Disrespect To Funerals

There used to be a law—and we believe it is still on the statute books—which made it an offence to pay disrespect to funerals. Custom provides that as a funeral passes along the street people driving cars and wagons stop until the funeral procession passes and men on the sidewalk stand and tip the hat as the hearse goes by. This is a nice tribute of respect to the one who has passed on.

On Saturday afternoon last, a funeral took place from an up-town church in this city. The funeral procession proceeded down Brunswick street to Carleton street and out Carleton street to the highway bridge. During the course of the funeral down Brunswick street an automobile driven by a person who should have known better, cut across the procession between the hearse and the car containing the three clergymen who were in attendance. In another case on Queen street another car cut off the hearse in the same funeral from the main body of the procession. The clergymen and mourners who attended the funeral were naturally annoyed at this utter disregard of respect and common decency, and in one of the cases the number of the car which cut into the funeral was taken. As the latter case was clearly against the law and as the man who drove one of the cars is a man who handles cars enough to know the law, he will probably hear more of the incident.

Surely we in this little city are not getting in such a rush that we have to drive through a funeral procession in order to accomplish our daily duties. There should be a proper respect for the dead. This applies not only to the proper care and preservation of the cemeteries and the tombstones but also to the burial ceremonies. Just now there is considerable talk regarding the conservation and preservation of old cemeteries, and rightly so. All civilized people and even the heathen Chinese preserve the last resting places of their dead. Only those who have no proper sense of the humane and finer feeling would suggest disturbing any of our old cemeteries or monuments where our ancestors sleep their last sleep. Why then allow persons with uncivilized notions driving through our city streets to disturb the funeral of our fathers, mothers, sisters and brothers while their bodies are being conveyed to their last resting place. If we are going to allow this sort of thing we might as well do away with all ceremony in the burying of the dead. If the authorities wish to take any action The Daily Mail will supply the information which we have in regard to this case.

Madawaska County

Conservative—A. M. Chamberland, Paul L. Dube.

Liberal—Dr. P. H. Laporte, J. Gas-pard Boucher.

Restigouche County

Liberal—H. F. G. Bridges, Phil-ibert LeBlanc.

The selection of the four York County candidates—Dr. Dougan, Dr. Jewett, Alderman C. Hedley Forbes, and Donald P. Douglass as candidates in York County has received with hearty approval throughout the county. The ticket is a representative one embracing not only the city of Fredericton but different parts of the county. Dr. Dougan is known and respected in the Harvey district. Dr. Jewett is the ideal country physician with a big following in up river parishes. Mr. Douglass is a young man who has recently graduated from U. N. B. with a good record. This doesn't prevent him being a practical farmer. The name of Douglass stands in well at Stanley and along the Nashwaak and Donald Douglass is one of the most popular of the Clan Douglass. Every one in Fredericton likes Hedley Forbes who has a genial manner and is no high hatter. His business connection has also brought him in contact with hundreds of people all over the county.

BLISS CARMAN'S VALEDICTORY GIVEN TO U. N. B.

A treasured possession of the late Bliss Carman, famed Canadian poet—the valedictory address he wrote and delivered when he graduated in 1882 from the University of New Brunswick—was presented to the University at the 135th annual encanial ceremonies, by Hon. R. B. Hanson, Minister of Trade and Commerce, in the federal government. Mr. Hanson made the presentation on behalf of Mrs. Leslie Hatheway of Montreal, a graduate of the University in 1918.

HOUSE OF COMMONS RESUMED BUSINESS AGAIN ON MONDAY

Prime Minister Bennett Receives Hearty Welcome From All Sides of House As He Resumes His Seat.

OTTAWA, May 21—Gallery seats were at a premium at the reopening of the House of Commons yesterday and Prime Minister Hon. R. B. Bennett was greeted with wild acclaim from all sides. His two political opponents, Liberal leader Mackenzie King and Progressive Leader Robert Gardiner welcomed him back and expressed hope his health would continue to improve.

When the prime minister rose to reply his opening words were interrupted for many seconds by desk-pounding from Conservatives, Liberals and Progressives alike. He said London doctors had told him he might recover full health if he took care of himself and he also warned the House he might not be able to grapple with public affairs with his accustomed vigor and zeal. But that was as far as he went.

Answers Questions

Although Mr. Bennett said he must have rest, his actions appeared to belie his words. A few minutes later the Liberal leader asked questions concerning Canadian-Japanese trade, directing them to the minister of trade and commerce. Although the minister rose to reply it was the prime minister who answered the question.

Referring to the London heart specialists he interviewed, Mr. Bennett said: "The opinion that I received is that if I were able to proceed with a certain amount of leisure and rest and avoided too much effort in the fulness of time I might recover my wonted strength and health."

The doctors, he said, urged him not to return to Canada at this time and to continue his holiday. He felt he could not follow their advice, considering the reopening of Parliament and some important legislation to be enacted.

"I may not be able," Mr. Bennett proceeded, "to give to public business that measure of attention and that strength of purpose that sometimes have characterized my conduct but I shall do my best while I am here to make clear what my appreciation of the situation may be with regard to the legislation that will engage the attention of the House during the balance of the session."

Irrespective of parties, Mr. King said, all members welcomed the prime minister back and hoped he would be able to lead his party for many years to come.

The Liberal leader also paid tribute to Sir George Perley, who acted as prime minister during Mr. Bennett's absence, referring to his long public service to Canada.

Full concurrence in the sentiments expressed by Mr. King was voiced by Robert Gardiner (U.F.A., Acadia). He spoke for the Farmer-Labor group and declared that all its members were delighted to see Mr. Bennett back and to know his health was improved.

A roar of applause from all sides of the House greeted Mr. Bennett as he rose to reply. He thanked Mr. King and Mr. Gardiner and said he was grateful for the prayers of a multitude of people. Such expressions had convinced him of the soundness and sincerity of the religious convictions of the people of Canada.

These expressions with the great mass of telegrams, and follows sent to him almost convinced him it was not a bad thing to be ill.

The prime minister told the House he never would forget his welcome today.

W. I. Delegates Hold Annual Convention

Welcomed by Deputy-Mayor Ald. C. Hedley Forbes—Encouraging Reports—History of Institute To Be Published—D. W. Griffiths Speaks For the Publicity Department.

The twenty-second annual convention of the Women's Institute held its opening session this morning in the Parliament Building. Mrs. Harley Dunham, the president, was in the chair. Over one hundred and fifty delegates from all parts of the province are attending the sessions. After the reciting of the Club Woman's Creed and the two minutes' silence in memory of members passed away during the year, the delegates were welcomed to the city by Ald. C. Hedley Forbes, deputy mayor, in well chosen and appropriate remarks.

The reply to the address of welcome was given by Mrs. Lloyd Boulter, of Carrieburg. Mrs. A. K. Turner extended greetings on behalf of the Fredericton Branch of the Institute. This was followed by the president's address, the minutes of the year 1934 convention by Mrs. Harley Jones and the report of the Superintendent, Miss Alma E. Weldon with the French report given by Miss Clara LeBlanc.

The president's address and the various reports given showed excellent work being done by the Institute in various lines outstanding perhaps might be considered the securing of the legal right of woman to vote and the work on behalf of the feeble-minded, two factors which of themselves would justify the existence of the Association. Mrs. Dunham also reminded the delegates of their duty in connection with the coming elections, asking their right of voting for which the Institute had so nobly fought. They would have no right to complain if they failed to do their duty.

The history of the Institute in memory of the late Mrs. John Harvey and Mrs. C. J. Osman has been compiled by Miss M. G. Otty of Gagetown and is ready to be put in the hands of the printers. The report of Miss Alma Weldon, supervisor, with a French synopsis by Miss Clara LeBlanc, was most encouraging and showed how much is being done to improve the lot of the rural woman. In fact it is impossible to enumerate all the benefits derived by rural schools and homes through the association.

The address of Deputy Mayor Ald. C. Hedley Forbes is as follows:

Madam President and Members of the New Brunswick Women's Institute:

Owing to the unavoidable absence of His Worship Mayor Clark, it has fallen to my lot to extend to you on behalf of the city council and citizens a welcome to the Capital City of New Brunswick, and I take great pleasure in doing so. I might say at the outset that nobody regrets the absence of His Worship more than I do, as I am sure that in addressing you he would acquit himself much better than it is possible for me to do. No doubt many of you are aware of the fact that Mayor Clark is now serving his tenth consecutive year as Chief Magistrate of our city, a record of service unequalled in this, or I believe in any other city in the Dominion. I am proud to be associated with him as a member of the city council, and to pay tribute to him, not only as our chief and worthy civic dignity, but as one of the recognized mercantile leaders in New Brunswick. I am sure that if His Worship were with us today, your organization, after listening to his message, would it it had the power, cheerfully and unanimously present him with the freedom of his own city. Let me say to you without the slightest hesitation, and in no boastful spirit, that we in Fredericton are citizens of an on mean city. Fredericton is the third oldest capital in the Dominion of Canada, having been chosen by Governor Carleton 150 years ago, after he had given Saint John a tryout. Our city was given the name of Fredericton (now Fredericton) after the Duke of York, the third son of King George III, whose portrait from the brush of Sir Joshua Reynolds now adorns a wall of this chamber. Evidently the Duke of York was a man of parts as he was a field marshal and also an Anglican bishop. Our act of Incorporation dates from the year 1843, and although Fredericton is the smallest city in Canada, it is also one of the largest, as it covers an area of twenty-seven square miles. I know that you will be busily engaged while here, but I hope that you will find time to look over at least part of our city and visit the chief points of interest, including of course the stores. I am sure that courteous treatment and hospitality awaits you from the people of this city.

We are justly proud of the fact that Fredericton was the birthplace of many who have played a prominent part in the upbuilding of Canada. Its sons have achieved fame in public life in the realms of finance, on the bench, in the pulpit, in the literary world, as well as in the teaching and other learned professions. The late Hon. Charles Fisher, a native of this city, moved the address in reply to the speech from the throne at the opening of Canada's first Parliament. The late Hon. A. G. Blair, another native son, became Premier of the Province and afterwards served as Minister of Railways in the Dominion cabinet. An ex-mayor of the city, Hon. R. B. Hanson, is now Minister of Trade and Commerce in the Federal cabinet, and Sir Douglas Hazen, another former mayor, was Minister of Marine and Fisheries in the cabinet of Sir Robert Borden, after having served as Provincial Premier. Later on he became Chief Justice of New Brunswick, from which position he only recently retired. The mother of the ex-Chief Justice, now in her 98th year, has long been an honored citizen of Fredericton. I could name many others—native and adopted sons—who have shed lustre on this good old city, but time will not permit. I will only add that as a residential city Fredericton is ideal, possessing advantages, educa-
