General Nobile and Party Within Sight of the Coast

Are Drifting Slowly on a Great Ice Bed—Their Single Tent is Painted Red to Attract Attention—Food Supply is Limited and They Are Suffering Severely From Frostbites.

(Special to The Daily Mail by the British United Press.)

Kings Bay, Spitzbergen, June 13—Drifting slowly on a great ice bed their one tent painted red so as to make it stand out as a signal to any searchers General Umberto Nobile and five comrades today were within sight of the coast of Northeastland.

They are suffering severely. Their hands are frost bitten. Their food supply is limited and is being rationed carefully. Only the single silk tent serves to protect them from the rigors of the northern climate.

Ten of their comrades are scattered on other ice floes, one group of seven and one group of three that started walking east. Nobile has heard nothing of them.

MILLTOWN YOUNG MAN UNDER ARREST

Are Suspected of Having Been Concerned in the St. Stephen Murder Case.

St. Stephen, June 12—Suspected of being the assailants of William Beaugard, local merchant, who died in the hospital here Sunday morning from blows on the head received when he was assaulted and robbed, while on his way home late Saturday night, two young Milltown, Me., men were put behind bars in the Calais, Me., lockup tonight, after being brought to Calais from Kingman, Me., where they were apprehended. As nearly as could be found out from Calais officers the pair are Buzzel and Fleming by name and are about 20 or 21 years of age. Stains found on their clothing were thought to be blood stains. They will be grilled tomorrow morning by Marshall Hill of the St. Stephen police force, and Sergeant Edwin D. Howard, of the New Brunswick Provincial Police, Saint John, who is expected to arrive here early this morning.

Were in St. Stephen

The two suspects are known to have been in St. Stephen late Saturday night.

Today Mrs. Beaugard told Marshal Hill that she was practically certain the man she saw approaching her home Saturday night a few moments before the assault was committed, was her husband. She noticed the man carrying a basket. This was Mr. Beaugard's custom to do every Saturday night, bringing home groceries. A basket was found near the victim's watch and hat a short way from where he is supposed to have been attacked.

Mrs. Beaugard said that when she saw the man she thought it was her husband and unlocked the rear door so he could get in. She then turned on the verandah light and went to do some household task. In a few moments she thought that her husband had had time to enter the house, but not hearing him she went to the door and looked up and down the street. There was no sign of anyone.

Fish Not Geese

Recently a gentleman visiting this city from P. E. Island was reported to have made the statement that wild geese were being slaughtered in that province and were being used by the ranchers as food for their foxes. The statement was brought to the attention of Mr. F. W. Barker, Assistant Migratory Warden, who in turn notified the Federal authorities. Upon being interviewed the man in question denied ever having made such a remark but he admitted having made the statement that "it was a crime the way fish were being slaughtered and fed to the foxes."

Neither Its Supporters
or Opponents Dare
Make a Prediction.

OPPOSITION STILL STRONG

The Issue Said to be More Open Now Than Last Time.

(Special cable to The Daily Mail by the British United Press.)
London, June 13—What the fate of the new prayer book will be when the vote is taken tomorrow after a debate lasting fourteen hours, neither supporters or opponents will predict.

The issue is more open than it was last time when supporters thought they could easily carry the House of Commons with them, and made the mistake of being too confident. They believed their debating team has been strengthened now, but on the other hand opponents are just as bitterly opposed and say they have ascertained how much of the country is with them.

The record of 5,193,600 shares was created in a market that was rocked to its foundations by a storm of selling orders which carried prices of active issues down to $2 to nearly $30 a share in a reaction equalling in intensity the disastrous break of March, 1926. The ticker was one hour and 54 minutes late in recording the final quotation, the longest delay on record.

The previous record of 4,887,408 shares was established on May 16, when the ticker was one hour and 19 minutes late.

Repairing Fountain

The occurrence of a leak at the base of the fountain in front of the City Hall has necessitated repairs. The floor of the basin has been torn up and the pipes are being repaired.

Women are Already To Begin an Air Race Across the Atlantic

Miss Boll Arrived Safely at Harbor Grace Last Evening in the Columbia—Both Miss Earhart and Miss Boll Are Making Plans Today
For Their Venturesome Journey.

(By J. T. MEANY, United Press Special Correspondent.)

St. Johns, Nfld., June 13—Two monoplanes waited on Newfoundland—mid-station of the Trans-Atlantic air course between Europe and New York—today while the woman leader of each crew hurriedly made plans to start on the venturesome air journey across the sea.

There was every prospect of a race between Miss Mabel Boll who is known as the Queen of Diamonds, who borrowed the Bellanca monoplane Columbia and came to Newfoundland yesterday, and Miss Amelia Earhart who waits with her crew of the Fokker Friendship at Trepassey Bay.

Miss Boll arrived at Harbor Grace in the Columbia at eight o'clock last night and stepped to the ground fresh and not at all tired.

LORD OXFORD'S ESTATE IS NOT A LARGE ONE

London, June 13—Part of the small estate left by the late Lord Oxford and Asquith, former premier, is to be devoted to the education of two children. The estate amounted to £9,168 (approximately $45,000) and of this amount £2,500 will go to his friend, Mrs. Hilda Harrison for the education of her two children, according to the details of the will made public today.

Lord Asquith's widow, Margot, received only £300 and books, furniture and other personal property. The will states that owing to the settlement with Lady Asquith's father Sir Chas. Tennant, made at the time of her marriage, no special provision was needed. The rest of the estate is divided among beneficiaries.

NEWSPAPERS ON BLUE STOCK SOME TIME

Cleveland, June 13—Newspapers printed on blue paper are seen as the next advance in the mechanics of issuing a newspaper, by A. McC. Craighead, of Dayton, here for the second annual convention of the American Publishers' Association.

Color is one of the most important questions of publishers today Craighead to mechanical superintendents of large daily newspapers, heads of composing rooms, pressmen, stereotypers and photo-engravers who comprise the association.

"Readers won't look at a paper printed on yellow, faded, dirty paper," Craighead said. "They are demanding a color easy and pleasing to the eye. Since the war we have been working steadily toward the bluish-white newspaper. If the tendency continues we'll soon be reading the news on blue paper."

The Fredericton Imperial baseball club which lost to the Martello baseball team last evening in a game played at the West End Improvement grounds, St. John, returned at a late hour last night to this city by automobile. Three cars were utilized in the trip made to the Foggy City.

DANCERS RIVAL PYLE'S PLODDERS

Chicago, June 13—The bunion derby of Mr. Pyle has nothing on a dance marathon for dogged endurance, take it from the 10 couples surviving from the original 138 who started going round and round at the Coliseum last Saturday. They are trainers, masseurs, physicians, dieticians, managers and what not to add longevity to the affair. One fair marathoner, ruled off the floor when a physician said her heart was weak, complained in vain to the states' attorney that her heart had been libeled.

Elect Officers

Following devotions held this morning at 9.30 o'clock, the Baptists of the Western Association held a business meeting at 10 o'clock and the following officers were elected: Moderator, Rev. D. C. Kaine; Vice-Moderator, B. T. Marston; Clerk and Terasurer, Rev. J. E. Gosline; Preacher of the Association Sermon, Rev. J. A. Corey. Reports brought out that membership of over 1,000 Baptists has arisen a total of nearly $90,000. Six pastorates were shown to be without pastors at present. Several students are laboring within the association for the summer.

The theory is that a man is boss of his own home. That's the theory.
