

Nelson's Unlucky Love Adventure.

Writing in the London "Evening News," Max Pemberton, well-known English writer, says:—"I read in an American journal a discussion as to which is the most beautiful city in the world; and I am not surprised that a writer names Quebec, and names it with emphasis."

We cannot wonder at the literary enthusiasm Quebec has provoked.

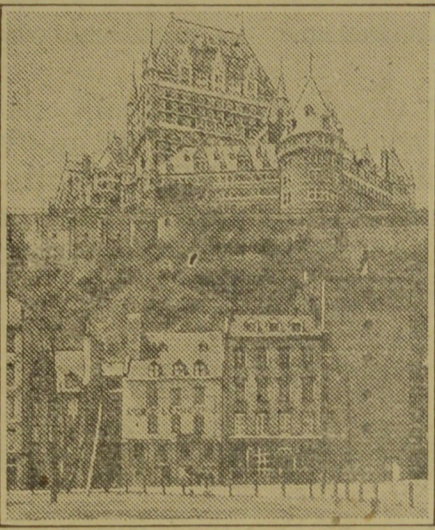

"The majestic appearance of Cape Diamond," says one writer... the fortifications the cupolas, and minarets, like those of an Eastern city, blazing and sparkling in the sun, the noble basin like a sheet of purest silver, in which might ride with safety the navies of the world, the graceful meanderings of the River St. Lawrence, the fertile valley dotted with picturesque habitant houses, the distant falls of Montmorency... the grim purple mountains, the barriers to the North, form a picture which is no exaggeration to say is unsurpassed in any part of the world."

It is easy to applaud such chauvinism when one has set foot in Quebec and been received with that courtly hospitality for which its people are famous.

Naturally, romance is never far away from such a picture. There is a story told of the Lord Nelson and of one Miles Prentice, who served under Wolfe and subsequently served beer. This fellow opened an inn to which the soldiers and sailors resorted... and among them in the year 1782 came the Captain Nelson, then commanding H.M.S. Albemarle, of 26 guns.

"Miles Prentice," says a writer,

"had a niece, Miss Simpson, daughter of Sandy Simpson, whose charms so captivated the embryo Admiral that when his vessel had sailed from port he clandestinely returned for the purpose of wedding 'the maid of the inn,' which purpose was defeated by Mr. Alexander Davidson, then a Quebec merchant, who, with the assistance of his boat's crew, forcibly carried the amorous captain on board his vessel."

This seems somewhat drastic treatment, hardly likely to be popular in our time, when captains ashore to marry maids are usually welcome and other people hasten to buy confetti. But Quebec ever was and ever will be a city of the strictest proprieties.

I would add that my first visit to this incomparable height was made during the first considerable snowfall of the year. I believe some five feet of snow were down in relatively a few hours, and anything more bewitching than the whitened domes and pinnacles and the fairy-like scenes beyond the walls it is difficult to imagine.

But Quebec is the home of superb spectacles, and in the Chateau Frontenac possesses one of the most dominating hotels in the world. Here is a great hostelry like to no other one can name—majestic in the fashion of a mediaeval fortress, yet as up-to-date as any hotel in America and more comfortable than most. From its terrace a glorious panorama of river and villages and blue hills beyond is unfolded... and it is no surprise to hear that many thousands of Americans seek this palatial height every year and succumb to its enchantment.

"See Naples and then die!" Rather, see Quebec and find a new inspiration to live.

LAWYER WHO DEFENDED HARRY THAW IS DEAD

Santa Monica, Calif., Aug. 1.—Delphin M. Delmas, attorney for Harry Thaw in the latter's sensational murder trial more than twenty years ago, died here today. He was 84 years of age and had practiced law until a few months ago.

Delmas was born in France April 14, 1844. He came to this country at the age of 10, later attending Santa Clara College, at San Jose, Calif., from which he was graduated in 1862. He took up the study of law at Yale University and was admitted to the bar in Connecticut.

His California practice included long activity in San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Delmas is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Elsie D. Barnes and Miss Apollonette Delmas, both of Santa Monica. Funeral arrangements had not been completed late today.

As chief of counsel for Thaw, Delmas introduced the legal phrase "dementia Americana" as a defense for the New Yorker, who was on trial for the slaying of Stanford White, noted architect.

A JUDGE FIRED IN MANITOBA

Ottawa, Aug. 3.—Dismissal of Judge H. F. Maulson, of the Northern Judicial District of Manitoba, is announced here. Charges made against Judge Maulson, which were sustained on investigation have resulted in his removal from office. Such action is rare in Canadian judicial history. The charges included over a dozen instances of Judge Maulson presiding on the bench while under the influence of liquor. It was also charged that he patronized bootleggers who had appeals pending before him. Other charges involved the passing of worthless cheques and consorting with a Chinese restaurant keeper. Witnesses who appeared before Judge Truefan, who conducted the investigation were mainly members of the bar.
