OUR LIBERAL CANDIDATE

An attempt is being made by some cheap barn-stormers to create a prejudice against the Liberal candidate, Mayor Clark, because he has been successful in his business. Dear only knows that it is successful business men like Mayor Clark whom the Dominion needs at the head of affairs today. As The Daily Mail stated only a few days ago, Mr. Clark came to Fredericton from the farm. He was honest and a hard worker, coming to his office in the morning before his clerks were around and working far into the night. He, as his books will show, charged only reasonable profits. He did not booze or squander his money. Both he and his good wife and family lived the simple life without any high-hatting. They continue to do so today. Their home life is an ideal one and an example to many.

Mayor Clark, as head of the City Council for the past nine years, has guided the city's financial affairs through the most trying period of its history. The citizens have felt safe with him at their head. If Mayor Clark had not been a successful business man, his chance of going to Ottawa as our representative would not have been as good as they are today. Men like Mr. Clark are needed at Ottawa now more than ever in our Canadian history. Mackenzie King said to the Editor of The Daily Mail, when he was here a few days ago, "If I have a group of men like your Mayor Clark both in my cabinet and supporting it, I have every confidence that we can bring Canada out of its present economic troubles. We are getting men like Mr. Clark all along the line, and I expect to have the benefit of his advice at the Capital before long." This conversation shows how Mayor Clark is appreciated as an honest, successful, level-headed business man.

When parties are selecting men as candidates for Ottawa, an effort should be made to select the best man. The best man is not necessarily the most brilliant man. The best man for any party to select is the man whom people can trust, the man who has no axe to grind. The day has come in Canada when it is necessary to have such men, if we are to pull out of the hole.

The man you can trust is the man who is simple, direct and sincere. When he undertakes a responsible task, he is fully and deeply conscious of his responsibility. He is intent upon fairness and justice to all, even to those who oppose him. To him, the insincerity of the demagogue is as dishonest as the trickery of the con man or the embezzler. To him, honor is dearer than power, and a clear conscience more precious than wealth or fame. He is suspicious of mere brilliance and he is not easily fascinated by the plausibility of quacks, or misled by the enthusiasm of cranks, or for a good judgment, good character and ripe experience are what he most respects. He does not waver like a leaf in the winds of popular approval or disapproval. When he makes a pledge he can be relied upon to keep it, at whatever cost to himself, for he acts on principles of right and wrong, not on the convenience or expediency of the moment. He is not all things to all men. When he says yes, he means yes, and when he says no, he means no. In short, the man you can trust, in the long run, is not necessarily the half-fellow man or the charming man, but the man who keeps his word.

ANOTHER SUCH FIVE YEARS?

Mr. King in Edmonton, and Mr. Lapointe, his chief lieutenant, speaking in Quebec, have asked the question which must be uppermost in the minds of the people across Canada. "Do you want another five years of conditions such as prevailed as a result of the Bennett policies?" was the way the Liberal chief expressed it. "Do you want to live through another five years like the last?" queried Mr. Lapointe.

This sizes up the point of the campaign. The election is held in accordance with the hereditary right of the people to choose those who will govern them. If they wish another five years of Bennett and what he gave them, it is their privilege and duty to say so; if not, they have an alternative.

The only alternative, in the view of the Liberal Leader, is a Government by the Liberal Party, as "no other party can win enough seats to form a Government."

With the election date two weeks distant, the situation is demanding unqualified attention. Is the result to be an endorsement of the distress conditions which have been endured, or instructions for something different? A thoughtful electorate, wishing to retain the privilege of making and rejecting governments, will ensure in the first place to whatever administration is chosen a majority which will fix definite responsibility on it for its acts. The aggregation of parties seeking office may so divide the vote that no party will have adequate authority to carry out its policies. This is the worst that could happen, next to a national government having authority without responsibility — termination for the time being of democratic institutions. A hodge-podge government, conducted by bargaining among various groups, would mean that no considered and understood policy would prevail.

The additional parties injected into this campaign are political side issues — here today and gone tomorrow. In the last analysis the people will serve themselves and meet their national problems to the best advantage by choosing between Mr. Bennett and the Liberal Party. It comes down to the question asked: Do you want five years more of the same, or do you prefer the policies which the Liberal Party follows confidently, in the knowledge that many years of successful experience have demonstrated their merit?

The question, "Do you want five years more of Mr. Bennett's government?" is fully justified, if Mr. Bennett is re-elected the people will have no warrant for expecting anything else.

A change, with the welfare of the country in prospect, can be brought about only by preferring a Liberal Government and assuring a majority over all which a Conservative Senate cannot defy. The Liberal record, under both Laurier and King, has been one of prosperity, and in each instance it brought the country from a depression under Conservative rule. History contains indisputable facts; the statistics are undeniable. And the reason is not hard to find; it is not a matter of chance. Liberal policies are framed for the good of the people as a whole, and not for the favored few.

"Do you want to live through another five years like the last?"

PLANTS FROM FAR NORTH BROUGHT HOME

(Special to The Daily Mail)
MONCTON, N. B., Oct. 2.—Returning from a visit to the far north on the "Nascopeie" where he went to make a survey of the health of the eskimos on behalf of the Canadian Government, Dr. A. L. Richard, of Ottawa and formerly of Moncton, stated that contrary to general belief there is no lack of vegetation in the north, on his departure from here via the Canadian National Railway for Ottawa. He arrived at Halifax on the "Nascopeie" and stopped over in Moncton to see his parents, Dr. F. A. Richard and Mrs. Richard, on his way through. "The summer period in the far north of course" continued Dr. Richard, "is not as long as in the rest of Canada but vegetation is rapid, maturing and dying just as quickly." Several collections of plants were brought back on the "Nascopeie," one of which is to be presented to McGill University and another to the University of Montreal.

Dr. Richard spoke highly of the work of the Hospital maintained by the oblate fathers at Chesterfield Inlet and that of the Anglican Church at Pangnirtung where Dr. A. McKinnon is in charge with a nurse and matron. This hospital is equipped with an operating room and an x-ray machine. Dr. Richard did not comment upon the work connected with his visit to the far north as he has not yet made his report to the government.

GIVEN TWO MONTHS

Vaughn McLeod, who gave his address as Moncton, was sentenced yesterday by Police Magistrate Limerick to two months in jail for stealing a bicycle.

SNAPSHOTS

Lives of great men all remind us, As their pages o'er we turn, That we're apt to leave behind us Letters that we ought to burn.

Business men along Queen Street are complaining that cars are allowed to park too long in front of their places of business. On Saturday night a car remained nearly three hours in front of one confectionery store and one of the man's customers was obliged to park elsewhere—and to buy his Sunday supply elsewhere.

What's become of the old-fashioned medical notion that we would be a better, wiser and happier people with our tonsils out?

It is admitted Haile Selassie's boys are great in-fighters, but the comparative charts give 11 Duce's contender the longer reach in guns.

"Man is the only animal that makes plans for the future," asserts a Boston psychologist. Apparently the squirrel is just a dilettante collector.

Older electors will recall that most of the prosperous periods in Canada have been under Liberal administration of the country's affairs. "Luck," say the cynics. Well, even so, isn't it the right kind of luck?

One of the bright spots of the campaign is Premier Bennett's advice to young Western women to get married. But why doesn't this eligible bachelor start the matrimonial ball rolling? If he does, who knows but that other eminent party leaders might follow suit—such is the power of example!

The Normal School girls were struck on the young man who lectured on bees and honey at the Experimental Station. One of them said that the instructor was "just as sweet as honey."

The guests who put up at a leading down town hotel tried to get away with the towels, dishes and several other things. They could not put the tables or other furniture in the car.

We are warned that our concrete house will be made into "kindling wood" if we do not let up on the "East End Gang." Hot stuff, old gangsters. Will some one loan us a dog—a hot dog.

OFFICIAL FINDING IN THE POST-ROGERS TRAGEDY

At Seattle last month on his way north into Alaska with Will Rogers, Wiley Post changed the landing gear of his new plane to pontoons. Arrived at Fairbanks, he remarked to Joe Crosson that nose-heaviness on take offs and landings had resulted. This and the formation of ice in the carburetor were the possible reason for the tragic crash, announced Air Commerce Director Eugene L. Vidal last week in a careful report which completely exonerated Wiley Post of any blame.

Other findings: (1) Post and Rogers could not be considered careless in their reported indifference to weather reports since they were travelling by "contact flying"—i.e., turning back and landing whenever bad weather threatened; (2) the Eskimo report that the plane had fallen 50 feet was probably wrong. From the condition of the wreckage it appeared that Post had risen to about 200 feet, was banking in a logical manoeuvre, could not keep control of the nose-heavy plane when the motor suddenly cut out.

SCHOONER 10 DAYS OVERDUE ARRIVES

NORTH SYDNEY, Oct. 2.—Ten days overdue on a voyage from Fortune, Nfld., to this port, the schooner Millie Louise arrived at North Sydney yesterday and relieved fears for the safety of the craft and the six men on board.

Sailing from Fortune on Sept. 19 with cargo, Captain Gordon Noseworthy put his vessel into St. Pierre when heavy weather was encountered. The Millie Louise had a crew of four aboard and Captain George Lake was a passenger.

TWEEDSMUIR PLANS WILL BE DISCUSSED

QUEBEC, Oct. 2.—D. H. Coleman, under-Secretary of State, is expected to come to Quebec today to confer with Lieut.-Col. C. B. Papineau, A. D. C., to Lieutenant-Governor Patenaude concerning the reception to be tendered to Lord Tweedsmuir, Canada's new Governor-General, and Lady Tweedsmuir, on their arrival here at the end of the month.

OUR MAIL BAG

THE BLACK HAND

The Daily Mail is in the same class as Premier Bennett. He was to be kidnapped. Our Editor is to have his house torn down about his head. Yesterday this paper expressed the opinion that a little more police protection would prevent the shooting of people's dogs, and several other offences being carried on in the East End. So the "East End Gang" or gangsters are on our trail. They have not yet decided to kidnap us or to "bump us off." They are only going to pull down our concrete house—whether block by block or whether they are going to knock it all down on our head, they do not say. However, last night the following threatening note warning us to be good, was left on our door step: Editor of The Daily Mail.

Dear Sir: We have read your item in the Snapshots of your dirty rag about our activities in East End of this dump. We happen to be the organization known as the East End Gang. If there are any more of these little tips to the cops about our activities we will tear your residence into kindling. This is the first warning (also the last). Yours sincerely, EAST END GANG
