

REMARKABLE GOOD BEING DONE

Among Sick Women of Canada by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Here are Four Who Testify To That Fact

Sea View, Cape Breton, N.S.—"By reading the letters in one of your books I understand that a great many women sufferers have got relief by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I can say that my mother has taken it and has given it to me in my younger days for monthly troubles. I was working at service then and could not go to work sometimes for a week at a time, and then felt miserable enough. I could not be in a worse state than I was then. My mother said to get the Vegetable Compound, and I did, and it helped me. I am now married going on to five years and have two lovely children. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to my friends."—Mrs. CHARLES A. PATTIE, Sea View P.O., Cape Breton, N. S.

"My Girl Friend Took It"

Ridgetown, Ontario.—"For over a year I suffered from pain each month that would drive me almost mad. My mother suggested Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as my girl friend was taking it and told me it would do me good. I took several bottles of the Vegetable Compound and I soon began to improve. I have since taken it again to make me stronger. I will answer any letters I receive asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. WM. LANG HALL, R. R. 1, Ridgetown, Ontario.

Admiral, Sask.—"I am sure that any one who gives your medicines a fair trial will receive benefit. I have taken both Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and the Blood Medicine through the Change of Life and I recommend them highly. I had dizziness and a worn-out feeling with loss of appetite for about a year. I saw your advertisement in the papers and took the medicine. My appetite returned and my ambition, and I felt like working again. I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills for the bowels and recommend all the Pinkham Medicines."—Mrs. JOHN JOPPRUD, Box 65 Shaunavon, Saskatchewan.

"Nervous Breakdown"

Feltzton South, N. S.—About two years ago I took sick and had a doctor called in. I was nervous and did not want to stay alone. He said I had a nervous breakdown. One day a friend called to see me and advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which I did. I felt through my whole body that it was doing me good. I am at the age now when those queer feelings come around and I can say that I am well. I cannot appreciate too highly what the Vegetable Compound has done for me."—Mrs. LAURA M. WILNEFF, 48 Hollis St., Halifax, Nova Scotia.

WHY THEY FAILED

New York, Feb. 15—A tip to young men seeking the hand of Grace Moores, newest opera star—six young southern men were refused as husbands because they failed to suggest a honeymoon to Niagara Falls, the onetime choir singer of Jellico, Tenn., was revealed.

It is our belief that many a woman marries a man to inform him.

THE LATE FIELD MARSHAL HAIG WAS REGARDED AS THE GREATEST CAPTAIN OF THE WAR

(From the Winnipeg Free Press) Illusioned, with breaking heart, went to give the utmost word of command to the armies of Great Britain at Great Britain's utmost crisis. On the 11th of April, 1918, in face of the vast German concentrations which had been gathered together to sweep the British forces out of Northern France, Haig issued the order of the day in which he told his hosts that their back was to the wall and they must die fighting but they must not retreat. "There must be no retirement." The man who gives such a command at such a moment is undoubtedly a historic character. He has been elevated by fate to the giddiest, most perilous heights of honor and responsibility and it was Lord Haig's fortune to be fortunate. His soldiers did not retire. They stood and fought and finally won.

When Haig gave his command on April 11, he was field-marshal and commander-in-chief of the British Empire's armies on the western front, and he occupied a position in the high command of the allied armies that was unique.

On August 4, 1914, Britain's expeditionary force was dispatched to France under control of three commanders, Sir John French was chief; his two subordinates were Sir Horace Smith-Dorrien and Sir Douglas Haig. The minister of war in England was the famous and monumental Kitchenier.

Smith-Dorrien vanished from the western front in 1915. At the end of the same year Sir John French was promoted to honorable obscurity. In June, 1916, the great Kitchenier, dis-

There is something amazing about it. Haig was a silent Scotchman, a cavalry general with a high reputation in the service, but quite unknown as a public figure when the war began. The war was a war of expansion. It began on a comparatively limited dimension, and it proceeded on a dimension which widened and deepened with devastating speed. The war began as battles between armies; long before it ended it was running as an encounter of nations. The mental and physical readjustments which the war demanded were ruinous on the high command everywhere—the mind of the high command had either to expand with the expanding peril or get out. And so many, as we have seen got out.

Haig stayed. His little expeditionary corps grew into a national army; his national army grew into an army of the British Empire; he began as the leader of a few thousands; his thousands were reinforced by hundreds of thousands, by millions. He began with a few parks of cannon and common ammunition, and before he finished the gun wheels were touching one another in a line of fire from the English Channel to the Alps. The man-power and the woman-power of Britain engrossed themselves day and night to equip and arm and supply the western front; Britain poured the full tide of her national strength and skill and courage into the western front, and the man who controlled all that energy, and who used it and directed it, and finally let the Germans shatter themselves fatally against it, was Lord Haig. He had not weakened. The widening emergency had not swamped him. He kept living up to his increasing responsibilities, and he emerged at the end a victor, and a sole survivor.

These are the reflections that came to us as we read of the great service in the Abbey. The captains and the kings depart. Lord Haig was the greatest captain of the Great War.

BEBE DANIELS HURT AS SET FALLS OFF

Pasadena, Calif., Feb. 15—Bebe Daniels, motion picture star, was injured seriously here this afternoon when an imitation Pullman car in which a picture was being filmed fell from an automobile truck on which it had been mounted. The actress lost consciousness for a few minutes and was very weak when she reached the hospital. Miss Daniels, Clarence Badger, director; James Hall, who was playing opposite the comedienne, and Roy Hunt, camera man, were in the Pullman set when it struck a limb protruding over the road. The imitation Pullman compartment was wrecked as it crashed to the pavement. Hall, who was later found to be suffering from a broken rib, rescued Miss Daniels from the wreckage. Badger and Hunt escaped injury.

PAIN CAUSES JAZZ BRITON DECLARES

Baltimore, Md., Feb. 15—It is pain, not joy, which has caused the younger generation of authors to choose subjects that the oldsters deem sordid. This on the word of Beverly Nichols, one of England's younger authors and essayists.

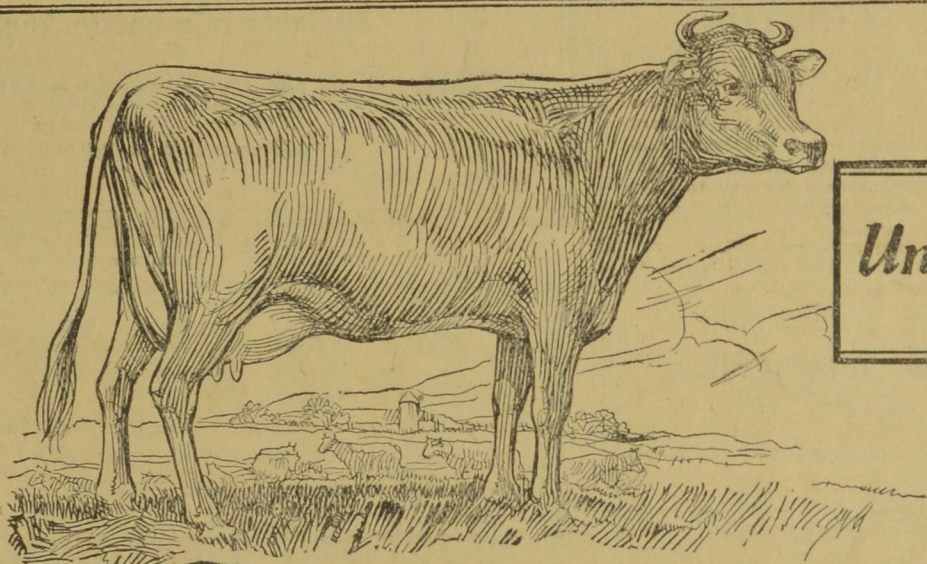

"Our treatment of life as a bit of jazz," said Mr. Nichols today, "is not so much the result of exuberance as of intense pain. We were in college during the World War and we saw every precept of morality and esthetics thrown to the winds. The war ended as we were leaving school. We saw the triumph of futility over some of the greatest emotions of which life is capable. We feel that we have much in common with our American cousins and many of the same twitches lead us to treat life as we do."

"But in America everything remains worth while; you still claim happiness as a right."

Pure Country Milk
Evaporated to Double Richness

- and the name "Borden" guarantees its quality

BORDEN'S St. Charles is carefully selected country milk with some of the water removed. It's the same as bottled milk only much richer, creamier—unsweetened, of course. Most women use it just as it pours from the tin because, being doubly rich milk, it improves every recipe. Others add an equal quantity of water and use it as ordinary bottled milk. Since it keeps perfectly in the unopened tin we suggest that you buy three tins of Tall Size, four of Small, at a time, and use it freely in all cooking.
