INTER-IMPERIAL RELATIONS DISCUSSED BY SPEAKERS IN DEBATE ON THE ADDRESS

Ottawa, Feb. 2—Canada's relation to other parts of the Empire came under discussion during the resumed debate on the address in the House of Commons today.

L. J. Garland, U. F. A., Bow River, approved of legations being established abroad and asked for Government action with regard to railway rates on Alberta coal. Sir George Perley, Conservative, Argenteuil, opposed the appointment of ministers and held that the Empire should maintain a single foreign policy and the comtario amounted to $5.45, but he was asking for a rate of $6.50 a ton and was willing to give the railway companies a profit of $1.05. He appealed for a statutory rate until the whole matter could be re-examined.

Complications Seen.

Sir George maintained that the Empire could not speak with a single voice if the Dominions sent ministers to foreign countries. "I can see many complications," he said. "It is a most dangerous precedent and who can tell where it is going to end."

"It is easy to visualize," he continued, "where under present proposals of this government, the British ambassador and Canadian minister in some foreign capital would be found urging different courses." No one wished this to happen and for this reason he wished the Prime Minister to reconsider his decision.

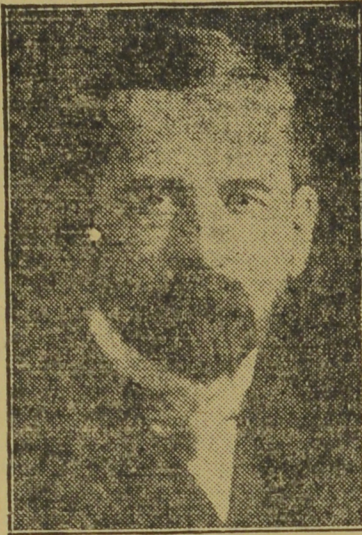

Mr. Glen said that Mr. Beaubien had seconded the address on his own responsibility, without consulting members of the Liberal-Progressive group. For his own part he felt that the Speech from the Throne was "remarkable for what it did not say" rather than for what it did say.

Cahan Speaks

Mr. Cahan dealt almost entirely with the matter of inter-imperial relations. It was the parliament of Great Britain which legislated for Canadians and Australians and subjects in the Crown colonies when they were in other parts of the world. The Canadian parliament has no just jurisdiction. It was subordinate to Imperial legislation. It could not declare war or make peace. It could not, when Britain declared war, assert its own neutrality, except by separation from Great Britain.

The Prime Minister, Mr. Cahan continued utterly intellectually incapable of understanding the distinction between the repeal of the Colonial Laws Validity Act and the repeal of the authority of Great Britain. The former would not in any sense affect the authority of the British Parliament. He added a reference to the Prime Minister's sense of unconscious inferiority to British statesmen. Mr. Cahan believed that slow progress should be made in the matter of giving Canada the right to amend her constitution.

G. W. McPhee, Liberal-Yorkton, spoke of Canada's prosperity, which, he said, reminded him of the days of the Laurier regime. Mr. McPhee was speaking when the House adjourned for dinner at 6 p. m.

SIR GEORGE PERLEY

ponent parts speak with one voice. He advocated control of the Empire foreign policy by a committee chosen from all parts of the Empire.

J. A. Glen, Liberal-Progressive, Marquette, agreed that an investigation of immigration should be made. C. H. Cahan, Conservative, St. Lawrence-St. George, declared that "there is not now and there has not yet been attained equality of status."

Debate Resumed.

Mr. Garland in resuming the debate, when the House met in the afternoon, wondered if the seconder of the address, (A. L. Beaubien, Liberal-Progressive, Provencher), had surrendered his independence to have that honor. He hoped that the Liberal-Progressive group had not had much to do with the preparation of the Speech from the Throne, for if they had it did them little credit.

The speaker held that he could give little credit to the Government for any effort to develop a national coal policy. He had arrived, he said, at the conclusion that the out-of-pocket cost of transporting Alberta coal to On-ting. The City Hall nearby was threatened.

The Union mills in Pleasant street became ignited and were threatened with destruction.

From the editorial rooms of the Fall River Globe members of the newspaper staff watched the progress of the flames down Main street and kept the Associated Press informed by telephone. Every few minutes these observers would report that another building had caught fire or that some blank wall left standing in the wake of the flames finally crashed down into the embers.

The fire from its early moments sped beyond the powers of the fire-fighting forces and spread before the wind with almost lightning rapidity.

Communications Cut

Boston, Feb. 2—Operators of the Western Union Telegraph Company in the Fall River office of the company tonight sent out news of the great fire which swept that city tonight until their building was in flames.

The record of the log of the office said that the men "stuck until their shoes were burned."

At midnight the stricken city was cut off from communication with outside world.

Operators Ousted

Boston, Mass., Feb. 2—(Bulletin)—Telephone service between Fall River and the outside world failed shortly before 11 o'clock tonight when a great fire which swept the business district of that city reached the main telephone exchange. The operators were all forced to leave their places and service suspended.

The office of the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company in Fall River is situated on the North Main street near the city hall, and not far from the Pocasset mills, where the fire originated.

"The Wagon Show" is the photoplay at the Gaiety for Friday and Saturday. It is a good western feature in which Ken Maynard and his horse do their stunts. There is also a comedy which concludes an attractive bill.

NO BLAME IS ATTACHED TO TRAIN CREW

Shediac, Feb. 2—It developed at the inquest held by Dr. Eric Robichaud, coroner, on the death of Miss Sarah Leger, who was killed by the engine of the 3.35 outgoing train at the main street crossing yesterday, that the unfortunate woman was returning home from a visit to a sick relative, Mrs. LeBlanc, wife of Councillor T. LeBlanc. The jury found that the train crew were in no way to blame for the accident and recommended improved safeguards at the crossing.

The accident was seen by Collector of Customs Arthur Frier, Mayor E. R. McDonald, Frank Marley, sectionman Charles J. Heber and sectionman Charles MacEncrowe, but all were too far away to prevent the fatality.

Held Skating Party

Miss Annie Pugh entertained at a very enjoyable skating party last evening to a large group of friends. After the skating which was held at the Arctic Rink the group of young people proceeded to the home of the young lady, where she was hostess to a delightful and enjoyable luncheon. The party broke up at a late hour.

FIRE AT FALL RIVER, MASS. INVOLVES A LOSS WHICH WILL RUN INTO MILLIONS

Fall River, Mass., Feb. 2—Fire tonight was raging uncontrolled through the business district, causing losses placed in early estimates at several millions.

At least twelve large buildings and a number of smaller ones had fallen prey to the flames by a brisk northeast breeze. Aid had arrived from a number of nearby towns and hurry calls had been sent out for additional fire-fighting equipment.

The fire broke out shortly after 7 o'clock in the southeast corner of the Pocasset Mills, a textile plant which was being razed. All four units for the plant were destroyed.

In rapid order fire spread to and destroyed the Mohican Hotel, with several stores in the same building, the Rialto Theatre, the Boys' Club, the old building of the Fall River Herald-News, the building of the French daily newspaper L'Independent, the Vermont block, the Kresge building and the Granite Block.

The new building of the Herald-News, recently completed, was a total loss. The R. A. McWhirr Department Store was in flames also.

No Loss of Life

Loss of life was feared, but early reports of casualties could not be verified. One rumor that five firemen had been buried in the collapse of a wall at the Pocasset Mills.

Six firemen were under treatment at various hospitals for injuries.

When the fire started there was a large audience in the Rialto Theatre, but the hundreds of spectators filed out in orderly manner when the alarm was given.

Sparks driven by the wind set many fires in other parts of the city. The Troy mills, situated a mile from the scene of the fire, caught in this way and one section of the plant was in flames. A number of dwellings to the eastward of the main fire were also burning.

The Woolworth building was in flames as well as a building on Purchase street occupied by the Fall River office of the Providence Journal. The old Opera House on Rock street, a wooden structure occupied by a co-operative bank also was on fire.

The opposite sides of Main street two buildings stood as fire breaks in the path of the flames. On the west side of the street the flames were checked at the Merchant's block, built in 1843. This building had withstood previous conflagrations in the Fall River business district. On the east side the building of the Fall River Globe newspaper marked the limit of the ravaged area. Employees of the newspaper were engaged in playing hose on the roof and walls of their building.

Hotels and Mills Ignite

The Wilbur Hotel, immediately adjoining the Globe building, was burn-
