Bishops Will Propose Changes in Prayer Book

Church Assembly to Meet on February 6th—Changes Will Deal With the Black Rubric and Obligatory Prayers for the King — Controversy Said to be Bringing Nearer the Disestablishment of the Church.

(By Herbert Bailey, British United Press Staff Correspondent)
London, Jan. 20—Anglican Bishops have decided to propose to the Church Assembly meeting on February 6th next certain changes in the revised book of common prayer, the first dealing with what is known as the black rubric, the second with obligatory prayers for the king and the third with the insertion of new rules governing reservation of their blessed sacrament.

The black rubric provides that no formal adoration be permitted of the sacramental bread and wine as if it were the corporal presence of Christ's natural flesh and blood.

The new rules, however provide for the reservation of the sacrament in a locked safe to be provided within the churches.

Keen Opposition Expected

This latter stipulation is likely to provoke keen opposition when Parliament is again asked to pass the new prayer book. Evangelicals in particular, are determined to object strongly. Comments indicate that the controversy is bringing nearer the disestablishment of the Church of England and Anglo Catholics are said to be actually welcoming the prospect. The publication of the Malines conversations is regarded by the evangelicals as evidence of an Anglo-Catholic plot to deliver Anglicanism into the hands of the church of Rome.

SAYS MARITIME CASE WAS NOT WITHDRAWN

Sydney, N. S., Jan. 19—H. P. Duchemin, K. C., of Sydney who was counsel for the Maritimes, before the Board of Railway Commission in the general rates case, gave out a statement today denying the assertion attributed to the Hon. P. J. Veniot, Postmaster General, that "the case of the Maritimes for lower wheat rates was withdrawn on the advice of Premier Baxter of New Brunswick and Premier Rhodes of Nova Scotia." Mr. Duchemin said in part:

"It Mr. Veniot made the statement attributed to him at the Saint John banquet, he is entirely in error. There was no Maritime case before the Board of Railway Commissioners for a wheat rate. The Maritime submission was not withdrawn from the Board, but simply deferred, with the right reserved for subsequent argument after the tariffs authorized by the Maritime Freight Rates Act had been filed by the railways, checked up and studied on behalf of the Maritimes, and referred thereafter to the Board for review."

Neither Premier Baxter nor Premier Rhodes intervened with advice or instruction at any stage in the conduct of the case, which was in the hands of a committee representing the Maritime Boards of Trade whom Mr. Cornell and myself were representing at Ottawa.

ANOTHER BOLD BANK ROBBERY IN MONTREAL

Branch of Bank Nationale Held Up in True Jesse James Style and Robbed of $10,000.

Montreal, Jan. 19—With a flourish of revolvers accompanied by wild shrieks and yells, three men entered a branch of the Banque Canadienne Nationale on St. Denis street, this afternoon, and after subduing the clerks, looted the bank of between $9,000 and $10,000.

The hold-up was one of the most daring ever recorded in the city. It was executed perfectly and in every short space of time. Evidently familiar with the routine of the bank, the three men entered the premises at 12:55 (noon) brandishing revolvers. There was a large amount of cash on hand awaiting removal to an armored car which was to call at the bank shortly after 1 o'clock.

Five persons were in the bank, the manager, Arthur Robillard, and four clerks. The bandits made no attempt to conceal their actions. They were shouting as they ran through the front door and all brandishing revolvers. Speaking in English, the leader, announced that they had come to hold up the bank. At the same time the intruders hurdled the counter and were inside the enclosure where the clerks work. The manager and his assistants were ordered to lie on the floor, face downward. Three of the clerks obeyed, but one, Emilien Cormier, reached for a revolver on the desk. One of the gang violently shoved him to the floor while another administered a kick and an order to "remain there."

Staff Overawed

The manager attempted to reach his living premise in the rear of the bank, but two of the gang seized him and treated him in the same manner as the clerk. With the five employees on the floor and with two bandits standing over them with menacing revolvers, the third member of the band went to the cashier's counter and opened the drawer emptying it.

As the drawer was being emptied two customers of the bank entered the front door. The bandits paid no attention to them but walked calmly around the counter and out the front door, where they entered the small touring car they had parked near the entrance and made their escape.

Alarm Raised

The employees immediately raised the alarm and were on the street in time to see the car disappear northwards on St. Denis street.

Acting on the theory that the desperados were members of an American criminal gang, railway stations and roads leading out of Montreal were closely watched by police to-night. While not making any definite announcement, the police indicate that several clues have been developed and that coupled with the good description of the robbers obtained from the staff of the bank, there is every reason to believe that the three men will be arrested before they can leave the city.

Says that Organized Reunion of Churches Is an Impossibility

Rev. Dr. Reiland, Liberal Episcopal Minister Comments Upon the Conferences at Malines—Says the Essential Thing is for the Various Branches of the Churches to Recognize Each Other.

(Special to the Daily Mail by the British United Press)

New York, N. Y., Jan. 20—"Organized reunion of the churches is not only unwise but impossible" the Rev. Dr. Reiland, Liberal Episcopal minister, told the United Press today in commenting upon the several conferences at Malines in which unity of the Anglican and Roman Catholic churches was discussed.

"The only thing essential to Christian unity", he went on, "is for the various branches of the church to recognize each other, their ministers, their worship and concede a mutual validity".

"This is too big a challenge for our time, but it is the only one worth our notice."

BOARDS OF TRADE ARE OF SERVICE TO A COMMUNITY

(Sydney Record.)

Once in a while people are found to sneer at Boards of Trade as bodies which do a good deal of talking and not much else. Usually the sneerers are men with a "grouch" or men who are too lazy and selfish to give any of their own time to attempts to serve the general interest. Cape Breton people could tell critics of that kind that their criticism is unjust, so far as Cape Breton boards are concerned. None of these boards accomplishes all that it would like to do and perhaps none of them accomplishes all that it ought to be able to do, but every one of the half dozen organizations of the kind in Cape Breton is energetic on behalf of the public interest, and everyone of them has done useful service. Men who think the boards should do more ought themselves to be doing more to make the boards more effective.

PARIS' LAST PUBLIC SCRIBE GOES TO PRISON

Paris, Jan. 20—The last public scribe in Paris is gone, and, formally, to jail.

He is Georges Faes, whose family kept the little lean-to booth against the side of the St. Labare prison for 100 years. He has been sentenced to two years in prison.

Faes had to add other legal and commercial work to the business of letter-writing for the illiterate which his fathers practiced, and his calculations for a client, the court held, transferred 40,000 francs of his customer's money to his own pocket in a manner the judge called swindling.
