TOURIST TRAFFIC

Canadian governments have probably never undertaken an expenditure which has returned greater interest to the country, says a Canadian Pacific Bulletin. The development of good roads has played a part in the progress of Canada in the post war period it is difficult to accurately estimate. Not only have the larger Canadian centres been more efficiently linked, but the vast provincial interiors have been meshed with roads over which travel is possible practically all the time, serving the great agricultural population and speeding up the agricultural industry. Travel arteries to the international boundary have been improved and increased and a ceaseless program of opening the beauties of the country to holiday traffic has been followed.

HE INHERITED IT

Watching the drummer of the saxophone in a jazz band you wonder how he got that way. He is not crazy, any more than the folks who cavort in the "Charleston" or the "Black Bottom" are crazy. Science, you see, has found out all about this. Addressing a group of British scientists, Dr. G. P. Bidder says: "We owe our dancing sense of rhythm to the actions we made when we were tiny blobs of jelly in the sea millions of years ago." (So jazz comes from the jelly fish.

According to a headline in a Moncton paper a forty-seven pound pole-cat has been captured in York County. Some effort should be made to preserve this world beater. Some years ago what was reputed to be the world's largest frog was captured in York County and the stuffed carcass now occupies a conspicuous position in the office of a local hotel.

If you were being given one of those rapid-fire psychological tests now required in many colleges for entrance and were asked, as a magazine advertisement, recently did, "Could you use extra money right now?" how much do you think you would be marked for your answer to the question? Well, don't be too cocky about it. A lot of us would probably score just as emphatically.

The C. N. R. estimates tabled in Parliament yesterday show that betterments of the system planned for the year 1928 are to cost $28,000,000. Nothing is said about a new steel bridge across the St. John River at Fredericton which was much talked about several years ago.

Article on "Success" in one of those pollyannaized magazines of aggressive optimistic enthusiasms, says a financial reverse, "should be only a new and interesting experience," and we recall that it was Charles Frohman who observed that death itself is just "life's greatest adventure."

When it comes down to cases, men are just as bad at gossiping as women, the difference, being, however, that when a man talks about another man he doesn't rush up and kiss him the next time he sees him on the street.

Fashion note which comes from London says the most recent novelty in women's fads is a garter worn on the instep, but we have an idea it doesn't make it much more conspicuous at that.

Dr. Johnson once remarked that patriotism is the last refuge of the scoundrel, but what the Doctor meant by that was the kind that is puffed up and vaunteth itself in claims of 100 per cent. purity.

Maybe the reason we like old songs best is because they were from the heart, not the feet.

Someone announces the invention of a ukulele that can be heard half a mile, and yet there are those who claim the world is getting better!

There are no such men as the women are looking for; the women will have to take what they can get.

Workmen, engaged in making joss-sticks in Shanghai, have walked out. That's a punk strike.

Our memory goes back to the time when we don't believe even the society editor knew what shade the bride's stockings were.

Harvard debaters now eat together at training tables. It is important they get proper food for discussion.

Then too, it must be remembered that the self-made man has no self-raising dough.

A Chicago broker who disappeared last week is described as 5 feet 11 inches tall and $225,000 short.

Don't get'em wrong. The men you often see digging up street paving are not archeologists.

Everybody in town is in favor of March sunshine, of which there has been considerable so far.

Our notion of nothing for any man to worry about is the number of cars that will be in his funeral procession.

Where possibly one man can't understand why he is great, ten million can't understand why they are not great.

One observer says that in the zoo the males are the most beautiful animals of the species. But out of the zoo, where most males are, a different story could be told.
