

The Bishop of Birmingham Sides with Joynson-Hicks

Says That the House of Bishops are Flouting the Authority of Parliament by Permitting Services Founded on the New Prayer Book—Has Been Attacked Because of His Modernist Views.

(By HERBERT BAILEY, British United Press Staff Correspondent.)

LONDON, Oct. 8.—Another prominent ecclesiastical figure has entered the controversy concerning the action of the house of bishops in advising individual churches that they may use the new prayer book if they so desire, in spite of Parliament's rejection of it.

Dr. Barnes, the Bishop of Birmingham, who has been subject to violent attacks by Anglo-Catholics because of his modernist views, has now joined the Home Secretary Sir William Joynson-Hicks, in warning that the bishops are flouting the authority of parliament in permitting services founded on the revised prayer book.

In this connection, the Bishop of Birmingham says: "If now the bishops permit an alternative service of the Holy Communion and issue licenses for the reservation of the sacrament they will be breaking the law and flouting the authority of Parliament. Their moral authority for restraining further lawlessness in the church will be at an end."

MONCTON MAN WAS KILLED AT BERRY'S MILLS

Auto Rolled Over a Fifteen Foot Embankment and He Was Pinned Beneath It.

Moncton, Oct. 7.—With his skull fractured and four ribs broken, Frank Roy, 42 years of age, lies in the Hotel Dieu Hospital here in a serious condition following an auto accident which occurred on the Berry Mills Road, about eight miles from this city, around 7.30 o'clock Saturday night.

Roy, who is a car inspector for the C. N. R. in the Moncton yards, was driving his auto, a touring model, toward his home in the west end of the city from Berry Mills and with him in the car as passengers were a Mr. and Mrs. McDermott, whom he was driving to town. The highway he followed is part of the old Intercolonial main line and it appears that coming along in the dark Roy got too near the side of the embankment which drops some fifteen feet at the point where the accident occurred, and the car rolled down the side, turning over when it reached the bottom, pinning the unfortunate owner beneath it.

Escaped Injury.

The other occupants of the car escaped injury but with assistance Roy was extricated in twenty minutes and a passing auto brought him to the hospital here.

The provincial police were advised of the accident and proceeded to the scene, where they found the car, wheels up with the top completely broken, the windshield and steering wheel smashed. The accident victim underwent an X-ray examination immediately after admission to hospital and this revealed the injuries. Although he has never lost consciousness and hopes are being held out for his recovery, his condition was nevertheless reported tonight as being serious.

Read, 66, prominent New York City real estate broker, was fatally shot when mistaken for a bear by one of a party of New York sportsmen, in New Brunswick for hunting, and guides this morning as the party entered the woods on their way to the camp of Ritchie Payne, a guide, about 50 miles north of Newcastle.
