The Revised Prayer Book May be Fiercely Attacked

Liberal Elements in the House of Commons Take the Ground That the Ritualism is Too Much Like That of the Roman Catholic Church — House of Laity Approves the Revised Draft by a Vote of 196 to 80.

London, Feb. 8—The bitter fight over a revised version of the Anglican church of England prayer book reached its next to last stage today when the House of Laity at a church assembly approved the revised draft by a vote of 196 to 80.

The remaining houses—Bishops and clergy—had approved the draft yesterday. Now it is ready to be submitted to Parliament for approval or disapproval.

Indications were that a fierce attack would be made on the book by Liberal elements in the House of Commons, which recently rejected the original revised version, holding that the ritualism authorized by it too nearly approached that of the Roman Catholic church.

In the very house where it is customary for them to clean the rooms from cellar to attic daily, the charwomen, dressed in their "Sunday best," made themselves at home in the premier's residence.

The reception to the charwomen is an annual event, and now the women have become somewhat accustomed to their temporary social role. They enjoyed the party very much.

U.S. UNLIKELY TO ENTER INTO ANTI-WAR PACT

How Proposals in British House are Viewed at Washington.

NOT BELIEVED PRACTICAL

Secretary of State Kellogg Unwilling to Adopt Term Outlaw.

Washington, Feb. 8—Proposals in the British House of Commons for resumption of Anglo American naval armaments discussion or negotiation of a treaty to outlaw war were viewed by observers today as interesting but impracticable for the present.

It was recalled that the United States within recent months had vainly moved toward both objectives first at Geneva when naval armaments were discussed and next during the anti-war discussion with France.

It was believed unlikely that the United States would enter into any anti war pact with Great Britain, or any other country alone or even with a group of countries, unless the group included France, Germany, Italy and Japan in addition to Britain. Even under such circumstances Secretary of State Kellogg was believed willing to renounce war only as an instrument of national policy without adopting the term "Outlaw."

OPENED SHOW ROOMS IN THE CHESTNUT BLOCK

Fine Display of Chrysler Cars Now Being Made by Phillips & Pringle, Limited.

Messrs. Phillips & Pringle announce in this issue the opening of special show rooms for Chrysler cars in the premises recently occupied by Canadian Bank of Commerce, in the Chestnut building 380 Queen Street.

Chrysler automobiles have because of their merit been accepted by the public in ever increasing numbers so that in three and one-half years they have won from 27th to 3rd place in the industry. Such rapid public acceptance is so marked a degree has never been accorded any other automobile.

In the new show room, Messrs. Phillips and Pringle have on display the Imperial Eighty, America's highest powered car, the Illustrious 72, the Great New 62, and the Four cylinder 52.

The fact that prices of all 52 and 62 models were reduced on February first makes this an especially attractive showing.

By removing the Chrysler Show Room to outside premises, Messrs. Phillips and Pringle Ltd. are practically conserving the whole of the space in their large Garage on City Hall Square so that they will have plenty of space to continue to service all of the cars of their old Ford customers.

It is their intention to pay especial attention to this branch of their work as long as there are any model T Fords in operation.

The Senator said he believed Canadians of the present day had no fear of annexation to the United States and paid no attention to the attempts to rouse their fears. He quoted statistics to show that unemployment was greater in the United States than in Canada.

At this stage the distinguished visitors left the Senate for the House of Commons.

Resuming the debate, Senator Hughes denounced protection and said it was probably only defensible in one country and that the United States.

Senator Tanner discussed the St. Lawrence waterways and hoped that it would be considered on national and not sectional grounds.

Scarcity of Bobcats

Mr. Thomas O'Leary, a well known guide and trapper of New Maryland who was in the city today claims that bob cats are being rapidly thinned out in his section of the country. He says they used to be very plentiful in the vicinity of Beaverdam and were most destructive to deer and partridge. He does not believe that there is one bob cat now where there was dozens a year ago. The amount paid out in bounties this year in comparison with a few years ago also indicates a growing scarcity of bobcats.
