AMERICANA BRINGS A RECORD PRICE AT NEW YORK SALE

Set of Jesuit Relations Sold For $10,400 at New York Library.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—A rare set of Jesuit Relations, comprising 42 original editions of the reports sent to the head of their order by the French Jesuit missionaries in North America from 1638 to 1673, was bought for $10,400 yesterday by C. F. Heartman, of Metuchen, N.J., at the second session of the auction of the library of the late Ogden Goelet in the American Art Association—Anderson Galleries. This was the highest price paid for a single item at both sessions of the sale, which opened Thursday night.

The second highest price of the session, $2,100 was paid by Edgar H. Wells & Company Inc., for an extremely rare copy of Christien le Clerc's "Etablissement de la Foy Dans la Nouvelle France," published in Paris, "Par Ordre du Roy," in 1691. This work, apparently the second of two perfect copies known, is a valuable source book of French discoveries in America.

Yesterday's session realized $31,464 making the total of the two sessions held $71,832.50.

The Jesuit Relations are pieces of Americana of supreme importance. The set, which was sold to the late Mr. Goelet in 1884 from the collection of the late Henry C. Murphy, lacks the extremely rare First (1632), Twenty-fourth (1656), and Twenty-eighth (1660) Relations. The only sets comparable in value are those which formerly belonged to Henry F. de Puy and Herman le Roy Edgar, which also lack the same numbers, and were sold at the Anderson Galleries in 1920. Additional issues of four Relations are included in the set, as well as modern reprints of hitherto unpublished or extremely rare reports. The complete set comprises 48 volumes in small octavo, bound in half crimson leather.

The Relations throw much light on pre-Colonial life in America, according to the Church Catalogue they contain "vivid accounts of the life and manners of a strange people, and abound in thrilling adventures. They were eagerly read by the French, in some cases more than one edition or issue being printed to satisfy popular demands." The reports, other critics have written, were composed in an exciting manner mainly to arouse interest in the work of the Jesuits in New France.

The copy of le Clercq, in addition to having the rarest form of title page contains a map which is so seldom encountered in other volumes that most bibliographers have not mentioned it. It includes all of North America except the Arctic regions, and curiously enough leaves out Lake Champlain. The contents include the first original account of the discoveries of La Salle, by Father Anastase Douay, who accompanied him, from which Hennipin drew the account of his pretended discovery of the Mississippi River.

the organization of a Junior Fire Warden group of properly qualified and supervised scouts. This plan has been most cordially received by the forestry branch and is well on the way to establishment.

Thanks to the efforts in financial organization of our president, General Hill, we have arrived this year at the first fair, province-wide allocation of support for our Provincial Office in Saint John. All arrangements hitherto have been rather hand-to-mouth and unfair in distribution so this new plan is most welcome.

Soldiers-Then and Now

(By Theodore Goodridge Roberts)
This series of Articles by a well-known Fredericton Writer will appear each day until further notice.

Piper Richardson got his when he returned to the red-hot forward edge of things in search of his bagpipes, which he had laid aside the better to throw bombs. The piper got his all at once, all in one package—went to the reward of heroes in one red flash.

Piper Richardson's case brings that of Captain McPeake's to mind, though McPeake's is on a lower and less tragic scale. Joseph McPeake, who had commanded a company of the ancient York Regiment of New Brunswick, became one of those thirty-two thousands of Canadian "originals." (Do you remember those funny fellows, you and how proud they were, to the very last, and the facings of their original militia jackets—blue for infantry, red for artillery, and so on.) McPeake took his three pipes to Valcartier and to Salisbury Plain, but could not get even a two pipe job in his own outfit. He was politically wrong. In every other way he was right. So he wanged led a paymaster's job in France and was attached to a field hospital.

Later, he did a foolish thing—but he was not the only one. He fell for temptation. In answer to a pressing and flattering invitation, he went back to Canada and joined the beginnings of what was, for a time (the most extraordinary unit of the C. E. F. Extraordinary! That is not quite the word. No one word could express the half of it. So let it go at extraordinary. Perhaps you heard about it at the time; we used to read hot air accounts of it in the papers from home—The McLean Highlanders of Canada; subtitle, "Sir Sam Hughes' Own." Those pipes kept at home, for home consumption only. They did not do that outfit any and how proud they were, to the very good in France. But the McLean Highlanders had their good points—four company commanders and a few other officers, including McPeake, who like McPeake had fallen to the temptation of quick and easy promotion and a season amid the flesh-pots of Canada. Later, after a long time of swank and swagger, those good lads had to take down their crowns and get into the war again with two pipes on their shoulders.
