Of Interest to the Women

LINGERIE NOW MUCH
BEDECKED WITH LACE.

As far as quantity goes, we wear less and less of the lovely, lingerie that is the order of the day, but for that very reason what we do wear is more and more beautiful in proportion. When you have but a few pieces of underwear to consider then you can afford to give it lots of time and attention and lots of money as a background, too. At any rate, you are spreading your material over a wider surface and therefore that material naturally becomes more beautiful.

The step-in chemises are perfect little works of art. They shine with lace and insertions. They drip ribbons and rosebuds and they are made so intricately with hand stitchings and bits of embroidery that they become marvels of workmanship all by themselves. They are rather more popular than the little sets of bloomers and vests, though the latter are preferred by some girls who plan their clothes that way.

After this part of the underpinnings has been considered there comes the slip that is worn underneath the dress. This is becoming an elaborate affair for by reason of the nature of the newer dresses it can be a fuller thing, at least around the bottom. Pleatings of chiffon, ruchings of lace, inserts of accordion-pleated crepe all go to make up a hem line that is most fascinating. And you can see that since this line is very apt to become conspicuous because of the short dresses, it is nice when its character is such that it charms as it meets the public gaze.

Of course, these underslips are most specifically for the thinner lighter sorts of dresses. They are needed in this respect when oftentimes a thicker dress can do away with a slip entirely. So it often happens that the underslip is designed as a part of the thin dress itself and in this case, it is usually a very beautiful thing to look at.

The negligees fall into this class. They are the filmiest things of all, though those who handle and design them do tell us that the younger generation prefers pajamas to the floaty sort of becomingness that was usually considered essential for any form of negligee. Along with their more tailored outdoor clothes they have taken to lounging clothes of the same general character though the colors and the satiny, silky materials are far from anything hard and fast and mannish.

The chiffon and lace negligee of the present is a short thing. It has no trains and sweeping-the-floor effects. It follows more closely the general lines laid down by fashions in dresses and while the length of its skirt in general reaches the knee still, like the evening dress, it may show a swinging panel or a trailing sash just as a bit of relief and a sort of concession to things as they were.

Even nightgowns are shorter and these follow the ways of the chemises with beautiful bits of hand work upon them combined with inserts of net and chiffon.

SOUTHAMPTON COUPLE THIRTY YEARS MARRIED

A large number of friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. Allan Fox, Lower Southampton, N. B., on the evening of Friday March 19th. This being the thirtieth anniversary of their wedding day, to help them celebrate the event. Included in the gathering were the members of the young ladies Sunday School class, who have Mrs. Fox for their teacher.

Mr. and Mrs. Fox were taken completely by surprise, and this part of the program was nicely carried out by the members of the Pokiok Church choir, having gathered as usual for their weekly rehearsal; while just a little later all the others arrived at the same time.

After a pleasant social hour had been spent, and singing and instrumental music had been indulged in, the entire gathering was called to order, and Mr. and Mrs. Fox invited to step forward. Their Pastor, Rev. J. C. Peacock, presented them in behalf of the friends gathered with an address of appreciation of their loyalty to the Church and their faithfulness in their support of everything pertaining to the welfare of the community. Then as more tangible proof of appreciation of those who had gathered as well as some who had found it impossible to be present, he presented them with a beautiful Coleman lamp, a fancy cushion and a purse of money.

Although taken so much by surprise, a few pleasing remarks were made by Mr. Fox, in behalf of himself and Mrs. Fox, thanking them all for their thoughtfulness and their kindness; while Mrs. Fox also thanked them all, and extended a hearty invitation to return and share the light their new lamp had brought; both showed very feelingly their heartfelt appreciation of the kindness thus shown.

Before despersing, refreshments were served by the ladies present which were highly enjoyed by all, and many good wishes were extended to Mr. and Mrs. Fox for as many more years at least of pleasant life together.

If feminine America spent $390,000,000 last year in beauty shops, as it is now estimated she put several new wrinkles into her pocket-book.
