OLD MEN AND SERVICE

Don't make any mistake about youth. It's great to be young. There's no substitute for youth. But youth hasn't everything. In fact youth hasn't enough. Business management often makes the mistake of putting youth in places of too much responsibility, of ditching old age for the added pep of the youngster. Youngsters have pep, but sometimes they have not much more. It's a mistake to turn off the old just because they're gray around the ears. That may be just when they're at their best—just when they're getting good. Leadership needs the sure touch of the veteran. Haig of England was a veteran. He was along in years. Foch was an old man. So was Clemenceau. Lloyd George was not young. Wilson made his mark when he was between 60 and 70.

TOO MUCH ALIKE

Standardized houses, produced and delivered like automobiles, are predicted by a prophet of progress. Already there are such houses to be had, but he sees them coming into general use. The question is whether he is really a prophet of progress in this respect. Progress has to be something more than a speeding-up process. It has to be something more than change. In lines which ought to permit of real self-expression there is too much standardization now. What is more dreary and deadly than a row of houses that are all alike. The death of self-expression and the opportunity for self-expression is death, indeed.

ABOUT WALKING

The old prophet tells us of those who shall "mount up with wings like eagles. They shall run and not be weary. They shall walk and not faint."

That's fine. It's great to be able to fly like an eagle. It's great to be able to run and not be weary. As the years come on, the problem-with-most of us—all of us—is to walk and not faint.

Are we living now so that tomorrow we can walk and not faint?

Hon. R. B. Bennett, M. P., leader of the Conservative party will be in Fredericton on Saturday of this week and plans are under way to accord him the greatest welcome of his maritime tour. It was in this city the Conservative leader spent many happy days qualifying himself for the teaching profession. It was here also that he was admitted to the bar after having completed his law course at Dalhousie University.

It is announced that Forbes & Brown have been awarded the contract for the Lady Beaverbrook Memorial building at the U. N. B. The contract price is $196,364 which means that the structure will be a substantial one. Messrs Forbes and Brown were the contractors for the U. N. B. Memorial Hall erected two years ago and their work was highly satisfactory.

A memorial in honor of the Marquis DeValiere, one of the early governors of Acadia was unveiled at Fort Beasejour near the border line of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia this afternoon with appropriate ceremony. The list of speakers included Hon. R. B. Bennett, Hon. J. L. Ralston, Hon. P. J. Veniot.

The Montreal city council has made a move to stop the clamor of motor horns on the streets during the night. The Fredericton city council moved in the matter some time ago.

—One thing that can be said for the modern civilization, observes an exchange is that hash is gradually fading out of the picture but that's cold comfort to the man who has a vision of near approaching dental disintegration.

—“It is me” is perfectly all right according to the opinion of a Baltimore pedagogue. But it isn't all right, and no English shark trying to make a virtue of sloppiness can make it right.

Woman's vaunted intuition always seems so much less remarkable when she loses the recipe she has used for years and goes ahead with the cake regardless.

—The reason a man is never able to give his wife a very satisfactory account of his night out is because he can't talk and listen at the same time.

—That chap who is going to roll a barrel from New ork to Miami is making his start at the wrong end. Why not finish in Gotham and get a reception!

—Census of the farm population of Iowa, we read, show that the number of automobiles owned by the farmers is in excess of the number of persons. No wonder the farmer needs relief.

David Belasco is alleged to have asked Jack Dempsey “when he was the worst scared in his life.” You can have one guess at giving the right answer.

Another absorbing study of mankind is how the stenographer's school girl complexion moves around from day to day.

A woman novelist in New York has decided to marry her publisher instead of mailing the customary rejection slip.

—The reason a woman's intuition is so remarkable is because the driver of the other car makes a lucky guess or stops dead.

The Office crab defines a used car as any vehicle once driven by the wife.

There was another big motor combine the other night, at a nearby intersection.

Looking back over Gene Tunney's record we find this is the first time he has quit.

—And then, too, Gene Tunney realizes he now has a better start for his new start.

FUNERAL OF LATE MRS. J. G. McNALLY

The funeral of the late Mrs. James G. McNally, who passed away in Toronto on Friday and whose remains were brought here and interred yesterday was very largely attended by friends and relatives in this city. As soon as the body arrived yesterday at noon, it was conveyed to the Brunswick Street Baptist Church where an impressive service was conducted by Rev. Dr. G. C. Warren at 2.30 o'clock before a large congregation. In his remarks Dr. Warren spoke of the work which the deceased had performed in the church and of the sterling character which endeared her to all. A quartet composed of F. L. Cooper, A. B. Bailey, Herbert Bailey and Cecil Holder rendered the hymn “Abide With Me”. Interment was made in the Rural cemetery. The pall bearers were: Mayor Clark, R. B. Wallace, A. C. Porter, R. B. VanDine, W. K. Tibert and W. B. Burden. The chief mourners follow: Rev. C. R. McNally, Theodore R. McNally, M. Byron McNally, F. B. Smith, Havelock Coy and J. W. Spurden.

Guests at the Barker.

Among the guests of the Barker House today are: Dr. and Mrs. George E. Wiggin of Exeter, N. H.; Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Stanley of Eaton Centre, N. H.; Ralph Moreland of Exeter, N. H.; J. I. Wilson of St. John; J. F. Sexton of Moncton; Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Childs of Houston, Texas; Billy and Phyllis Childs, of Texas; W. O. Fuchs of Cincinnati, Ohio; C. Cox of Truro, N. S.; A. S. Doran of Halifax.

THROUGH OUR SIEVE

Even “Ramona” will wear out by constant repetition.

El Ouafi wins the farathon. There's a name to remember.

Lima Beane says the honeymoon is over when she begins to make him over.

Cigaret burns on the library table are not as calamitous to women as in former days.

It was bound to come and has. Talking movies have been shortened to “talkies.”

Many people have little use for classical music. They prefer something that will wear out.

Rain falls alike on the just and the unjust and static interferes with the sermon and also the dance tempo.

Recently an Oregon paper apologized for not mentioning the name of the bridegroom at the wedding. As if that mattered.

Yesterday we saw a man in a rumble seat leading a horse. The horse seemed to feel a bit backward if the expression is permissible.

PREMIER OF NEWFOUNDLAND HAS QUIT POST

St. Johns, Nfld., Aug. 13—Following the resignation of Hon. W. Monroe, Premier of Newfoundland which will be submitted to His Excellency the Administrator tomorrow, it is understood that the latter will on the recommendation of Premier Monroe, call upon Hon. F.
