HEALTH

A HEALTH SERVICE OF THE CANADIAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION AND LIFE INSURANCE COMPANIES IN CANADA

SYMPTOMS

A symptom might be defined as any evidence of disease or abnormal state of the mind or body. Symptoms, such as pain, of whose presence the patient is conscious, are called subjective symptoms, where those which are discovered on medical examination are known as objective symptoms.

Symptoms are grouped under two headings. Local symptoms are the changes which occur in some organ or area where the disease localizes or focuses its attack. Constitutional symptoms arise out of the effects of the disease upon the body as a whole. The body works as a unit so disease of any part brings about general changes. The local symptoms may dominate, but there are always constitutional or general symptoms.

If germs of tuberculosis establish themselves in the lungs, they act as an irritant, giving rise to local symptoms, such as cough, sputum, pain and sometimes blood in sputum. These symptoms all arise from the activities of the germs which are attacking and destroying the lung tissues.

Disease germs give off poisons and, in addition, they may destroy normal tissues, which, when destroyed, acts as a poison. These poisons are carried

MEN PUZZLED BY FILM STARS

Actresses Like to Travel by Air But They are Hard to Find.

HOLLYWOOD, California, August 15—Men who sell the skyways to travel-bound stars may find them in a receptive mood for "going by air" but the thing is—to find them.

WENT BY BOAT

One of them, an agent for one of the major air lines, was telling about his difficulties in penetrating that "artificial isolation" of stars, even of those he felt sure were planning to go east by air or could be sold on the idea.

"I stalked Lyda Roberti," he said, "for 11 days. When I finally found her, she was gracious enough, but I lost her eventually. She and her husband, Bud Ernst went east by boat".

He was hopeful, however, about Wendy Barrie. He had been informed that Wendy definitely intended to fly—"and I am still trying to reach her, personally or by telephone".

"Reaching" a star, as salesmen and fans can affirm, is no simple matter. Most of them, especially the better known, are entrenched behind walls of protective machinery—agents, maids, secretaries, studio attaches—unlisted telephone numbers. The majority are best "reached", our sky salesman informs, through their agents or through mutual friends. Whenever they hear that Gary Cooper is going east, they get one of the pilots, a personal friend of the star's to call him at his home.

A USELESS KNOCK

Sometimes it is more difficult. Mary Brian, they heard, was going to New York. The agent went out to Toluca Lake and knocked on Mary's door. There was no answer to repeated knocking, but then he heard the telephone ring inside. And he heard Mary Brian's voice answering it.

"So I went", he said, "to a nearby drugstore and telephoned myself. She answered. 'Why don't you come to the door when someone knocks', I asked. She was very pleasant and she saw me a few minutes later.

It may seem odd, but often it is easier to "reach" a star away from Hollywood than at home. This agent once tried, and failed repeatedly, to contact Claudette Colbert who was planning a journey. Then one weekend he learned that she had gone to Santa Barbara. Discovering which hotel she chose was comparatively simple, and he put in a person-to-person long distance call. In a few moments he was talking to her. He did not, it is true, make the sale—but at least he talked to her.

away from the local diseased area and are spread throughout the body by the blood stream. This spread results in a mild or severe poisoning of the body why leads to the general or constitutional symptoms. So it is that in tuberculosis, we observe a rise in temperature, an increased pulse rate, fatigue, loss of appetite, loss of weight, and night sweats.

These constitutional symptoms are not limited to tuberculosis; indeed, they are the typical symptoms of systematic poisoning by almost any disease germ. The patient who has a boil may and generally does show the same symptoms, due to the absorption into the system of the poison elaborated by the germs causing the boil and the pus, which is dead tissue and body cells destroyed by the germs.

Tuberculosis, in its early and most curable stage, does not give rise to this train of local and constitutional symptoms. It is difficult, in many cases, to persuade the person who feels well that he has an active disease which demands treatment. Those who wait until the symptoms are marked will have waited until the disease is well established, and treatment will take a long time. It is the earliest suggestion of fatigue, persistent coughs, et cetera, which must be heeded if tuberculosis is to be found early.

Questions concerning health, addressed to the Canadian Medical Association, 184 College St., Toronto, will be answered personally by letter.
