AN IMPORTANT DECISION.

The application for a writ of habeas corpus on behalf of John F. Doherty, now serving a six months' sentence in jail here for violating the Intoxicating Liquor Act, was refused by Mr. Justice Mignault of the Supreme Court of Canada yesterday. Attorney General Baxter, who opposed the application, questioned the jurisdiction of the Judge to grant a writ on a conviction made under a provincial statute. His Lordship concurred in the Attorney General's view and refused to grant the application. The question raised by J. J. F. Winslow, K. C., Doherty's counsel, that the Canada Temperance Act is still in force in York County, was not dealt with by the Judge. It is noticeable that those who violate the liquor laws of the province do not get far in their appeals to higher courts these days. As a matter of fact if the Canada Temperance Act were really in force in this province, Doherty and others like him would not be serving terms in jail.

BEAUTY IS IMMORTAL.

There is a tree across the way that seems sorely stricken. Less than a fortnight ago it was alive with luxuriant foliage, and bowed gracefully and deferentially to every passing wind. A scrawny thing it is now—like a bird that has molted its fine plumage.

But there is another side to the story. The tree across the way is not really dead. Within it, unseen, run the currents of life which gave it beauty. It is strong yet, and resistant. No normal living thing wants to die. The tree across the way doesn't. Its roots are clinging to the earth, seeking after the mysterious source of immortality and redemption.

Nature is wise in the wisdom of understanding faith. Man couldn't manage the business of running a tree successfully. He hasn't faith sufficient unto the job. Unmolested, the stark naked thing across the way will live a new life.

The beauty we knew a short time ago is gone, but it will come this way again. It is immortal.

ACTIVITY IN NEW BRUNSWICK.

(London, England, Empire Mail.)

Important industrial projects in the Province of New Brunswick were referred to by the Premier, the Hon. J. B. M. Baxter, in a speech on August 25. "Within the next two or three years," he said, "there will be operating a 250-ton paper mill at Dalhousie, the capacity of which will be increased to 500 tons within five years. There will be two sulphite mills on the Miramichi. The capacity of the Bathurst paper mill will be doubled by the installation of another paper machine, and there will be erected at Athol, in the county of Restigouche, another sulphite mill. Within two months the power will be turned on at Grand Falls to produce the richest form of wealth the forests of the Province have yet furnished."

AT THE END.

What we have in wealth at the end of the race of life is a poor standard for us to be judged by. A man said: "If I give away my money people will think, when I come to die, that I am not leaving much."

Could there be a more empty pleasure than to contemplate what people are likely to say about the amount of money you left, after you are out of the world? The kind words will be spoken, not for the misers who left fortunes, but for those who gave away fortunes while they lived. Making our lives count now gives real satisfaction. Having people say, after we're gone, that we left a lot of money will give us no comfort.

In "Julius Caesar" we hear Antony saying: "I am no orator, as Brutus is; I only speak right on." What a comfort it would be if so-called orators, boring us with speeches, would quit trying to be orators and "speak right on." Good style is the simple, straight-forward manner of a man who has something to say, and knows precisely when to quit saying it.

If, as that eminent scientist claims, a man has a more acute sense of smell than a woman, how come that when he is told to "put more water on the potatoes if they boil dry" he can get behind his paper and let the darn things burn to a crisp without even noticing it?

We are told that the score or more passengers who made the flight across the Atlantic in the Graf Zeppelin complained of the slow progress made by the big aircraft. It is assumed from this they did not escape the distress caused by seasickness.

Men who have had the most to do are the ones most likely to be on time. They have been forced to learn how to manage their time. The management of time is the principal secret of getting somewhere and getting something done.

Those evening gowns that are long behind and chopped off at the knees in front must be a great comfort to the girls who never can manage to get their stockings on with the seams straight in the back.

These are terrible times for the disinterested, and we expect any day to hear of a manufacturer receiving a complaint that he doesn't include enough elephants or donkeys in his animal crackers.

New York University, this winter, will teach its girl students to buy good clothes. Some of the earlier lectures, it is understood, will cover the mechanism of the charge account.

An engineer in England has perfected a "clutchless car," which does not do away, however, with the one around the neck when the earnest young lovers borrow the coupe.

It's funny about the Two Black Crows not running for office themselves this fall, with so many candidates borrowing their "Why bring that up?" line.

An English inventor has designed a car in which the back seat is reversed, but the informative and executive occupant will probably insist on having a front-view mirror.

The only sure way to comfort and peace of mind in this world is to get over being frightened at people and things.

"I always miss you, Bill," sings a lady poet in a western exchange. We wonder how often she has tried to pot him?

Autumn is that delightful season of the year that comes between the period of fretting over the heat and freezing with the cold.

Midweek Market

Despite the rainy weather this morning, the Phoenix Square market space was well lined with teams and trucks from the country with their usual produce. The prevalent sellers appeared to be potatoes, apples and the staple products, as well as various kinds of meats. The usual large variety of vegetables were on hand and sold for the usual prices. The prices list as follows: butter 40 cents per pound; potatoes $1.25 per barrel; apples $1 to $6 per barrel; veal 12 and 18 cents per pound; chicken 45 cents per pound; lamb 20 and 30 cents per pound; carrots 5 cents per bunch; corn (Yellow Bantam) 15 cents per dozen; tomatoes 20 cents per peck; squash 3 cents per pound; pumpkin 2 cents per pound.

Josh Billings is alleged to have said: "There iz one thing I alwus did like natur for, she don't take the trouble to explain." And yet it seems to come quite natural for members of the human race to make poor little excuses.

Game Hunters Return

A party of four big game hunters from New York who have been spending the past few weeks in the Miramichi woods returned yesterday to this city en route to their homes in New York state. The party includes, William W. Proudfoot of Dobbs Ferry, N. Y.; J. D. Mumford, Westfield, N. J.; Dr. Harrison Betts, New York City; and J. M. Cully, New York City. Though not greatly successful in securing big game, the hunters had a splendid time and enjoyed their stay in the New Brunswick forests immensely. The party left by car this morning for their respective homes.

NOWADAYS YOU PRESS A BUTTON

Or perhaps a switch, or some little gadget, and a lot of things happen around home that lighten labor and banish trouble.

A Whirling Fan brings a cooling breeze, and a little copper, dish-like affair throws out a sizzling blast that warms the room in no time.

Another button boils coffee, toasts bread and cooks waffles. Another does a better job than a broom. Another makes a happy laundress out of a dismal washwoman. Another one cools the ice-box. Another—but why go on?

Labor and time saving devices have come and are today within the reach of the humblest home.

And one of the chief reasons why they have come and why they are within the reach of the humblest home is the power of advertising.

Advertising has carried the news of these better ways of doing things to every home. It has created a desire to possess them, and countless thousands have purchased them, and live better because of them.

Reading advertising not only tells you about new, helpful mechanical devices for the home, but it is an unfailing guide to reliable products.

READ ADVERTISING REGULARLY. IT POINTS THE WAY TO BETTER LIVING.
