LARGE ATTENDANCE AT THE N. B. TEACHERS INSTITUTE WHICH IS MEETING AT SAINT JOHN

Hon. C. D. Richards, Chief Supt. Carter, R. B. Wallace and Inspector Moore Among the Speakers—Many Matters of Importance to the Profession Are Touched Upon.

St. John, June 28—With an attendance of approximately 900, said to be the largest gathering in the history of the organization, the Thirty-second Conference of the Teachers' Institute of New Brunswick was opened in St. Vincent's Auditorium, Wednesday morning, and will continue for three days. Addresses were given during the first day's session by Dr. W. S. Carter, LL.D., D.C.L., Chief Superintendent of Education for New Brunswick; L. A. Moore, Inspector of Schools, Woodstock, N. B.; R. B. Wallace, M.A., of the Education Office, Fredericton; Miss Florence Hale, State Supervisor of Rural Schools of Maine, and Dr. S. A. Worrell, Superintendent of Schools, Saint John.

More teachers were arriving in the city Wednesday evening and it was expected that the registration today would total nearly 1,000. The delegates were extended a hearty welcome on behalf of the province at a public meeting in the auditorium Wednesday evening by Hon. Charles D. Richards, acting premier and minister of Lands and Mines. Addresses were given by Dr. Peter Sandford, of the Ontario College of Education, University of Toronto; Miss Jean A. Browne, of Toronto, National Director of Junior Red Cross and Miss Florence Hale.

Mr. Moore in his address, stressed the value of larger units for administration and taxation in the province. "Why," he asked, "can not the country be taken as the unit in raising all the money needed for schools, with the exception of provincial grants to teachers and why can there not be the same degree of co-operation in school financing in the county as in the city?"

Taxation Matters

"I realize the difficulties, however, and one of these, as I foresee it, is the necessity of a revision of our system of valuation of property," said Mr. Moore. "I there is to be a uniform rate of taxation there must be a uniform basis of assessment. Another difficulty that would present itself, would be to determine the dividing line between the authority of the board of trustees and the county board, which would necessarily come into existence."

R. B. Wallace, of Fredericton, in opening the discussion on Mr. Moore's paper, declared that there was no reason why the country child should not have as many privileges as the city child relative to education, referring to the fact that despite obstacles, encountered many of the greatest men of the day had been born and received their early education in the country. He considered the system outlined by Mr. Moore and many possibilities and suggested that it would be an opportunity for someone to achieve fame as a statesman by proposing and carrying through legislation for larger units of administration and taxation in New Brunswick.

Model School House

Miss Florence Hale in a brilliant and scholarly address described the model country school house and declared that if the teachers would become more alive to the situation it should go far toward solving the problem.

Dr. Carter's Address

Dr. Carter, in opening his address, said the interest of teachers seemed to grow with the progression of education. There had been both growth and progress since the last convention two years ago at Fredericton, which marked the largest assembly of teachers in the history of the provincial institutes. He anticipated the present meeting would not be less notable and that the program would prove stimulating and instructive. So large had the attendance become that there were few auditoriums sufficiently commodious to accommodate all.

Suggests History

Never have county institutes been more largely attended than in the last two or three years, and he hoped that someone would undertake a history of this institute at an early date. In all county conventions community singing had been a feature, and increased interest in teachers' institutes had been accentuated by a greater devotion of teachers in their work, larger salaries, and the payment of higher fees for employment of specialists.

The present status in education was very satisfactory and justified optimism. Dr. Carter asserted. Never had there been greater expenditure for school buildings and equipment. Salaries, while not adequate in all cases, were better than ever before.

Best Pension System

"I believe we have the best pension system in Canada, commensurate with the cost to our teachers," Dr. Carter emphasized. It was a satisfaction that some of the school boards, notably Saint John, had been willing to provide supplementary pensions, so that today some teachers had the prospect of retirement of a larger allowance than they obtained as salary not many years ago.

Notwithstanding withdrawal of loans to Normal School students, the number of applications exceeded the institution's capacity. Supply of teachers, exceeded demand, and there had never been so many applications for Grammar School Licenses. With a limited number of positions, many had to seek employment elsewhere. There were candidates for third class licenses.

Dr. Carter next took up the subject of proposed revised courses of instruction and text books, following conferences of Maritime educational authorities on uniformity in texts and courses in the three provinces. Key textbooks were now mainly the same, but New Brunswick had retained some texts found satisfactory, such as in geometry, algebra, writing and spelling. Nova Scotia had adopted some of these and this province some texts used there. The courses were tentative until tried out and necessarily final.

Dr. Carter next referred to the change of classification in ungraded schools. Four standards had been established, each standard embracing two grades of the city course. This was the prevailing custom elsewhere, standards being sometimes called forms.

The form and content of the school register had also been changed in conformity with general usage in other provinces. The new register would contain courses of study, reference texts, forms of teachers' contracts, minutes of annual meeting, and summary of statistics.

Canadian readers had been provided for graded schools up to Grade 6 with no Primer, so-called. In grades 7 and 8 readers were not prescribed, but literature comprising prose and verse which might be changed from time to time. In rural schools Stevenson's Country Life reader might be used instead of Reader 5, but both texts must not be used in one grade in the same year. Formal bookkeeping was no longer required, but business arithmetic would be emphasized.

Chief Superintendent Carter said that with the retention of the same writing books the authorization of the Palmer Method for teachers was made, the McKinley books used by Nova Scotia, teaching semi-vertical writing, a style not approved by our teachers generally.

"I think you will agree," said Dr. Carter, "that we have a better text in composition than formerly." The texts in grammar and geography had been changed, also those of physiology and history. Weaver's Canadian History and the Royal Series in British history were to be used.

Canadian History
"Our Board of Education is very desirous that Canadian history receive more attention. We are negotiating for a supplementary pamphlet, 'Canada's Part in the Great War,' for free distribution. In the text on civics, which has also been changed, will be found a chapter on the League of Nations. This will also be treated in the readers. Dent's and Ryerson's Canadian History will be found invaluable. Please don't overlook local history."

School Libraries

Touching on school libraries, the superintendent said: "Were there is a good library more should be expected of pupils. This is an argument for libraries." He quoted President Coolidge to the effect that "the library is the keystone of education."

"To establish libraries in connection with the schools were needed larger school units, and better training for teachers in the use and appreciation of libraries." The superintendent said that libraries were a source of protection against fruitless or vicious use of time and for the avoidance of still greater expenditures on juvenile and other courts and correctional and charitable institutions.

Hon. C. D. Richards

In extending a welcome to the visiting teachers, at the public session which filled the large auditorium to capacity, Hon. C. D. Richards, declared that in New Brunswick was a class of teachers to be proud of. During the last few years, he recalled there had been some criticism of the provincial education system and he wanted to take this opportunity to say that from experience and observation, he was satisfied that the New Brunswick educational system was fundamentally sound.

He pointed, for verification to the record of outstanding men and women in various fields of activity throughout the country. In this province men and women had been qualified to take their places with the leaders in many professions and vocations. "But," he said, "we should not sit back and say, 'let well enough alone.' Even though progress has been marked in the last twenty-five years and there has been much expansion—so much indeed that at times fears were expressed that the expansion was more rapid than the economic situation in the province justified—we must now work toward the perfecting of an educational system for the preparation of boys and girls to take their places in modern life."

There was one feature, said the speaker, to which the educational authorities and perhaps the Government also should direct their attention more closely, that of bringing greater coordination in the fields of educational activity.

He considered teaching one of the finest professions. Teachers, many of whom were devoting the best part of their lives and others their entire lives to training future citizens, carried a great responsibility, which should not be under-rated. Teachers, he said, probably more than others, were responsible for the character of the future citizenry of the country.

CARS IN HEADLONG COLLISION AT MAUGERVILLE

couple jumped from the car and ran off down the road. Mr. Lowe followed them but they had disappeared. They have not been located and their identity remains unknown. It is alleged that at least one of the occupants of Roberts' car had been drinking.

Serious damage resulted to both cars. Both had their wheels broken off and their front axles twisted and one was badly smashed on one side.

Lowe has made a complaint of reckless driving on the part of Roberts to the Provincial Police.

DEMOCRATS ARE ENTHUSIASTIC AT THE CONVENTION

Roar of Three Bands Playing Three Songs at One Time Inflicted Upon Local Radio Fans.

Local people heard the democratic convention over their radios last night. One gentleman states that the reception was remarkably clear and that he was able to hear the entire programme. Senator Walter E. George of Georgia was the first candidate nominated and his nomination was greeted by a burst of enthusiastic cheering. Later Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York City nominated Alfred E. Smith present governor of New York. Radio fans said that the uproar was tremendous and lasted for about twenty minutes. Three different bands played three different songs and everyone seemed to be shouting. To Canadians it seems a very peculiar and nerve-wrecking custom and an odd way to conduct politics. But with all their shouting and band playing and flagwaving it seems probable that the Democrats of our southern neighbor will elect Alfred Smith as their candidate for the presidency.
