All British Subjects Paused in Silence Today

Honored the Glorious Memory of One Million Men of the Empire Who Were Killed in the Great War—Observance of Armistice Day in the Old Country—Seventeen Million Poppies on Sale—Some Interesting Statistics—600,000 Ex-service Men are Unemployed.

(Special to the Daily Mail by the British United Press)

LONDON, Nov. 11—King George and virtually all his subjects in Great Britain paused in silence for two minutes today, in remembrance of one million men of the empire who were killed or reported missing during the Great War.

At dawn more than 17,000,000 poppies, symbolic of the fields where so many of the deaths occurred, were put on sale in cities, towns and hamlets. The poppies were artificial, made by some of the 600,000 disabled service men who are in Britain today. They ranged in size from small bits of red within the purchasing power of the poorest, to wreaths. Proceeds of the sale will be devoted to the fund sponsored by Earl Haig for the assistance of disabled soldiers and sailors who fought between 1914 and 1918.

PREMIERS' WIVES KEEP EYES OPEN AND LIPS SHUT

London, Nov. 11—The wives of the dominion Premiers here for the Imperial Conference are very much in the public eye, but, like good diplomats, they never talk about their husbands' politics. The wives move around London in long, dark cars bearing the royal arms and marked "Imperial Conference." They are seen mostly at women's clubs and organizations, where they have been made heartily at home.

Mrs. Coates, wife of the New Zealand Premier, is the busiest. She is a Londoner by birth, and, in addition to official receptions, has many personal visits to make after sixteen years' absence. She is said to be a "restful" woman, loves dancing and "does not do a lot of talking."

Mrs. Bruce, of Australia, is not fond of publicity, but helps her husband with his official duties at home. She spends most week ends with her husband at a seaside resort near Melbourne, where they both play golf. Behind her graceful, dignified bearing she is credited with quickness and resource, which are said to have stood her in good stead on many occasions. Here she plays golf when her social engagements permit.

Mrs. Monroe, wife of Newfoundland's Premier, is fond of reading. She has been collecting here a series of books on the history of English counties. At home Mrs. Monroe takes a great interest in women's movements and child welfare.

UKELELE SEXTET REPLACES ORGAN IN THE CHURCH

Pittsburgh, Cal. Nov. 11—Ukuleles pinch-hit for the pipe organ in the community church of this central California town. A ukulele sextet thrums liturgical music and leads the congregation in psalm singing at Sunday services.

The Rev. C. C. Champlin, pastor, admits installation of the "uke" as a source of sacred music is a departure, even though its tones may be as soft as any produced by the psalter, dulcimer, timbrel, sackbut or cymbals associated with sacred music in the Bible. However, the congregation has lauded the pastor's originality.

The ukulele sextet will be increased to a sacred orchestra of 24 pieces.

SNAKESKIN SHOE APPEARS INGAY PAREE

Paris, Nov. 11—Mauve, rose, pale blue, gold and silver were the predominating colors in Women's shoes seen at the exposition of the Paris Leather Week. Black shoes were greatly in the minority.

The exposition represented firms from Germany, Scandinavia, Great Britain, France and the United States. For street and afternoon wear two distinct trends were noticed—one toward very simple models in snakeskin, the other being strapped models in three and four pastel combinations with cubistic designs.

The shoes are solid built and unmarred by open work.

ONE THIRD OF STOCK ALREADY SUBSCRIBED

Mr. Wilkes Making Progress With His Barrel Factory Project.

Mr. W. D. Wilkes of New York, who is promoting a hardwood industry in this city, is making satisfactory progress in soliciting stock subscriptions. Already he has one-third of the required amount in sight and is confident that the full amount will be forthcoming in a short time. It was at the suggestion of the C. P. R. authorities that Mr. Wilkes decided to establish the industry in Fredericton. They represented to him that there was an abundance of hardwood in this locality easy of access. Mr. Wilkes proposes to establish a plant that will turn out 350,000 barrels a year and consume about one million feet of lumber. He says that it will be an all the year round industry. No special machinery will be required in the plant, other than that used in saw mills and woodworking factories, and men who have had experience in such places will be well equipped for work in the proposed new factory. In the manufacture of barrels such woods as beech, birch, ash and maple can be utilized. One great economy that can be affected in connection with the barrel Mr. Wilkes proposes to manufacture is in the shipment of empties, as ten of the barrels folded up will occupy only the space of one ordinary barrel.

"On the ninth of April, 1917, I saw Canadian unity. I saw men from those fine old battalions of British Columbia shaking hands with men from those fine old battalions of Nova Scotia on top of Vimy Ridge, unconquered and unconquerable, telling each other that every man was as good as another. That ideal of our corps was a fine ideal worth cherishing."

Viscount Byng concluded with a plea for the setting aside of personal ambition and individualism and "working for the same big purpose as you have worked with me in those four years."
