Claims Sinking of Lusitania Not Deliberately Planned

Author of a Book Called "Raiders of the Deep" Presents Virtual Proof of This—Presents an Account of the Submarine Which Fired the Fatal Torpedo.

(Special to The Daily Mail by the British United Press.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 26—Virtual proof that Germany did not send out a submarine deliberately to sink the Lusitania in 1915, is contained in Lowell Thomas' book "Raiders of the Deep" which was released for review today.

Thomas presents the account of Commander Walther Schweiger, captain of the U-20, which fired the torpedo that sent the big liner to the bottom with a loss of more than 1,100 lives.

Schweiger said he sighted a "vast forest of masts and stacks" and ordered his crew to fire a torpedo. After the explosion, he learned the vessel he had torpedoed was the Lusitania.

MARY SAYS SHE'S WEARY OF THE MOVIES

Los Angeles, Oct. 26—For some of the stars of the screen, the click of the movie camera is falling on tired ears. The thrill is gone, and they no longer crave the spotlight as in former days. Only recently Mary Pickford admitted, according to report, that she is weary of the movies. Richard Barthelmess has said that directing has more lure for him than acting.

Why screen stars should tire of the opportunity of being starred is uncertain. Stage actors and actresses seem lights. But in the movies, it is pointed out, is a success in a certain type, they are kept to that type. This perhaps becomes monotonous.

Stricken with a heart attack while driving his automobile in the Woodstock Road yesterday afternoon, Mr. Charles Cremin, the well known guide and sportsmen's outfitter of this city, passed away at the home of Mr. F. S. Mundle before medical aid could reach him. The news of his sudden death spread quickly about the city and was a most painful shock to the members of his family and numerous friends.

Mr. Cremin had not been in the enjoyment of good health for some time past and had been under the care of a physician. Only yesterday morning he visited the Victoria Hospital for an X-ray examination. In the afternoon he motored to the ranch of the Fredericton Silver Black Fox Company of which he is a director and remained there for some little time. At four o'clock he boarded his auto and started for home. When opposite the Ryan homestead he was taken ill and stopping the car he started to make his way into the house but collapsed on the doorstep. Both Mr. and Mrs. Mundle were at home at the time and on hastening to the assistance of the stricken man Mr. Mundle heard him utter the words, "My heart". He was carried into the house and placed upon a cot and although stimulants were administered he never spoke again. When Dr. A. F. VanWart arrived in less than ten minutes in response to a telephone message, Mr. Cremin was beyond earthly aid. Dr. D. W. Ross was later called and in his capacity of coroner decided that an inquest was unnecessary. The body was later removed to McAdam's undertaking parlors where it was prepared for burial and at ten o'clock was conveyed to the grief stricken home of the deceased at the corner of Westmorland and Saunders street.

CREW OF S.S. CAIRNTOUR ALL ACCOUNTED FOR

Montreal, Oct. 25—Latest advices from the stranded Cairn line freighter Cairntour, ashore near Cape Whittle some 600 miles from Quebec City on the north shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, held out little hope that the vessel would ever be floated. It was believed that the vessel had broken completed in two amidships and needed only a rising sea to break her up. It was hoped, however, that with a continuation of calm weather some of the cargo between decks would be salvaged.

The Canadian Government steamer Aranmore, despatched from Charlottetown to stand by the freighter and guard against theft of her valuable cargo and fittings, reached the scene tonight and it was anticipated that the wrecking tug Stratheona from Quebec, with the schooner GTD carrying wrecking supplies, would reach the Cairntour tomorrow afternoon.

Captain T. J. Baker of the Cairntour wireless today to the agents here that the entire crew had reached safety, the 22 men unaccounted for last night having reached shore at Wolfe Bay, Quebec, near the wreck. Captain Baker and some of his men had reboarded the steamer today but only for a short time. The Donaldson freighter Salacia, which stood by the wreck and picked up a boat containing 24 of her crew, has proceeded with them on her voyage to Quebec and Montreal and will likely reach Father Point this morning.

Judge Grimmer of St. John is in the city today. He is registered at the Barker House.
