THE WINTER SEASON.

Wordsworth wrote: "Stern Winter loves a dirge-like sound." Maybe so. There is no disposition to argue with the ghost of an immortal poet. But Winter will hear a lot of sounds that are not dirge-like. There will be happy cries and shrieks of merriment. For those who are physically fit, and want to keep fit, Winter is more than a season to observe from the frosted windows of a warm room.

Winter should be met half way. Give him a good fight. As one writer says: "Offer cheek and jaw to his worst in brisk walks. Dare him with skates or on the corner lot in a snowballing contest with the kids. . . . Properly prepared in dress and otherwise for rough work, hand Winter blow for blow." That is good advice.

Of course, Winter will bring many gray days, days the color of bean soup, but there will be others more inspiring, or thrilling, if that word is preferable. We have already had samples of snow and temperatures that made ears tingle. There will be more in plenty. But one who give the season back as good as it sends will be repaid in healthful reactions.

To those who do little save sit and dread the season that is upon us it will be long and dreary. Give Winter a battle and he will respect you.

THE LATE ALD. ROSS.

The sudden death of Ald. D. W. Ross, a prominent physician and prospective candidate for the mayoralty, has greatly shocked the community and is deeply regretted by all classes of citizens. Ald. Ross was not a native born son, but had made his home here for a number of years. A busy professional life did not prevent him from taking an active interest in the affairs of the community. As a representative of Carleton Ward in the City Council and as a trustee of the Victoria Public Hospital he rendered valuable service to the city and his death will create a vacancy which is going to be difficult to fill. The heartfelt sympathy of the community will be extended to the bereaved widow and family.

ESKIMOS AND COLDS.

In the regions of the far north Eskimos who do not have contact with the white race and civilization do not have colds. When they come down where the atmosphere is less frigid and into closer association with the folks who think they know what civilization is, they fall victims to the diseases that scourge the rest of us. Diphtheria, scarlet fever and measles are unknown among the Polar Eskimos. Civilization is not an unmixed blessing. We pay a price for warm houses, our high powered furnaces, and our soft living.

REAL FREEDOM

The greatest freedom in the world is the freedom to think and say as you really choose. Freedom of the real sort doesn't mean freedom from work or worry or effort or long hours or rough, hard roads. All those things are a part of life and may be a part of life at its best. To be liberated from physical hardships is often anything but a blessing. But to be so situated that you can not speak for yourself or act for yourself in matters of the mind is to be bound to the most irksome and deadly sort of slavery.

A modern feminists of cynical turn of mind, as a modern feminist should be, says "A woman's husband generally is merely a windfall and no criterion of her taste in gentlemen," and we're glad to know that; we didn't think some apparently very discriminating women could have such lapses in taste.

His wife accuses Noah Beery of carrying his villain stuff from the films to his home. And that's not nice. One can easily see that Beery's stuff, which makes him a good actor for the screen, would make him a bad actor at home.

A large number of persons talking together will create enough electrical energy to light an incandescent lamp. Oddly enough, however, the more the talkers are lit up, the less light they will throw on a subject.

The height of something or other is illustrated in the prospectus of an oil company in the Southwest, where it says that there are very "probable possibilities" of oil in the region.

Now is the time when the little boy who scoffed at the idea of Santa Claus a month ago decides it's better policy to profess renewed faith, the oftener the better—and the louder.

Life is like this: The people who have money enough to put their coal in during the summer months when it costs less also have money enough to spend the winter elsewhere.

Chicago woman applying for divorce said the more noise she made the sounder her husband slept. Fancy his sleep being sounder than her noise!

A French clown has been given the degree of Doctor of Philosophy. Well, we imagine it takes a lot of philosophy to keep on clowning.

In Norway, we read, vaccination is not compulsory, but one must undergo it in order to vote. Politics on the Scandinavian peninsula must be fierce.
