DEMOCRATS MAKE GAINS IN UNITED STATES, RETURNS STILL VERY INCOMPLETE

Republicans Will Control Lower House and Probably the Senate Though Losing Several Seats in Latter — Al. Smith Elected Governor in New York — Democrats Leading in Massachusetts.

New York, Nov. 2—Returns late tonight indicated that the Democrats stood a good chance of gaining seven seats in the Senate at present controlled by the Republicans. They must make nine gains to secure control of the Upper House which has a membership of 96.

Democrats were running strong in Illinois, Kentucky, Missouri, Ohio, Indiana, Massachusetts and New York, at present held by the Republicans, with the far western states still to report.

The New York World, Democrat, claims gains for the Democratic Party in Kentucky and Oklahoma, where Senator Ernst and Harrell are the Republican incumbents, and also asserts that the defeat of Senator Butler in Massachusetts is certain. Butler was endorsed by President Coolidge—the only official endorsement of a Senatorial candidate by the chief executive during the campaign.

Early this morning the New York Times, Independent, conceded the election of 17 Republicans and 12 Democrats to the United States Senate. Seven were listed as doubtful. The Times said:

"As a result of yesterday's elections the Republican party is assured of maintaining control of the House of Representatives in the seventieth, or the next congress, whose term will begin March 4, 1927, and while the indications are they will also continue to control the Senate, their majority in that body will be materially reduced with a possibility that later returns of senatorial figures will give the Democrats control.

Balance of Power.

"This means, so far as the Senate is concerned, that the Republican insurgent, remnant of the old La Follette bloc with the additions of some others classified as Republicans, probably will hold the balance of power and by combination with the Democrats will be able to determine legislation.

"It is by no means certain, however, the Republicans will continue to control the Senate in the next Congress. They have suffered a loss of at least four seats, with the probabilities that this decrease in Republican membership of the next Senate will be even greater.

"The outcome of the Senatorial contest in six states is in doubt, and the Democrats may make gains in some of these."

Al. Smith Elected.

New York, Nov. 2—Alfred E. Smith has been elected Governor of New York for the fourth time on the basis of returns from approximately three-fourths of the state.

Reports from 5,547 districts out of 7,818 including 2,300 out of 3,138 in New York City gave him a lead of 234,841 over his Republican opponent, Ogden L. Mills. The vote was: Smith, 1,159,108; Mills, 924,265.

228 Seats Heard From.

New York, Nov. 2—Only a little more than half of the House of Representatives elected today had been accounted for in returns received up to midnight.

The exact number was 228, including 130 Democrats and 98 Republicans. Only a net gain of two out of the 36 the Democrats need to gain control of the house had been recorded—one in New York and one in Pennsylvania.

Returns from the doubtful Senatorial contests come in slowly. Both the New York Times and the New York American, in early editions stated that Robert Wagner, Democrat, had won over Senator James Wadsworth, Jr. The New York Herald-Tribune, a staunch Republican paper, conceded the race was close.

Election Conceded.

Senator William M. Butler, chairman of the Republican National Committee, whose candidacy was endorsed by President Coolidge, conceded the election of David L. Walsh, Democrat, in Massachusetts. This is a Democratic gain.

Senator Frank B. Willis, Republican, had forged ahead of former Senator Atlee Pomerene, Democrat, in Ohio, returns from an eighth of the state giving him 66,988 to 61,782 for his opponent.

Returns from one-fifth of Missouri gave Representative Harry B. Hawes a lead of approximately 20,000 over Senator G. H. Williams, Republican, in the contest for the unexpired term of the late Senator Selden P. Spencer. Hawes had 96,300 and Williams 75,784.

Has Commanding Lead.

Representative William S. Vare, of Philadelphia, had a commanding lead over former Secretary of Labor William B. Wilson in the Pennsylvania Senatorial fight. With about an eighth of the seats in, the Republican candidate was more than 90,000 ahead.

George E. Brennan, Democratic National Committeeman from Illinois, was 38,000 votes in front of Frank L. Smith, Republican, in the Illinois contest for the Senate, but most of the returns were from Cook county, a Brennan stronghold and Smith's friends said the lead there would be more than offset by the down state vote.

Meagre Returns.

At midnight only meagre returns had been received from California, Washington, Oregon, Utah, Idaho, Nevada, Colorado and Maryland.

Although the Democrats had gained only two seats in the new House out of the 228 reported, Chairman Oldfield of the Democratic Congressional campaign committee still was claiming that the new Congress would be Democratic.

Besides the returns from the solid south where the Democrats only had serious opposition in a few districts, the 228 contests decided included those involving most of the House seats in New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Illinois.

Close Contest in Indiana.

A close contest for each of the two senatorial seats in Indiana was forecast by the midnight returns with Senator James W. Watson, Republican, leading Albert Stump, Democrat, by 10,000 with only one-eighth, of the state accounted for. Senator Arthur R. Robinson was 8,000 ahead of his Democratic candidate, Evans Wollen. In Oklahoma, Elmer Thomas had a lead of 9,000 with about one-fifth of the state reported, while in Kentucky, Alben P. Barkley was approximately 1,000 ahead of Senator Richard P. Ernst, Republican, on the face of incomplete returns from 43 out of the state's 120 counties.

Republican Behind.

In Arizona, Senator Ralph H. Cameron, Republican for re-election and instigator of the Arizona slush fund investigation, trailed Congressman Carl Hayden, his Democratic opponent, in early returns.

Governor-General W. P. Hunt, Democrat, seeking his sixth term, was running neck and neck with E. S. Clark, Republican.

In Colorado Charles W. Waterman, counsel for the President's oil board and Republican candidate for Senator took an early lead over former Governor W. E. Sweet, Democrat.

BOOTLEGACY OF LIBERTY SAYS DECASSERES

New York, Nov. 2—Shakespeare, Walt Whitman, Edgar Allan Poe, Ralph Waldo Emerson and August Strindberg and many other "immortals" would all have voted "Yes" on the prohibition modification referendum Benjamin DeCasseres, essayist, told an audience at the Hotel Brevoort assembled under the auspices of the Fifth-ay Bookshop.

"Shakespeare was an ale-souse; Hawthorne was a wine bibber; Whitman was a Broadway cellar tank; Poe was a grand old periodical; Verlaine was an absinthe soak; Maeterlinck is a connoisseur on wines; Emerson never passed up the belly-warming grape; Thomas Hardy never turned down a night out in his younger days; Ibsen couldn't work without his brandy; D'Annunzio's mouth is the great dipper; James Branch Cabell loves the cup; Lord Dunsany drinks rare wines; Victor Hugo could swill like Bryan muzzled food; Flaubert and De Maupassant could drink each other under the table," he said.

"Our fathers left us a legacy of liberty," he continued. "Those who now legislate for the elite of the country have left us a bootlegacy or liberty."

CYR HOTEL AT ST. LEONARD IS GIVEN RAID

Chief Inspector McFarlane and Others Made Raid—Found Bag of Liquor—Rest Removed.

Hartland, Nov. 2—Chief Inspector W. L. McFarlane, accompanied by Inspectors Berube, Wilson, Saunders and Constable Sullivan, raided several places in this district yesterday and were successful in locating liquor.

A raid was made on the Cyr Hotel at St. Leonards, resulting in the seizure of a bagful of liquor. The proprietor had been tipped off that the inspectors were coming and managed to get the rest out of sight. This is the second time within a short period that a raid on the Cyr Hotel has been successful.

License Cancelled.

At Grand Falls, William Perry had his beer license cancelled.

At the boundary line houses at Fort Fairfield, out from Andover, four raids were made on suspected places. The raids resulted in the inspectors seizing slot machines at Terrence's, Napp and Shaw's and Mrs. Bouyer's. Six slot machines were seized at Terrence's, four at Mrs. Bouyer's and three at Napp and Shaw's. One of the machines taken at Mrs. Bouyer's is said to have contained about $450. It is not known just how much money was in the other machines.

LOCUSTS ARE TERRIBLE PEST IN SOUTH AFRICA

The locusts are one of the most destructive pests of the Middle East. Our grasshoppers belong to the locust family, and the destruction they are capable of is well known to the farmers of any district which they have visited in large numbers. In the Middle East—Egypt, Palestine, Syria, Arabia and Mesopotamia, or Iraq as that ancient land is now called, and in South Africa, the locusts often appear in swarms that for numbers are like the sand of the sea shore. With the burning south wind they come up from southern Persia and the deserts of Arabia in clouds so large and dense as to produce the effect by the sight of the whole atmosphere being filled with the insects on all sides and to a great height. The noise of their flight resembles that of a heavy rainfall. The sky is darkened and the light of the sun is considerably weakened. Within two days they will devour all plant life in the district in which they alight. Happily they live but a short time. In the Bible there are frequent allusions to locusts—the fearful noise of their flight; their irresistible progress; their entering dwellings and devouring, even the woodwork of the houses; their not flying in the night; their being destroyed in the sea in great numbers.

Officials in the British administration in Iraq are waging war upon the locusts by means of a discovery of a British entomologist, whose work is recorded in a report to the council of the League of Nations on affairs in Iraq. It has been found that the locusts are subject to the ravages of a parasite that lays an egg inside the egg-case of the female locust, and this egg subsequently hatches and feeds on the locust-eggs. The work of the entomologist is to further the increase of this parasite.

When unchecked, locusts multiply at an alarming rate. In 1881 the locust eggs collected and destroyed in Cyprus amounted to 800 tons. The vast swarms of these insects are very destructive, in South Africa, where in 1906 the damage was estimated at about $5,000,000.

DEANS OF GIRLS DEFEND MODERN FEMININE TYPE

One Says Cheap Rubbish is Published — Other Says Girls are Pure and Wholesome.

Boston, Nov. 2—"The majority of girls want the high and fine thing," said Miss Mary E. Tobin, dean of girls at the Lowell High School, who yesterday afternoon addressed the Massachusetts Parent Teacher Association at the Hotel Bellevue.

"A furor is created about the girls who pet and drink and smoke," she said. "Youth is led to believe that what is written and said about them applies to the majority of girls. They are led to believe that if they don't pet, don't drink and don't smoke, they are in the minority."

"As dean of girls, I know that the majority are serious-minded, idealistic young women, and no matter what cheap rubbish is published about girls I know by experience it is not true."

"I am nearly to the grandmother stage and I can remember in my day when I went to school there was a furor about a girl who drank wine from her slipper at a party."

"There are a few girls who do reprehensible things. There probably always will be, but we need not think by that, that every girl is going the same way. If we have sense enough to impress upon the girls that love for sincere work, for value of the completed task, love of learning for learning's sake, obedience to law and home things are the most real things in life, the majority of fine, high-thinking girls will be greater."

Must be "Unshockable."

Salem, Nov. 2—"We must be also utterly unshockable while dealing with modern youth," said Miss Jane Louise Mesick, dean of Simmons College, in an address on "The Modern Girl," delivered at a meeting of the Salem Society for the Higher Education of Women, at the home of Mrs. Nathaniel F. Perkins yesterday afternoon.

"The young girl of today is too much talked about," she said. "Although she smokes, uses lipstick, wears very short skirts, is not careful as to how she sits, and often uses objectionable language, the modern girl is as pure and wholesome as have been girls of other generations," was her statement. She also believes her to be healthier and likely to have healthier children.

She believes the younger generation is the "victim of circumstances," due to the "loosening of authority," the lack of religious authority, the change in the home of today from that of a generation or two ago, to the great number of pleasures, great wealth, and the automobile. She believes, however, that it will work out its own salvation.
