STRIKERS IN GREAT BRITAIN SHOW SIGNS OF DISCONTENT; NO SETTLEMENT WITH MINERS

London, May 13—How Great Britain will come through her greatest industrial upheaval, was, if anything, more of an enigma tonight than it had been at any time previously since the strike began.

The country woke up today to find the rosy hopes of last night completely dashed—partly, it would seem through discontent of the strikers at the way the strike had been called off, but more through the disposition of many of the big employers to insist on making new arrangements with the workers before permitting resumption of work.

It is even asserted that some of the big railways and other concerns contemplated enforcing a reduction in wages, though, according to the statement of Premier Baldwin in the House of Commons who warned the nation to be suspicious of propaganda and misleading rumors, some of these reports especially regarding the railways were unfounded.

One big railway group tonight officially denied the rumors that they intended to reduce wages or otherwise penalize the men. Notwithstanding the fact that the general strike has been called off, it, in reality, still persists in as great force as before. The miners never have consented to resume and because of the attitude of the employers and by reason of other circumstances in the two big industries, the railway men and the transportation workers, are ordered to remain out until further instructions. The situation in the newspaper field is without change, most of the papers still issuing in skeleton form.

Agreement Delayed

No agreement has yet been reached by the railway managers and executives of the railway unions on the question of the re-employment of strikers. A conference on this subject adjourned at a late hour without a decision and will be resumed tomorrow.

The miners' executive, after conferring for an hour this evening, went to Downing street and were closeted with Premier Baldwin for a considerable time. The members of the executive returned to headquarters and refused to divulge anything, but it was officially announced that there had been a general discussion on the present situation. No mention was made of any possible plans for adjusting the disputes between the miners and mine owners which preceded the general strike.

Premier's Appeal

Avoidance of vindictiveness and a conciliatory spirit in settling the greatest industrial conflict ever known in the United Kingdom was urged by Premier Baldwin in the House of Commons today when the subject of the general strike was up for debate. At the same time he pointed out the extreme difficulty of reconciling the government's pledges that no harm would come to the volunteers who had aided the nation in the crisis with the need of reinstating every striker.

Ramsay MacDonald, former Labor Premier, in opening the debate deplored the fact that bitterness had been infused into the relations between employers and men since yesterday. He earnestly appealed for efforts so that advantage could be taken of the present position to establish good relations on a broader and firmer foundation than existed before. He hoped it was the desire of parliament primarily to declare to the whole nation that it wanted no crushing or humiliation, and that it lifted its voice in behalf of healing, restoration and restitution.

Like After Great War

Premier Baldwin compared the situation with that after the Great War, when the problems of the first few months were far more difficult than those they had to face during the war. The problem to be thrashed out between the trades unions and employers' associations of reinstating the men while doing no injustice to the men who helped the nation in its time of ordeal, called for real statesmanship. He argued that the very present dislocation of the country's trade alone required that there should be no bitterness or delay in getting the industries started again.

"There are some who like sailing in troubled waters," he said. "Let us get the waters calm as soon as we can lest the work of centuries be lost."

Protests Gazette Stand

J. H. Thomas, the chief Labor leader in the strike, like Mr. MacDonald, strongly protested against the attitude of the British Gazette, the Government's official newspaper, which used as the caption of its announcement of the calling off of the strike "total surrender."

"Imagine the bitterness of that," Mr. Thomas exclaimed, "to two millions of men who had refused to surrender to the Germans."

The Labor leader, detailing many cases of employers refusing to reinstate the men except under penalizing terms, begged the employers in the House and elsewhere to give effect to the Premier's broadcast speech, which showed a magnificent spirit.

Lloyd George concluding the debate, welcomed the Prime Minister's wise words and declared there was no insuperable obstacle, with good will on both sides, to agreement.

The Premier said that the soreness and friction must exist temporarily, but there could be no greater disaster than anarchy in the transportation world.

TWO BABY BANDITS PACK HE-MAN GUNS

Chicago, May 12—Early today Lieut. Ed Birmingham and his detective squad saw a couple of youngsters come out of an alley. Both boys looked to be on the sunny side of ten years so the Lieutenant stopped to investigate.

"What are you youngsters doing out at this hour of the night?" he inquired.

"Aw, shut up before I knock you on the nut!" snapped one.

"Oh, I guess you're a couple of tough guys, huh?" inquired Birmingham.

"Yea, plenty tough. You climb outa dat can and we'll show you just how tough we are."

So Birmingham climbed out of the police automobile and from the hips of the youngsters came two "he-man" pistols.

"Now get back in that car like a nice bull before we ventilate ya" the youngsters saluted him.

Birmingham, faced with climbing back into the car in a hurry or making a seizure of the two guns, made the seizure. Also he got a couple of punches.

"What do you kids mean carrying guns around? Don't you know you're liable to hurt somebody?"

"Yeh, and that somebody is liable to be you or some of these other wise cracking bulls, if you don't watch out," one of the youngsters said.

So Birmingham hustled them to the police station.

There police found seven bracelets and twelve dollars in the lads'

M'MAHON WAS ACQUITTED AT ST. ANDREWS

St. Andrews, May 13—The Charlotte County Circuit Court, presided over by Mr. Justice Byrne, continued its sittings here today in the criminal case of The King vs. Dennis McMahon charged with causing bodily harm by wantonly and furiously driving an automobile in August last.

The evidence was concluded at this morning's session of the court, after which Mr. Hughes, on behalf of the accused, and Earle B. Smith for the prosecution, addressed the jury, followed by the judge's charge. The jury, after deliberating for two hours and forty-five minutes, brought in a verdict of not guilty.

The case of The King vs. Lloyd Johnson, charged with murdering James Lord at Deer Island on December 5 last, will be commenced tomorrow morning. Earle B. Smith, St. Stephen, is prosecuting for the crown and the prisoner is represented by N. Marks Mills, K. C., St. Stephen, and James B. McNair, of the firm of Winslow & McNair, Fredericton.

pockets. They also found that the youngsters' names were James Lee, S. and Edwin Knapp, 10 and they found out, they said, that they were really dealing with a couple of "tough guys."

"Where did you get this stuff?" the boys were asked.

"That's easy. Where's we get it? Find out yourself. You ain't so smart," Edwin said.

The police found that Edwin and James had robbed the home of Roy West, they said.

BLOODY RIOT IN THE STREETS OF WARSAW

Eighteen Reported Killed and Eighty Wounded — Situation is Serious.

Prague, Czecho-Slovakia, May 13—A fierce struggle has been going on in Warsaw around Belevedere Palace where the government has taken refuge.

Late despatches from the Polish capital report 18 killed, including two officers and 80 wounded in the streets of the city. Former President Pilsudski is in command of the revolting troops in control of the capital and the situation has been greatly aggravated by the arrival in the outskirts of Warsaw of two regiments from Posen to aid the ousted government.

A manifesto by President Wopciowski thrown from an airplane declares that a majority of the army sides with the government, and that troops are on their way to Warsaw to engage the Pilsudski forces. It appeals for support for the lawful government.

Rebels Hold Inner City.

The inner city is completely in the hands of the Pilsudski adherents and the marshal with his staff has his headquarters in the Saxon Palace. The government apparently is endeavoring to delay negotiations until it is able to converge the greater number of its forces in Warsaw. An aviation corps has reported for service and an airtight embargo on telephonic and telegraphic communications has been imposed throughout Poland to prevent Pilsudski from mobilizing his followers. The president's guard and loyal government troops are concentrated in Belevedere. In addition to armored cars the government troops have two light batteries. The spacious parks which surround the presidential palace has been the scene of considerable fighting.

Resignation Demanded.

In an ultimatum Marshal Pilsudski demands the resignation of Premier Witos and the appointment of non-political heads of the war and foreign ministers, together with the withdrawal of all decrees promulgated by the Witos administration.

Up to the present the socialists have declined to join Pilsudski, and the government has, therefore, been able to keep the railways operating with socialist labor.

SPECIAL ATTRACTION AT GAIETY THEATRE

"The Far Cry" is the photoplay at the Gaiety for Friday and Saturday. It is a story of the long way from decent living and good habits taken by Americans who leave home to live abroad. Blanche Sweet is the heroine of this drama and represents a wilful, spoiled American girl.

There is a modern imitation of Nero's banquet done in color and a fire in the Frenchman's palace breaks up the party. The entire party and conflagration are filmed in pigments and this imparts some special interest to the picture.

Jack Mulhall plays the lover and Myrtle Stedman and Hobart Bosworth have important roles.
