HOBGOBLIN OF LITTLE MINDS??

He is a rare person in the arena of statecraft or any other field of public controversy who can fight long without facing the "deadly parallel" of inconsistency.

On March 16 last Chancellor Hitler, in a proclamation to his devoted Nazis declared: "In November, 1918, the German people, taking at their face value the assurances of President Wilson's fourteen points, laid down their arms after a glorious resistance of four years in a war which they had never desired." That authoritative statement of German reluctance for war stirred the memory of an editor in Paris. On his shelf stood a book entitled "Mein Kampf," author, Adolf Hitler. The editor turned to a marked page and transcribed for the columns of Le Figaro an assertion no less authoritative, because from the same authority. It read: "The war of 1914 was not forced upon the masses. The whole people wished for it. I am not ashamed to say this: Upon the news of the declaration of war, I was filled with such an overflow of enthusiasm that I fell down upon my knees and with a full heart thanked heaven for having given me the joy of living at such a time."

Doubtless Herr Reichskanzler Hitler is one of those who fortify themselves behind the philosophy voiced by Emerson: "A foolish consistency is the hobgoblin of little minds, adored by little statesmen." He would probably regard as foolish a consistency which inhibited the reshaping of even one's profoundest conviction to suit the current exigency in a statesman's career.

CUBAN MARKET FOR DRIED AND SALTED FISH

The improving economic situation in Cuba is moving its effect on the imports of dried and salted fish, writes Mr. E. L. McColl, Canadian Trade Commissioner in Havana, in the forthcoming issue of the Commercial Intelligence Journal. Imports of dried codfish and dried hake into Cuba during 1934 amounted to 4,675 metric tons of 2,294 pounds ($585,000) as against 4,490 tons ($412,000) in 1933. Of this amount Norway supplied 2,746 tons and Canada 1,531 tons as compared with 3,071 tons and 1,181 tons respectively in the previous year. Canadian exporters obtained a higher return than those of other countries, the average c.i.f. price of Canadian fish being $136.50 per ton, while Norway's return averaged $119.45 per ton. Importers in Havana specify for an absolutely dry product which will stand up indefinitely. They also prefer large fish, for which they are willing to pay a premium. The rural districts are satisfied to have smaller fish, price being the first consideration. The demand for Canadian codfish comes principally from the province of Oriente, where a moist pack is preferred, and it is there that Canadian fish dominates the market.

UNITED KINGDOM HONEY MARKET CONDITIONS

In the United Kingdom honey competes as a breakfast delicacy with marmalade and jam; but the retail price of honey is from 1s. to 1s.2d. per pound, while marmalade may be purchased at from 6d. to 8d. per 1-pound jar, writes Mr. G. A. Newman, Assistant Trade Commissioner in London, in the forthcoming issue of the Commercial Intelligence Journal. Honey is generally regarded as being too sweet as compared with marmalade, as a result of which and its higher price, consumption in the United Kingdom is extremely limited, being estimated at one-quarter pound per capita. Imports of honey into the United Kingdom in 1934 from the chief sources of supply were as follows: Canada, 15,489 cwt. ($235,532); British West Indies, 14,154 cwt. ($20,616); United States, 11,990 cwt. ($22,173); New Zealand, 5,710 cwt. ($19,459); Chile, 4,120 cwt.

(£5,365); Santo Domingo, 3,218 cwt. (£2,735); Australia, 2,609 cwt. (£3,984); Mexico, 1,191 cwt. (£2342); Russia, 961 cwt. (£1,483); and Guatemala, 915 cwt. (£1,342). Prices of all honeys, irrespective of country of origin, are still too high. Volume sales can only be secured when honey is offered at about 7½d. to 8d. per pound retail, thereby coming into direct competition with marmalade and jam. English honey in the past two years has appeared in unusually large quantities and both domestic and "prepared" honey (mixtures of sugar and honey) are making gains in the trade at the expense of the imported varieties. Prices for imported honey during the past few months have dropped to levels lower than in previous years. The downward tendency has no doubt been accentuated by the closing of Continental markets and the diverting of offers to the United Kingdom.

SNAPSHOTS

An Indian girl who disrobed in the canoe, opposite the A and B. Club house on Thursday, was standing prepared to plunge into the water when she was stopped. Whether she was trying to introduce the nudist cult or simply opening the bathing season a la nude is not explained.

The rubble brigade has secured a new recruit who gave up a job to join the rubbies.

The girl who left a portion of her wardrobe hanging on a tree at College Hill may have them by calling at The Daily Mail and describing the property. No charge. It is worth the money to have her come.

Mayor McEvoy should get one of those jubilee medals for promoting the new highway through Devon. In the States they have the Washington and the Lincoln Highway. This should be known as the McEvoy highway.

"The Daily Mail is one paper with spunk enough to kick when the public interest demands it," said a Queen Street business man yesterday.

Tilley Candidates are Selected in Madawaska Co.

EDMUNDSTON, N. B., May 25 — Madawaska County Conservatives held a convention yesterday afternoon in the court house here to select one new candidate to represent the party in the coming provincial election. Premier Tilley was present and explained that the purpose of the convention was to choose a candidate to replace A. M. Chamberland, Edmundston, who was nominated last fall along with Paul L. Dube, Edmundston. Mr. Chamberland lately resigned. A vote was taken between Edward Rice, St. Jacques, and Michael Theriault, Ste. Anne de Madawaska. Mr. Theriault was chosen was chosen by a large majority and will contest the county in company with Mr. Dube.

A. J. Dionne was chairman and present also were T. M. Richards, president of the Conservative Association in Madawaska; J. D. Mercier, secretary and Antoine Desjardins, organizer.

Premier Tilley spoke briefly, asking the party to stand firmly behind the government, "which is coming back for a further term". He spoke of the candidates as two men who knew perfectly the working class. He pledged whole-hearted support to the candidates and said he would visit Edmundston again.

Mr. Dube spoke both in French and English, stating that Premier Tilley deserved support and that he himself approved of his newly-chosen colleague, promising to work hand in hand with him. He stated that $150,000 had been spent in the county for bridges and public works during the last ten years.

John Fisher, Sackville, a Tilley Club representative addressed the convention in French and praised the premier.

out a map advertising it. On one side it reads, "Please note location of Dafoe Hospital", and on the other "While it is obviously impossible at this time to guarantee admittance to the hospital during the summer, we are assured by the official guardians that plans are being worked out to admit visitors free of charge, unless sickness prevails among the quintuplets".

Today Dr. Allan R. Dafoe and Judge H. J. A. Valin, guardians, with a Toronto architect, discussing remodelling plans that may enable visitors to see the babies, through, without endangering their health or nervous systems. Since their head colds at Easter all visitors have been forbidden.

The new plans must exclude all danger of germs or any exciting influence.

Meanwhile 100 inquiries about "the road to the quintuplets" come in daily to the Ontario Tourist Bureau sometimes 40 American cars are parked on Main Street, and often 25 cars at once have lined up on the road outside the hospital. Tourists gaze upon the five small, empty carriages and turn away, disappointed, to console themselves with fishing.

These are only surface aspects. of what a year of quintuplets has meant to a community. Their birth and growth has brought exceptional individuals into stronger light. It has developed friction and bitter partisanship among old neighbors. As the quintuplets eat and sleep and play their way to May 28, when they will be one year old, a community and a province struggle to handle wisely a situation that has never happened before.

Italo-Ethopia Trouble Has Been Averted

Captain Eden's resolution, which finally brought acceptance from Mussolini, set July 25 as the "deadline" for effecting conciliation and August 25 as the limit for arbitration.

Britain and France both eager to keep the controversy from flaring into open hostilities, reportedly proposed time limits both for conciliation and, if that failed, for arbitration, even though they have been reluctant to see the dispute aired over the Council tables.

League circles said they considered the situation a diplomatic struggle between Eden, prime mover in the efforts toward settlement, and Mussolini, who had said repeatedly Italy alone will deal with the problem.

ROME, Italy, May 25—Fascism paraded its youngest adherents yesterday as massed thousands of soldiers and civilians, celebrating the 20th anniversary of Italy's entry into the Great War, heard Benito Mussolini declare the nation now "ready for any trial".

A feature of the day's exercises was the first appearance of the "Sons of the Wolf", the newest Fascist organization made up of boys of six to eight years old, constituted at the end of 1934. It Duce, who passed the Fascist review on the Via Del Impero, later addressed troops and Blackshirts assembled in the Venezia Square.

"The words of an unknown Italian soldier scrawled on the wall of a house demolished by a shell. 'It is better to live one day as a lion than 100 days as a lamb', are not merely an order—they are gospel for us", Mussolini said.
