ALDERMAN C. HEDLEY FORBES ABLY DISCUSSES ISSUES OF CAMPAIGN

(Continued from Page Two) balancers of the opposition. It strikes me, however, that a candidate for public office who will err to the extent of $5,500,000 in an item of $7,500,000 cannot be accepted as a sound critic or authority on provincial finances. Of course my Sunbury friend is for economy; he does not believe in building hard surfaced roads, and thinks that the province can get along with less tourist traffic, which he describes as a nebulous asset. I can tell him that his views are not shared by thousands of deserving men and women in this province.

A Final Word

Ladies and gentlemen, my time is about up. I stand before you as the candidate of a government which has given the province a good administration of its affairs during an unexampled period of depression for which it was in no way responsible. If I did not honestly believe that, I would not be here as a candidate. Premier Tilley has labored hard to advance your interests and his government is well deserving of a new lease of power. York in the intelligence and thrift of its people, in its natural resources and scenic attractions will not suffer from a comparison with any county in the maritimes. If you will honor me with your confidence, I will do my level best to advance your interests, and I can say the same of my colleagues.

A Sunbury Voice

I presume that some of you listened to the radio address of Major Lawson of Minto last night. If so, you must have noticed that he came nearer the truth than some other opposition candidates when discussing the public debt. He gave it as $63,000,000, which is three million less than it is set forth in opposition campaign literature. But he kicked over the milk pail when he gave the sinking fund as $2,000,000 instead of correctly stating it at $7,500,000. I take it that a little matter of five and a half million dollars cuts no figure with the would-be budget

CANADIAN WHEAT GOING TO COST MORE FOR GERMANY TO MARRY IN MONTANA

OTTAWA, June 13—Canada supplied 60 per cent of all wheat imported into Germany last year, its shares of the total German imports valued at Reich's marks 60,919,000 being R. M. 37,526,000, according to Paul Sykes, Canadian Trade Commissioner at Hamburg.

The 1934 total imports of wheat into Germany were down from 1933 R. M. 11,100,000, while the imports from Canada were down by R. M. 34,400,000. development last year was the appearance in the German wheat market of such countries as France, Yugoslavia, Turkey and Morocco they supplied R. M. 4,628,000 worth. Imports from Soviet Russia increased from R. M. 1,422,000 to R. M. 3,344,000; but wheat shipments from Argentina declined from R. M. 6,151,000 to R. M. 3,489,000.

BAN ON CONCUBINES WILL START JULY 1

PEIPING, June 13—Chinese husbands have until July 1 to decide whether they want to take concubines in addition to a wife. After that time a new law goes into force which makes a bigamy a crime.

REGINA, Sask., June 13—It's going to be expensive, and difficult, to get married across the border in Montana.

Montana's new state marriage law, effective July 1, sets the price of a marriage license at $3, but makes health examination necessary.

And Helena physicians say they intend to charge $25 for such an examination. The state medical association will set the fee in July. Couples are also required to show a court document that neither is suffering from 'ementia or dementia or both.'

Church ministers in Saskatchewan towns along the international border say there has been an increase in Montana weddings for Saskatchewan couples. The practice is expected to stop in July.

Advertise in The Daily Mail. It Pays.

Because so many Chinese have concubines, the law is not retroactive and so the men may retain consorts taken prior to July 1.

THE PUBLIC DEBT EXAGGERATED BY THE OPPOSITION

Plain Statement by Hon. A. J. Leger, Provincial Secretary-Treasurer

The electors of the province should pay no heed to the grossly exaggerated statements on the public debt being circulated by propagandists and barnstormers of the opposition. Hon. A. J. Leger, Provincial Secretary-Treasurer, is the custodian of the finances of New Brunswick. As a sworn adviser of the crown, represented by the Lieutenant-Governor, it is his duty to present a true statement to the Legislature, and he has ably performed that duty during each of the record breaking period of ten years that he has acted as the finance minister of the province. In his budget speech of March last he submitted the following statement of the public debt, and it was unchallenged by members of the opposition:

The Net Debt

"As in other years", said Hon. Mr. Leger, I will now give, in a simple form, the net debt, certified by the Provincial Auditors	$48,411,380.49
Debentures	54,954,442.50
Bonds issued for N. B. Elec. Power Com.	7,186,500.00

Housing Act 1919	808,000.00
	$20,092,231.35
Net debt	$48,411,380.49

"May we, for a moment, direct our attention to the net debt.

"In 1925, it was $32,345,909.32; the auditors now certify it at $48,411,380.49, or an increase since 1925 of $16,065,471.17.

"Our opponents, in their criticisms forget that in the eight years of their administration, they increased it from $95,809,855.00 to $32,345,909; or an increase of $16,536,054.00 with no apparent benefit or tangible results accrued to the public from the argumentation thereof"—adv.

BATHURST NEWS

BATHURST, June 12—In the Opera House last evening took place the largest political meeting in the history of Bathurst. This meeting was held in the interests of the Liberal party and was addressed, first by the four candidates, then by the leader, Hon. A. A. Dysart, who was most enthusiastically applauded. Between two thousand and three thousand people stood outside in the rain to hear the speakers through loud speakers which had been specially arranged for the occasion. The Citizens Band escorted

1,500 STRIKERS ABOARD FREIGHT TRAIN 'SPECIAL'

MEDICINE HAT, Alta., June 13—Aboard 47 freight cars, 1,500 British Columbia and Alberta relief camp strikers arrived here, after a 200 mile ride from Calgary.

Atop the heavily loaded cars, the men spent a cold night as a chill wind swept across the country.

From the freight yards the men marched to Athletic Park where they will be housed during their 24 hour stop-over here.

Cooking facilities were provided the strikers at the park, and after a wash-up the trekkers had breakfast. Most of them stayed in the camp.

While in Calgary they were given donations of food and clothing by the citizens and $1,200 was obtained in a Saturday tag day as well as $600 supplied by the Alberta Government for their week-end meals.

Carrying heavy pack sacks and an assortment of blankets and bundles, the strikers jumped aboard the long string of freight cars in the East Calgary yards of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

A "strike bulletin" issued today, thanked the people of Calgary for "the wholehearted financial and moral support. This had acted as an added incentive to the strikers to carry on the fight for the security of the youth of Canada," the bulletin said.

The Alberta Government has informed Mayor Isaac Bullivant, of Medicine Hat, it will provide $250 to feed the men while they are in Medicine Hat.

Premier R. B. Bennett, replying to a message received at Ottawa from Premier John Bracken, of Manitoba asking that the Dominion Government take steps to halt the march of relief camp strikers advancing on Ottawa, repeated his earlier declaration that he could not interfere unless help was requested from one of the provinces immediately concerned.

It was Mr. Bennett's suggestion that efforts be made to have a Federal Government party meet the men in some point in the West that would not involve a further eastward advance of the unemployed army. He also suggested that efforts be made to have the men placed in a relief camp somewhere in the West.

Mr. Bennett reiterated his statement that the Dominion authorities were prepared to do whatever was possible to assist the provinces in meeting the problem, but constitutionally there could be no intervention in a province's treatment of a problem of this nature, unless such intervention was especially requested by the province concerned.

No request for assistance had been received from either of the two provinces which have so far played host to the marchers, the Prime Minister said, nor had the railways asked for any assistance in keeping the men off trains.

Mr. Dysart from the Liberal committee rooms where he had addressed the newly formed Young Men's Liberal Club, to the Opera House.

Major Oliver and Captain Chauveau inspected the Bathurst Cadet Corps yesterday. Due to the heavy rain this inspection took place at the skating rink, instead of on the diamond, as had been planned by Mr. J. E. Picot, Cadet Instructor.

Several events had to be left out on account of muddy grounds. The inspection consisted of ceremonial, and squad drill, with physical exercises, exhibitions of signalling and first aid were also given. They inspected the Sacred Heart school on Monday. This school is in competition for Grant-Sully Shield.

Mr. and Mrs. John Pitre were agreeably surprised on Monday evening, it being the 25th anniversary of their marriage, when about sixty of their friends called on them in a body and presented them with a chest of silver. Two addresses were given one by Rev. D. Robichaud, parish priest, the other by C. M. Mersereau. It was a great surprise for Mr. and Mrs. Pitre who both responded very graciously. After an enjoyable social evening, a dainty lunch was served after which the friends dispersed, wishing Mr. and Mrs. Pitre 25 more years of wedded life.

KITCHEN QUEENS

ADVICE TO BRIDES

With so much discussion on adult education especially in rural education it is to be hoped that cooking will be given its proper attention.

This newspaper is prepared to hold, against all disputants, the thesis that home economics should take precedence over all other branches, and that good cooking is the chief of all sciences. The good cook works wonders with chemistry. She takes raw products that are non-edible, and by her wizardry makes the chemical changes that convert them into delectable dishes. The science of good cooking calls for a high degree of intelligence, precision, attention, vigilance and understanding.

If there were a more general understanding of these truths, there would be a deeper appreciation of the dignity of good house-keeping.

The national health and vigor are dependent upon correct dietary habits and when you take up that phase of the sciences, you discover that mere "rule of thumb" will not do in dietary science. A diet that is wholesome at one period of life may become poison at another. And there is infinite variety of individual idiosyncrasies in the assimilation or non-assimilation of various foods.

SANDWICHES

To cut thin, even slices of bread for sandwiches, one needs a very sharp knife. If the crust is to be removed, cut it from the loaf before slicing. Thin slices had better be spread before the slice is cut from the loaf. To keep slices in pairs makes them fit nicely.

Special sandwich bread, which does not taper towards the ends, gives even slices the whole length of the loaf. To cut nicely for sandwiches, bread should be one day old. Not only white bread may be used, but whole wheat, Boston brown, rye and raisin bread. Sandwiches with lettuce or salad greens should not be made long in advance, but other sandwiches may be wrapped with waxed paper or a damp cloth and kept a long time in a cold place. Waxed envelopes are convenient for sandwiches.

Soften the butter for sandwiches by letting it stand in a warm room. Meat, cheese and nut sandwiches do not need butter on both sides; but for jelly or jam sandwiches, it prevents the soaking of the bread if both sides are buttered.

Three types of sandwiches are enough for any picnic; sweet sandwiches, salad sandwiches, and meat sandwiches. It is unnecessary to have varieties inside these groupings. Sweet sandwiches may be of jelly or jam with cheese, nut butter or banana; chopped dried fruits and nuts; or fresh fruit with sugar or honey.

Salad sandwiches contain sliced tomato, cucumber, lettuce, watercress, ground carrots, chopped cabbage celery, pimientos, pickles, onions or other vegetables. Meaty sandwiches are made of shredded or chopped meats, fish, fowl or the meat substitutes; baked beans, cheese or eggs.

Tea sandwiches are dainty, cut very thin, in various shapes, and their ingredients finely minced. These may be chopped or crushed to a paste and blended with butter to give color and flavor. Such fillings might be parsley, pimento, lobster, deviled ham, watercress, mint leaves, prunes or other dried fruit nuts, candied fruit, melted chocolate, preserved ginger or cream cheese.

Open sandwiches are attractive. Rolled sandwiches are made of fine grained bread, cut in thin slices, spread with a creamed or pasty filling of high flavor, rolled into a cylinder fastened with toothpicks, wrapped in a damp cloth and set away for an hour to harden. They may be sliced crosswise, or brought forth in a roll with a sprig of parsley stuck into each end, or they may be toasted.

Ribbon sandwiches are made by cutting slices of bread lengthwise, spreading with various fillings, pressing together and leaving for a half hour while the filling sets, then slicing crosswise. Alternate white and brown slices of bread may be used. One filling might be tinted pink with paprika or pimentoes or minced ham; and another yellow with cheese.

FASHIONS, FADS, FOIBLES

Dot, dot, dash is not only a secret code in diplomacy, but also the secret of being fashionable. With plenty of dots, you have plenty of dash, for dotted Swiss mull, dotted taffetas and dotted lawns lead the parade just now.

It's blossom time on hats, head bands, and gowns these days. They range in size from tiny buds to sunflowers and are blooming as best they can with such materials as silk, velvet, wool, fabric and rayon.

Black and white never lose their popularity. This season they are stronger than ever, and thanks be, they are most economical colors. Black needs less laundry than other shades and white comes from the tub looking as good as new. While shoes are worn with dark as well as with light colored outfits.

Some of the season's outstanding features are: rolled brimmed sailors, worn on the back of the head; capes of all varieties; shorter skirts; streamlined trains on evening dresses, shorter in front and trailing behind; flares on tunics and skirts; the rustle of taffeta, as cool sounding as the clink of ice in glasses, fullness pulled to the front; and all to the effect of the slim waist and slender figure.
