, excruciating adventures in a Turkish bath on ladies' day are merely a few of Denny's misadventures.

Denny is back in his own realm. He is capital as the harassed Jones. Aiding and abetting all the honor is Otis Harlan well cast as the henpecked half of the family headed by his wife Emily Fitzroy. Nina Romano appears to excellent advantage, displaying fine form, especially in the bath shots. Zasu Pitts adds a generous bit to the gaiety. So does William Austin.
