

WHITTEMORE REFUSES TO TELL HOW LOOT WAS DISPOSED OF

New York, March 31.—Although he has talked freely about murder and robbery in his confession to the district attorney, Richard Reese Whittemore, "the killer," has refused to tell what became of the $1,000,000 worth of jewels stolen by his gang during the last year, or to help the authorities recover any part of the loot, according to information which leaked out of the criminal courts building today.

Under Dist. Atty. Banton's agreement with the gunman that his statement was not to be made public so official information about the contents of the confession was available. It was learned on reliable authority, however, that Whittemore had insisted that he did not know what became of the booty and that he himself was now absolutely "broke," having spent his share of the profits of his crime syndicate in luxurious living.

Not Telling Whole Truth.

Despite his promise to give a complete and truthful account of his criminal activities in return for the district attorney's promise to set free his wife, Margaret Whittemore, it is believed that Whittemore has not been telling the whole truth.

Officials think that he knows all about the "fences" to whom the stolen jewels were sold and that he has cached thousands of dollars some place where either he or his wife can get possession of the money if either gets out of prison. Another subject on which the district attorney will try to force Whittemore to change his story, it is under, is that of Jacob and Leon Kraemer.

He is said to have been trying to "save the Kraemers" in all that he has said, especially with respect to the charges that they laid the plans for the Whittemore stick-ups through their acquaintance with jewelers and that they disposed of the loot through their connection with fences.

His object in trying to protect the Kraemers, according to detectives, is that Jacob Kraemer is the key to the problem of getting back any of the loot and of seizing any of the proceeds of the robberies that may have been "salted away" by the gang. The Kraemers themselves have refused to tell a word about what they did with the jewels.

One of Whittemore's motives in making a full confession of his part in the New York hold-ups according to officials is the same which actuated Gerald Chapman in trying to get the supreme court to rule that he should finish his unexpired term in Atlanta penitentiary before he is hung in Connecticut for the murder of a New Britain policeman. Whittemore knows that if the New York authorities turn him over to the Maryland authorities he will surely

ATTRACTIVE BOOKLET ISSUED BY THE BANK OF MONTREAL ON THE HOG AS SOURCE OF REVENUE

"When well managed the hog is one of the best sources of farm income. Hogs have paid for many a farm. We can sell hogs at any time of the year and almost at any age and weight."

This is one of the introductory statements in a remarkably interesting and useful booklet entitled "Hogs for Profit," just issued by the Bank of Montreal, and offered free to farmers at any branch of that institution.

For some time past the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa has been doing commendable work all over Canada in encouraging the production of hogs as a supplementary source of income for farmers, and the booklet will admirably assist this movement by making available to those interested plain and detailed descriptions, illustrated by over 200 photographs and diagrams, of the guiding principles of successful and profitable hog raising.

While the booklet is of a general character, covering methods under a wide variety of climatic conditions, particular attention both as regards text and illustrations, has been paid to conditions pertaining to hog raising in Canada, and a special introduction has been contributed by Mr. G. B. Rothwell, B. S. A., Dominion Animal Husbandman at the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

Mr. Rothwell gives an outline of the principal breeds and types and the accepted methods of feeding in Canada, and offers general advice in regard to the principles described in the booklet.

Every phase of hog raising is pictured in the booklet, both by word and by photograph, the subjects dealing with the selection of sires and mothers, the choice of breeds and types, and the care of young pigs from the time they are born until they are ready for the market. Feeding, housing, the prevention of ailments and diseases, and the production of particular types for special markets, are all described; in fact there is no phase of the industry on which the best scientific knowledge is not made available in plain, everyday language.

As the booklet says, the hog will produce more meat from 100 pounds of feed than any animal; it multiplies rapidly; and it will not only provide food for the farmer's family, but is one of the best sources of farm income.

A free copy of the booklet may be obtained at the nearest local branch of the bank. Distribution will not be confined to the customers of the bank, but the booklet is for the benefit of the country as a whole.

DOCTOR'S WIFE IN FRAUD AND ALSO IN LOVE TANGLE

New York, March 1.—Dr. Louis after an attempt to take their pictures at police headquarters.

On Dempsey's Nose.

Dr. Berne told reporters he had remodelled Dempsey's nose and had performed the second operation of Fanny Brice's nose when she had it straightened.

Mrs. Berne, who returned to her husband after the elopement with Rosenthal, collapsed while she was being questioned yesterday and it was then that Dr. Berne assured her of his support.

"I know you were only a tool of Rosenthal's," he said.

Later he told reporters that his wife had met Rosenthal while the doctor was on a trip to Germany, and in February, 1925, eloped with him, taking $45,000 from a safe deposit box. She returned to Dr. Berne after two months and was forgiven. The doctor gave her $25,000 in jewels and other gifts which later went to Rosenthal, who had resumed his friendship, police say.

"I forgave her because I know she is a good woman," Dr. Berne said.

Mrs. Berne, Jaffe and Rosenthal are alleged to have deposited $200 to Mrs. Berne's credit in the American Bank and Trust Company. The Central National Bank and the First National Bank of St. Petersburg, Fla., after which she passed checks against the account to the amount of $30,000.

A. F. Miller, assistant cashier of the American Bank & Trust Company who has been working with federal agents on the case for several months, said that, while only $30,000 are involved in specific charges against the trio inquiries have led him to believe that the total amount is nearer $100,000.

Rosenthal also faces a charge of violation of the Mann act, growing out of his relations with Mrs. Berne and Jaffe, is charged with illegally possessing firearms as the result of the discovery of two pistols in his apartment.

A Pimply Face Is Unsightly
