EX-PREMIER MURRAY TELLS OF WHAT IS BEING DONE TO ATTRACT SETTLERS TO NEW BRUNSWICK

Hon. J. A. Murray, a former Premier of the province and now immigration commissioner, was the principal speaker at the Board of Trade luncheon at the Palms last evening, and delivered an illuminating address on the immigration work which he is now carrying on under the direction of the Provincial Government. While it was necessary for him to condense his remarks he treated the gathering to a very interesting account of what is being done to attract settlers from the old country, dwelling particularly on the agreement entered into by the province with the Federal and British governments under which a large number of families are to be brought from the old country and established on farms in the province. Hon. Mr. Murray spoke with his old time fluency and was attentively listened to.

President Phillips presided at the luncheon with Hon. Mr. Murray and Mr. F. B. Edgecombe on his right and Hon. C. D. Richards and Ex-Mayor John A. Reid on his left. Several sections admirably rendered by the Devon quartette added zest to the proceedings. Before the speech making began President Phillips announced that the excellent luncheon served by the Palms had been supplemented by a gift of "Celestial Dry" ginger ale donated by the Capital Bottling Company of this city.

Hon. Mr. Murray.

Hon. Mr. Murray in rising said that he felt it a great honor to be privileged to address the Fredericton Board of Trade, but it only went to show the interest being taken in immigration by the business men of the province. He felt that immigration and agriculture went hand in hand, as the object of immigration was really to promote greater agricultural development. Quite recently he had attended a conference between officials of the Federal and Provincial agricultural departments and had been struck by the business like way in which the business had been transacted. Since the time when he had filled the office of Minister of Agriculture he had been impressed by the earnestness with which officials of the department took hold of their work. He considered Kings County the premier county of the province so far as agriculture was concerned. They maintained a cooperative dairy in Sussex, which a few years ago had an annual output value at $50,000. In 1926 it had increased to $300,000, and he did not have the figure for the last year. This cooperative dairy had in one year handled three million pounds of milk. The dairy products of Canada in 1926 were valued at $62,000,000 and he regretted to say that New Brunswick's share of that output was equal to only one per cent of the total. This indicated that the farmers of the province were not producing sufficient dairy products to meet the demands of our own people. The fact that the province imported large quantities of beef, poultry, eggs, cheese and other farm products showed that agriculture in New Brunswick was badly in need of a stimulus. Immigration was certainly a big problem and one which needed to be carefully studied if results were to be obtained.

N. B. Immigration.

Hon. Mr. Murray here quoted statistics showing the number of immigrants who had come into the province in recent years. He said the number who arrived with the intention of settling in the province during the year ending October 31st last was 1502. He went on to say that colonization was of great importance in connection with immigration. It was important that after their arrival here care should be taken to see that settlers were well placed on farms. The number of settlers in New Brunswick from Scandinavian countries was in excess of 2000, and they were the best settlers obtainable from overseas. The Scandinavian settlement in Victoria County he said was a model for the whole Dominion. The province did not want industrial workers from overseas and was not putting forth any effort to obtain them.

The speaker went on to say that it used to cost $112 to bring a family out from the Old Country to New Brunswick, but it now cost $300. He next explained the agreement entered into by the Province of New Brunswick with the Imperial and Dominion Governments, for the promotion of immigration. The signing of the agreement had been a splendid advertisement for the province. Under its terms the province agreed to purchase improved farms and re-sell them to the immigrants on easy terms of payment extending over a period of twenty-five years. The Dominion Government had undertaken to assist in establishing the immigrants on the farm. The British Government had undertaken to provide each family with the sum of $1,500 to assist them in getting established on a New Brunswick farm. Ten per cent of the amount advanced by the British Government was to be paid over to the Government of New Brunswick towards the cost of the farm. Any loss which might occur in connection with the stock or machinery belonging to the settler would be equalled borne by the British and Canadian Governments. The New Brunswick land settlement scheme would become effective on March 31st of the present year and he believed would result in bringing a splendid class of settlers to the province.

Speaking of deserted farms in New Brunswick Hon. Mr. Murray said that statements often appearing in the press were greatly exaggerated. It was true that there were many vacant farms but a goodly percentage of them should remain vacant, as they were of such a nature that no man could earn a living on them. Settlers must be provided with buildings in which they could live decently and they must be assisted in getting a start in their new home.

Hon. Mr. Murray said that it was a great mistake to try to discourage people from settling in the province. Instead of being discouraged they should be encouraged and told that New Brunswick was one of the best provinces in the Dominion. He cited the farm settlement board act passed in 1912 to show that New Brunswick had done much to encourage our own people to settle on the land. Since 1912 no less than 531 people had bought farms under the act and more than half of that number had paid for them in full. This went to show that the government had done much to assist its own people. The government had originally borrowed $150,000 for the purchase of farms under the settlement board, and now had to the credit of the fund the substantial sum of $130,000.

Hon. Mr. Murray in closing said that the government by promoting immigration and agriculture was determined to put New Brunswick in its proper place as one of the best provinces in the Dominion.

Hon. Mr. Murray was heartily applauded on resuming his seat.

An Enjoyable Program Was Carried Out at the Church of England Hall Last Evening.

The members of the Rotary Club and their rotarianns held a "Ladies Night" last evening at the Cathedral Memorial Hall in Church street, it being the first of a series planned by the club for the winter. An address of welcome was given by President Bill Bailey.

A short program was carried out, the first hour being spent in a general sing-song, led by Frank Cooper. Cards and dancing were indulged in, after which an enjoyable supper was served to the assembled guests. Prizes for bridge as well as prizes for dancing were presented to the winners at the close of the entertainment. George W. Brown and W. A. VanWart were in charge of the entertainment, while Frank L. Cooper was in charge of the singing. In the course of the program Mr. Riddle, physical instructor, gave several readings which were heartily received.
