

SOCIAL HAPPENINGS

Miss Hope Hanson is entertaining at a small tea on Friday at her home in honour of the girls of the graduating class of U.N.B.

Last evening at the conclusion of the graduating exercises of the Victoria Public Hospital Training School for Nurses, the graduating class held a reception at the Nurses' Home. The guests were the intimate friends and relatives of the class.

The closing meeting of the Ladies' Aid of the Hospital Board was held recently at the home of the president Mrs. D. J. Shea. After the business of the meeting, a social hour was enjoyed.

A quartette including Ronald Beatty, Kenneth Holder, Ralph Delong and Herbert Belding added to the enjoyment of the programme of the graduating exercises of the Victoria Hospital Training School for Nurses by rendering several selections. Herbert Belding sang in pleasing voice "I'll Sing Thee Songs of Araby," with Miss Gertrude Munro at the piano.

The gift of books from the New Brunswick Association of Nurses to each member of the graduation class of 1935 of the Victoria Public Hospital Training School for Nurses was a pleasing part of the programme. The presentation was made by Edith C. Brown.

The Anagwakade Chapter of the I. O. D. E. held its May meeting at the home of Miss Jean Hodge last evening there being a good attendance. Plans for Empire were made. Flag holders have been sent out to each school and on Empire Day a library will be presented to one rural school and an encyclopaedia to another rural school.

Lofty Sentiment In Mrs. A. L. Gerow's Address to Graduates

Mrs. Gerow in her excellent readings last night at the Graduation Exercises of the Victoria Public Hospital opened her address with two poems of Spring entitled Apple Blossoms, and Up a Hill and a Hill and a poem, An Old Woman of the Roads.

Continuing Mrs. Gerow said: I know the audience will join with me in these words to the graduating class: Bless and praise we famous women, women of little showing, for their work continueth, broad and deep, continueth Great, beyond their knowing.

The next was a poem presented to graduates, entitled "To My Mother." As suggested by this poem, if you would choose your life to be the monument consecrated in her behalf, you must make that life meaningful and beautiful. To do so we must see the thing we should do in life.

Some one has said: To know oneself and what to do in the environment in which you are placed is of all knowledge the most supremely important. Relatively little depends upon outward conditions, very much upon inward conditions and the only indestructible thing is character.

If we cannot answer the question: What is Life? we can give utmost primacy to the study of how to live—the greatest of all arts.

The Dean of a certain college has said: Four attributes go to the moulding or rounding out of a profession: 1st, Sincerity; 2nd, Personality; 3rd, Sympathy; 4th, Enthusiasm.

Mastery of technique of your profession is essential to your being where you are tonight, gained by right habits, long months and years of doing what may have seemed to you to have become mechanical, but redeemed from dead mechanism by the understanding of the ends sought—technique gained only by the hardest, painstaking, unremitting ways, no short cut, the part of the price paid for success.

Before artistry comes mastery, most true in the art of arts—the art of living.

The young man has been an employee of the Sunbury County Relief Project and forged the checks while employed there, being arrested several days ago by the R.C.M.P. The forgery occurred last summer.

The child was rushed to the Victoria Public Hospital for treatment and today is resting as well as can be expected. The attending physician states that the child suffered a ruptured kidney.

and the Queen, ablaze with diamonds, threw a jubilee crowd of 50,000 into delight last night by twice appearing on the balcony of the Chinese room of Buckingham Palace.

Despite the chill caused by a sudden break in temperature, Their Majesties stood for ten minutes in their first appearance at 9:30 P. M., and then for three minutes at 10:30. The King waved his bowler to the wildly cheering throngs.

Denies Report

No change in the position of the Dominion governments with respect to Empire foreign policy has been discussed and none is contemplated. Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald stated in the House of Commons.

The prime minister categorically repudiated a story appearing in an opposition paper here yesterday concerning the talks between heads of the British and Empire governments which have been carried on in the last few days and will be concluded today.

This report in The News-Chronicle said the British representatives at future European conferences might be authorized to take swift decisions on behalf of the Empire as a whole without waiting the consent of the Dominions, which would, however, retain the right to ratify or reject the obligations.

Eleven Nurses Were Graduated work done by the nurses, saying there was no better training school than Victoria Public Training School.

After vocal numbers by a quartette and a solo by Herbert Belding and the address to the graduating class, the diplomas were presented by the chairman. The pins were fastened by Mrs. Stella Woodcock, the genial superintendent of the hospital, who then presented flowers to each graduate.

The prize for highest standing in Obstetrics was won by Miss Ada Pond, of Marysville, and presented by Mrs. D. J. Shea, president of the Ladies' Aid.

The valedictory, read by Miss Alma Kelly, of Hawksshaw, which appears in this issue of The Daily Mail, was followed by the Florence Nightingale Pledge, administered by Very Rev. Dean J. H. Holmes.

The singing of the National Anthem brought the proceedings to a close.

REMINISCENCES OF THE ST. MARY'S INDIAN RESERVE AND ITS INHABITANTS FIFTY YEARS AGO

(By Mrs. Susan K. Squires)

Old Anthony Sacobie was another odd character. He was always talking of going to Ottawa to tell his grievances to the Governor-General. He had a great long speech he was going to make. Sometimes the men would get Anthony in the store and keep baiting him along until they got him started on his speech. His voice would rise higher and higher until it was almost a scream before he was through. But he never got to Ottawa. He must have been old, old, before he died. The last time I saw him he was going down Maryland Hill with four or five pieces of ash on a sled. I suppose he had cut it somewhere out on the College land. (That was part of his grievance, their land had all been taken from them).

One good story which shows how the Indian liked to get the best of a bargain, is worth recording. One summer an Indian had made a new canoe. When fall came he was short of money as usual so he came to town to a merchant on Queen Street who was always in touch with American sportsmen and asked him to buy the canoe. The man consented, they agreed on a price, the Indian received his money and they hung the canoe up in a shed behind the store. The next spring the merchant received a letter from an American saying that he and a friend were coming to Fredericton for the fishing and would he hire an Indian for him and make all the necessary arrangements. The merchant sent for the man who had owned the canoe and asked him if he could go with the men. He said "Yes, Boss I can go but I got no canoe." The man said, "Oh, that is all right, you can have my canoe if you take good care of it." The Indian promised to be careful and probably was. After the trip was over and the Indian had some money he proposed to buy back the canoe. He asked, "How much you want for him, Boss?" The man said, "Just what I gave you for it." The Indian objected. "Oh, that too much, Boss. When you buy canoe him new. Now him secondhanded, ought to be half price."

One evening I recollect of hearing the most unearthly shrieking in the street in front of the house. It sounded as if all pandemonia had broken loose. I went down into the store to see what the noise was all about. About a dozen young Indians were dressed up as braves with turkey tail-feather head-dresses and their faces daubed with paint. They were practicing a war whoop and dancing what they called a war dance. A crowd had gathered to see the free show and add their cheers to the noise. The Indians had been hired by some Wizard Oil or other patent medicine company as part of their street entertainment. They were to take the attention of the crowd while the quacks sold their medicine.
