

TRAIN AT SEA

In the photograph below is seen Don Carrick, amateur boxing champion, in the gymnasium on board the "Empress of Scotland" sparring with the liner's physical instructor. Both he and other members of the Canadian Olympic team aboard the vessel frequented the "gym" to keep fit, and found the exercises, combined with the sea air, put them in top shape by the time they reached the other side.

Policeman—How did the accident happen?

Motorist—My wife fell asleep in the back seat.

Ted—Do you think there is a method to tell if a man is lying?

Have you seen the instrument?

Bill—Sure. I married one.

SKIN-DEEP
BEAUTY PEELS

The employment manager of a chain of big restaurants was wringing his hands. The restaurants pride themselves on having the most attractive waitresses in the city, but the idea wasn't working out so well this particular Monday morning.

"Maybe it's because our girls are just too good-looking," the employment manager said, sadly. "Here they show up every Monday morning with fine cases of sunburn. Their sweethearts take them out to the beaches on Sundays and they sit around on the sand in their bathing suits just to show off. They get their noses and necks all sunburned and they just begin to peel nicely on Monday mornings. Then they are far from attractive. Now, if they were homely girls they mightn't have so many sweethearts and they'd stay at home in the shade over Sunday. Beauty, they say, is only skin deep. But when the skin begins to peel that's not so good!"

Wife—You don't love me any more.

Husband—Why do you say that?

Wife—Because now you never run in debt to buy me presents.

MR. BENNETT
VISITS PLACE OF HIS BIRTH

Few Occasions Which so Grip the Heartstrings as a Return to Scenes of Childhood Days.

(Toronto Star.)

Mr. R. B. Bennett has been visiting the scenes of his childhood. Down in Albert County, New Brunswick, he has been viewing once again the house where he was born, the little school on the banks of the Petitcodiac which he attended as a boy, and that city of the dead where his loved ones, with other generations of Bennetts, lie at rest. He has been hailed by a host of people who knew him long ago and who welcomed him in his new role as their county most distinguished son.

It was a homely scene. A correspondent of the Montreal Star says that "There were not many lipsticks in evidence and powder puffs did not appear to be overworked. The permanent wave industry had not taken root in the gathering. Instead the countryside had given up its rugged, honest and industrious people, true children of their pioneer forebears, to honor 'Dick' Bennett in the glad he knew and loved long since."

When the formal reception came, he stumbled over words which would not come. His eyes were not dry. And when he finally managed to speak, it was not of politics. Again to quote the correspondent: "As he regained part of his composure, he recalled his school-days; the kid with the pigtail who was his first sweetheart, but who had had the good sense to turn him down and marry a Methodist clergyman; the kindly teachers who had driven a little learning into a boy who was never near the head of his class; the teachers who had given him a vision to strive after. . . . It was a day of soul-searching, of communion with bygone years."

At such scenes cynics sneer in vain; in vain suggest that these things are done for political effect; the stammered words a sham; the embarrassment merely feigned. For to a sentimental man (and Mr. Bennett is a man of sentiment and emotion) there are few occasions which so grip the heartstrings as the return to scenes long known and long left behind; to contacts long unexperienced; to the place remembered as home and to the people remembered as friends. To be singled out for honor in those surroundings and among those people is to experience an emotional crisis of poignancy as well as of pride. Mr. Bennett cannot be imagined going away from that place except with quickened ideals and re-awakened sympathies and an even greater love for Canada than before.

It was good for him to be there. It is good for statesmen everywhere, of whatever country or party, to come in contact, now and then, with their beginnings; to remember in a new and vivid way the people from whom they sprang, and to live over again in their rekindled fancy the scenes of childhood and youth which all cherish in their hearts.

Reporter—Well I tried to interview the deaf mute.

City Editor—What did he say?

Reporter—He wouldn't lift a finger to help me.
