League Makes Another Move For World Security and Peace

Is Regarded as the Most Tangible Accomplishment of the Session Now Drawing to a Close — A General Act Respecting Arbitration Conciliation and Pacific Settlement of Disputes Unanimously Approved.

(Special to The Daily Mail by the British United Press.)

GENEVA, Sept. 26—A concerted move for world security and peace was made by the Ninth Assembly of the League of Nations today. It was the final important action of the session now closing and perhaps its most tangible accomplishment.

The assembly unanimously approved a "General Act" respecting arbitration conciliation and the Pacific settlement of disputes. The general act constituted the League's final work for security coupled with the Kellogg anti-war treaty, it was counted on to remove the last pretext of "insecurity" as a reason for a nation's refusal to disarm.

Principles Embodied

The act embodies the majority of the principles of the defunct Geneva protocol and is a result of the past year's work of the League's security commission. It embraces three model unilateral treaties on the Pacific settlement of disputes and model bilateral treaties, on the same subject, providing for mutual assistance and non aggression.

The League will submit the general act at once to all member nations. It will be accompanied by a recommendation that nations who feel their security threatened undertake at once the negotiation of the model treaties outlined in the act, or either a collective or separate basis. The assembly adjourned after today's proceedings.

DEPLORES THE PREVALENCE OF GAMBLING

Woodstock, Sept. 25—While appreciating the educational value of exhibitions and the good that they were capable of doing in the promotion of agriculture generally, Hon. Lewis Smith, Minister of Agriculture for New Brunswick, in speaking at the opening of the tenth annual Woodstock exhibition here this evening, deplored the prevalence of gambling at all fall fairs. He expressed the hope that directors of other exhibitions would do all in their power to eliminate this feature in future programs in the interests of their patrons.

The speaker congratulated the directors on the display of agricultural products and expressed his pleasure at the ever increasing interest in raising livestock in Carleton county, a county noted particularly for its potato production. He outlined several of the policies being forwarded by the Department of Agriculture and assured the farmers of the willingness of his Department to co-operate in every way.

Ideal weather favored the opening day and the attendance compared favorably with the opening day crowd of previous years.

The racing program will get away tomorrow with the 2.18 mixed, junior free-for-all and 2.30 trot.

Europe is Suspicious Of Negotiations of Britain and France

Italy the Latest Nation to Express Lively Concern—The Whole Situation is Regarded as Dangerous—Newspapers Urge Somebody in Authority to Clear the Atmosphere.

(Special to The Daily Mail by the British United Press.)

LONDON, Sept. 26—In spite of all official denials and partial explanations from government officials in London and Paris, the whole of Europe is viewing the negotiations between Britain and France with the deepest suspicion and in some cases with open alarm. Russia is perturbed, Germany is suspicious, and now Italy is expressing lively concern.

It is obvious that the whole situation is most dangerous, and the newspapers here demand even more strongly than before that somebody in authority in Britain should once for all make clear what exactly is happening.

Today the Daily Telegraph calls attention to the Italian suspicion. It points out that twice, during the past week the Tribunal which is regarded as the mouthpiece of the Italian foreign office, alleged that Great Britain and France had supplemented the recent naval agreement with another more informal one dealing with air forces, to effect which France will shortly concentrate the bulk of her air fleet on the French frontier.

Noble of the Royal Bank of Canada, who is Honorary Treasurer of the committee, that his personal cheque for $500 was also being forwarded to the committee. Among the first in Canada to give attention to the situation resulting from the hurricane in the Leeward Islands was the Canadian National Railways and the Canadian National Steamships, providing together direct communication for relief from Canada to those stricken in the disaster. Immediately the seriousness of the hurricane became known the Canadian National Railways offered to carry relief supplies free of charge to Halifax, and a similar offer was made by the Canadian National Steamships from Halifax to the various islands. The first shipment of relief supplies left Halifax last Friday by the Canadian National steamer "Canadian Volunteer".
