THE GOLDEN WEDDING

The fiftieth marriage anniversary was rightly named the golden wedding. Who, reading the story of one of these frequent celebrations, does not feel that he has found something in life that is altogether wholesome and fundamentally secure? These events inspire new confidence in the marriage ritual and a new faith in the vows two people taken when they choose to travel together to the end of their journey.

Every golden wedding serves as a rebuke to the modern and foolish notions on the subject of matrimony—a reproof to those who would make a mockery of the marriage institution. Welcome to the golden wedding celebration. There is a place for it in the newspapers. It is not news, perhaps, but neither is the sunset that crimson the end of the day—a picture we would not miss.

HAPPINESS IN ACTION

Those who have tried to find happiness by the route of rest are likely to be the first to agree with Clemenceau, wise old French statesman, who says: "The chief factor in the acquisition and retention of health and happiness in work. I have never loved anything so well as the joy of action. I am contented at the end of a day in proportion to the amount of action put into it, and my health seems to keep pace automatically with my action and my contentment. It all comes about naturally through the alchemy of work. All roads lead to Rome, but the only one which leads to self-realization and complete peace is the road of work."

FALLACIES

One of the fallacies in economics is that natural resources make for prosperity. If this were true China and Russia would be the most prosperous places on the globe. It takes initiative and daring to develop natural resources if a country is to become rich. It is the same with the individual. A man may be rich in natural resources. He may have a good mind and much information. He may occupy a good position in life and have much opportunity, but, if he is mentally lazy—as most men are—he will fail. The possession of natural resources, with no ploughing and no cultivating, is tragical.

Mr. J. Lambert Payne, who was private secretary to the late Hon. A. G. Blair during the eight years that he was Minister of Railways in the Laurier Cabinet vindicates his old chief, in an article contributed to the Montreal Star, dealing with the meteoric career of Mr. David Russell, who lately passed away. Mr. Payne was in close touch with Mr. Blair and we have no doubt that the interesting information which he now makes public for the first time is well within the bounds of truth. Mr. Payne's article will be found on another page of this issue and no doubt will be eagerly read.

The unanimous election of Coun. Fred Seymour of the Parish of Douglas to the office of Warden of the Municipality of York is a well deserved tribute to one who has given long and faithful service at the council board. There is no doubt but that the new Warden will discharge his important duties in a manner creditable to himself and highly satisfactory to the Municipality whose servant he is.

"Has it ever occurred to you," asks an exchange, "that tears are uniformly too late?" No, to tell the truth it hasn't; nor do we believe it's strictly true. A woman begins to work in earnest only when she turns on the flood—and no one would accuse the slicker sex of waiting until it's too late to use her strongest argument.

The traveler who says he saw streets in a town in Siberia which were paved with uncut jewels doesn't give us any details of the bond issue of whether there will be a grand jury probe.

The old-fashioned mistletoe was a haphazard makeshift as compared with the system the girls to toady put into operation, which closely approximates an exact science.

Revenge is when he discovers that she ripped up an old dress with his razor and proceeds to excavate his pipe with the curve-bladed grape-fruit knife.

After looking over the pictures of some of these young couples who allege "mental cruelty" in their divorce papers, we guess they're bragging.

"Women Taking up Saxophone," a headline informs us. H'm. Give the sex a phone, and they want no other instrument.

A man in Indiana who had a Model T stolen a year ago found it in front of his house last week, but repudiates a rumor that it was there all the time.

Probably under the companionate marriage arrangement the groom buys her a mustache cup for Christmas and she buys him a negligee.

The papers seem to unusually full just now of young defendants who say they didn't do it.

So live that your denial of the widespread rumor that you have passed on won't be a big disappointment.

To the women, bless their hearts; we can't get along without them. In fact, they're bare necessities.

And now there is the three-piece pajamas. Ah, yes; another form of the two-pants suit.

It has got so you can estimate the age of the college boy's flivver pretty closely by the wise cracks.

It seems that a Western husband has petitioned for a divorce on grounds of bad coffee.

Man wants little here below freezing, nor wants that little long.

The Youngest Member

The Parish of Prince William, which had to get along with only one councillor during the greater part of last term, has its full complement this time. Coun. Saunders is back again and has for a colleague Coun. Robert Graham, whose father, the late Mr. R. H. Graham, and whose grandfather, the late Mr. W. W. Graham, saw many years of useful service at the board. Coun. Graham has the distinction of being the youngest member of the present council, and one of the youngest who ever sat on the board.

THROUGH OUR SIEVE

They'll tell you of happy romances, as if all romances are not happy.

What a jury won't do can be left to Retribution, which never loses a trail.

It is said there are 200,000 useless words in our language. The banker can tell you a few of them.

If you don't want them to find insanity in the family refrain from committing a major crime.

Airplanes have emphasized another striking difference between the pessimist and the optimist. The pessimist can't fly.

Now the sun stars back and we shall begin to dream of spring. But it will be a long time before the robins wake us up.

"Maybe it is all right," remarked the Man on the Car, "to tell the youngsters they can do almost anything they have the will to do, but the older heads know it isn't true."

Ohio State Journal: "The side that feels sure it will get most of it is always the one that announces there is glory enough to go round." The full stomach's watchword is magnanimity.

RHEUMATICS How to Get Well

Eat meat sparingly, and take but little sugar. Avoid intoxicants. Keep away from dampness. Drink water abundantly, and rely upon Nerviline as a quick relief for pain. "I proclaim Nerviline an infallible relief for rheumatism," writes S. A. Brunswick from Augusta. "After years of suffering I can say it is the most penetrating liniment I ever used. With Nerviline I have rubbed away all my aches and pains, and I urge others to use Nerviline for sore joints, stiffness, and muscular pain." All dealers sell Nerviline in 35c bottles.
