RUM RUNNERS ON QUEBEC-MAINE BORDER HAVE BEEN DOING RUSHING BUSINESS

Van Buren, Me., March 21—

Where the great Saint John River skirts the northern border of Aroostook county and divides the state of Maine from the provinces of Quebec and New Brunswick, smugglers and rum runners find a fertile field for their activities. But on both sides of the boundary they are closely watched by customs authorities and liquor law enforcement officers. The customs border patrol in this section of Aroostook believes that it has broken up an enterprise which in the last five years is said to have netted many hundred thousand dollars to a syndicate of rum runners whose ringleaders live on the Canadian side of the river and maintain their headquarters there.

For a long time there had been a seemingly unlimited flow of specially denatured alcohol from distilleries in Massachusetts and elsewhere to the northern border of Maine. From various northern Aroostook towns this was smuggled into Canada.

Once across the line it was redistilled and sold as pure grain alcohol, much of it being brought back into Maine. The rum runners are known to have elaborate distilling apparatus and competent workmen to operate their plants. Not long ago officers of the Quebec liquor commission while on a scouting trip discovered and destroyed a complete new distillery which occupied all the space in a freight car in transit between points in Canada.

Carload Seized.

Late last year a car of specially denatured alcohol arrived at Fort Kent. Ostensibly it was consigned to a reputable drug company at Edmundston, N. B. Customs officials held the car for nearly a week, watching it constantly and frustrated attempts by the rum runners who were the real consignees to make away with the alcohol. After it had been refused by the Edmundston concern it was taken to the storage yards of the Bangor and Aroostook Railroad at Derby for safe-keeping. While the car was in transit between Fort Kent and Derby attempts were made to get at its contents by boring holes in the bottom of the car but they were unsuccessful as the alcohol was in steel containers. Now the railroad has advertised the denatured alcohol for sale.

The gang has lieutenants who are unknown to the authorities. These men live on either side of the boundary and are able to keep tabs on both Canadian and American officers and tip off the leaders as to their movements. In addition to their rum running they are believed to be carrying on a profitable trade in the way of smuggling American cigarettes and tobacco into Canada.

THE POLICE OF MONCTON ARE VERY ALERT

Arrested a Man About to Call on His Best Girl.

(Moncton Transcript.)

The saying that the path of true love is not all smooth going was borne out by an incident which occurred on Sunday evening when a youthful Romeo went to make a call on his sweetheart.

A little dubious as to his welcome by the parents of the young lady in question, he decided to do a little scouting around the premises before calling. During the course of his observations, he was seen by people in the house, who taking him for a prowler, notified the police.

Evidently deciding that the situation looked pretty good, he was carefully crawling through a hole in the back yard fence to get to the front of the house when an officer sprang out of the gloom and pounced on him.

Shivering and shaking, and firmly believing that a man was a fool to be in love, he was escorted to the house where he was properly identified by the parents as the would-be burglar. With visions of an iron bed and prison bars he was about to be escorted away by the officers, when the lady in the case stepped into the scene and identified him as a personal friend. He was released and went his way a sadder and maybe a wiser young man.

U. N. B. Junior Tea

The girls of the Junior U. N. B. class were at home on Saturday afternoon at the annual Junior tea. The tea was held in the ladies' recreation rooms at the University at 5 o'clock. The rooms were brilliantly decorated to resemble butterfly arbors and the many gorgeous colors used made the scene most picturesque. The hostesses were very charming in their gowns of various hues, their costumes representing butterflies. The many guests were received by Mrs. C. C. Jones and Miss Dorothea Cox, the president of the Junior girls. Delicious refreshments were served by the following Juniors, the Misses Ruth Senna, Frances Gale, Lelia Kee, Isabel Babbitt, Margaret Steeves, Muriel Farris, Bernice Somerville and Margaret Fowler. The ices were cut by Miss G. Senna and Miss Claire Douglass. Mrs. H. O'Donnell and Mrs. Adam Cameron presided at the tea table. Miss Margaret Jean Chestnut ushered the guests to the tea rooms. A short musical program was much enjoyed.

WORTH WHILE PRECAUTIONS FOR MARCH

During this season of the year we usually feel much better physically than at other times. This is largely due to air, which is fresher, giving us more oxygen and a keener sense of well-being. With this added natural pep, we are inclined to take some outdoor exercise. The exercise most frequently indulged in by the average person is walking. I believe that a warning to my readers at this time to take the necessary precautions when engaging in this form of exercise is most essential.

Many forms of rheumatic pains, such as lumbago, sciatica, arthritis, neuritis and similar sicknesses, are very common cold weather ailments. People very often refer to stiff necks, lame backs and that sort of thing as being caused by sitting or sleeping in a draft. If the draft alone were responsible for this then we would all be suffering from similar maladies.

The only time when these so-called drafts have their deadly effect is when the pores of our bodies are open allowing the cold air to penetrate and strike the sensitive tissues covered by the skin.

Therefore, when we are engaged in physical activity that heats the body and sometimes induces perspiration, we must be extremely careful that we do not expose ourselves to cold air until we have cooled off and the pores have closed, thereby protecting the inner body.

As I mentioned in one of my previous articles when walking for exercise, especially at this time of the year, we should always have a bath and a fresh change of clothes immediately after. Those who have been following my menus will notice a change as we are allowed more calories and fuel during the cold weather since we require more building foods than are necessary in the hot weather.

Breakfast: raw fruit in season—about an ounce of bran flakes with cream. Two soft boiled eggs. Cocoa or a coffee substitute.

Luncheon: Clear soup or creamed vegetable soup, vegetable or fruit salad, Cheese or nuts. Cocoa or milk.

Dinner: Broiled lean meat, such as steak or chops, chicken or fish. At least two vegetables. Salad, Fruit, cheese, nuts. Coffee substitute or milk.

Drink two glasses of water between each meal and two between dinner and retiring.

ARCHERS BEAT GOLFERS ON BRITISH LINKS

London, March 22—The bow beat the golf club this afternoon when a freak match between the Cambridge University archery team and the Royalton Golf Club ended in victory for the former by a score of 4½ to 2½. It was the first match of the kind in England.

The golfers played in the ordinary way, and the archers shot arrows over the course, holding out by hitting a hemp ball 4½ inches in diameter, on the green. Each archer took a shot from the point where his arrow descended and carried three sizes of bows for his drive, approach and putt. An arrow landing in a bunker or in the rough cost one stroke and failure to hit the hemp ball with the putt shot necessitated another putt from the same place.

These conditions left the odds all in favor of the archers, who under good conditions are able to send an arrow 100 yards, but the result was doubtful where team play was required. The archers, however easily out-drove their opponents. I. R. P. Heslop, who holds the Cambridge archery record, shot 320 yards down a hill, with the wind behind him, off the seventeenth tee. The archers had to warn the gallery, which had not realized the danger, to stand back from the greens.

SPECIAL ATTRACTION AT GAIETY THEATRE

Colleen Moore's latest comedy success "Irene" at the Gaiety for Monday and Tuesday has a perfection of pictorial beauty seldom seen on the screen. There is a dazzling fashion show, photographed in colors to climax the scenic splendors of an elaborately staged prologue even more interesting and entertaining than the musical comedy which inspired it. Miss Mobe no more is the dashing flapper as in "We Moderns" but is transformed into a lovely being, arrayed, playing with charm and skill the appealing heroine of the story.

Assisting Miss Moore are Lloyd Hughes, George K. Arthur, Charles Murray, Kate Price and countless numbers of Hollywood's beautiful girls. "Irene" is a most spectacular entertaining picture well worth going to see.

"You are an habitual criminal!" roared the judge. "I'll wager you cannot tell of one honest thing you have ever done."

"Sure I can!" retorted the prisoner indignantly. "Didn't I ring up 'No sale' when I opened the cash register in the hold-up?"

New York, March 22—Stamp collectors, revelling in a sale of rare stamps here, ran the price up to $860 for a 1 cent cancelled stamped of the issue of 1851.
