PREMIER DISCUSSES OLD AGE PENSIONS

Government Proposes To At Once Set Up Machinery For Old Age Pension Scheme

Considered Question this Week and Will Immediately Go Into Matter Further, so that Matter Will Be Carried Out Without Delay.

During the present week, the Government have had under consideration, the question of Old Age Pensions. In its platform adopted in May last, the Liberal Party undertook to introduce the scheme in this province and in accordance with that undertaking steps are to be taken without delay to establish the necessary administrative machinery.

HON. A. ALLISON DYSART
Premier of New Brunswick, Who Makes Official Statement Regarding Old Age Pensions

Under the arrangement existing between the Dominion and the Provinces, the Federal Government contributes 75 per cent of the actual cost of pensions but the entire administration and handling of pensions rests with the provinces.

With a view of establishing proper administrative methods, a study is to be made of the steps taken by other provinces in setting up their machinery.

To this end, the Government proposes to undertake an investigation without delay of the methods adopted elsewhere that a proper organization to administer the Old Age Pension Scheme in this province may be perfected without delay.

1936 MEET UNDECIDED

No decision was reached as to when or where the 1936 N. B. Tennis meet will be held at a meeting last night of the Tennis Association. The locale for next year's meet was left in abeyance at the annual meeting held here with Horace A. Hanson, of this city, in the chair. Invitations were received from the Rotheray Country Club, the C.N.R. Tennis Club of Moncton and the Aroostook Valley Country Club, and also Fort Fairfield, Maine. The meeting decided on a departure from open tournaments for a period of one year in order to concentrate on the development of local talent as formerly. The 1936 tourney will be open only to bona fide members of clubs affiliated with the N. B., Nova Scotia and P. E. I. Tennis Associations.

Teaching Latin

At the meeting of the Classical Association of the Maritime Provinces and Newfoundland held here yesterday certain changes in the educational system of the High Schools were recommended. One idea was to bring fewer subjects and more idea for each. This was advocated by Prof. B. E. D. Cattle, the president. Professor Cattle touched upon Latin in the University.

"The place of Latin in High Schools," stressing the need of smaller classes and "More human methods in teaching the subject."

This hint was given by a former teacher from a High School in New Jersey and might well be given attention by some local teachers in Latin.

One way not to teach Latin in High Schools is to pick out all the brighter pupils and push them along. Another way NOT to teach Latin in High Schools is to ignore certain pupils in the class and not even ask them the ordinary class questions. This has been done in several instances in one High School and by one teacher who is supposed to "teach" Latin. We could name the school and we could also name the teacher and give different instances where pupils have been passed over by the teacher in the school, for some real or fancied reason. We would not have to go one hundred miles from Fredericton to put our hand on both the pupils—several of them—and the teacher. Perhaps with a new term this teacher will recognize the fact that he is paid to teach every pupil. This is a matter for the Home and School Association to take up. By discussing things like these this Association will demonstrate to a waiting public that it is an active organization.

The Daily Mail does not intend to say any more just now. Later we may discuss the matter more fully.

FLOODS, STORMS SWEEP NORTHERN ALBERTA AREAS

EDMONTON, August 2—Further reports of storm damage and privation in Northern Alberta, swept by intermittent floods for weeks, trickled into Edmonton tonight, bringing fear many voters would be unable to reach the polls in the provincial elections August 22.

From McMurray came the story of a 48-hour electrical storm that brought business to a standstill, laid waste gardens and crops and washed out railroad track and bridges. Northern rail transportation was tied up and communication lines disrupted.

McMurray told how waterways at the end of steel in the Far North, was practically under water after a severe storm. Several residents were rescued from their homes in canoes. Communication with McMurray was carried on by wireless, with air and water navigation halted.

Though floods were subsiding in the Lesser Slave Lake area, 125 miles north of here, residents still were camped in nearby hills, fearing a repetition of the gales that sent waves five feet in height racing through the town. It was feared election enumerators there would be unable to complete their lists by August 12, nomination day.

CONDITION NOT IMPROVING

Many friends will regret to hear that the condition of Miss Isabel Everett, who has been ill for some time is not improving. Practically all hopes have been abandoned for her recovery and the Misses Helen and Bessie Everett have been summoned from St. Andrews where they spent the past few days. Dr. Herbert Everett and Dr. Charles Everett, nephews, have been called on account of Miss Everett's illness.

SELECTION OF NEW N. B. SENATORS IMMINENT

Senatorial and judicial vacancies in New Brunswick seemed likely today to be made over the week-end.

It is pretty well understood that Hon. Antoine Leger, former Minister in the Tilley Government, will succeed the late Senator Pascal Poirier, although F. J. Robidoux, one time M.P. for Kent, has some support.

Whether the other appointments will go to B. F. Smith, M.P. for Carleton-Victoria, or to former Premier Tilley or Dr. Taylor, ex-Minister in the Tilley Government, is uncertain today. If Mr. Tilley is not appointed to the Senate he will get the county judgeship of Kings and Albert.

Hon. W. H. Harrison, former Attorney General, is likely to go to the New Brunswick Court of Appeals in place of Sir Douglas Hazen. A religious consideration enters into the choice to fill another vacancy on the Supreme Court.

For one of the Senatorial vacancies in Manitoba, D. W. Beaubier, M.P. for Brandon, is much mentioned.

Premier Dysart and Cabinet to Homes for Weekend

Members of the provincial cabinet who met here yesterday have left for their respective homes for the week-end. Another meeting of the cabinet will not take place until Wednesday.

Premier Dysart was here today along with Hon. C. T. Richard, provincial secretary treasurer, both being at their offices for a while today. It is expected that Premier Dysart will leave by motor for his home some time this afternoon or early evening.

Hon. Mr. Richard left by car this morning for his home at Bathurst.

CRANBERRIES CAN BE GROWN WITH PROFIT

C. C. Eidt, Agricultural Official at Ottawa, Returns with Experimental Station Officials Here from Survey Trip about Province — Find that Cranberries can be Grown Successfully — Select Areas.

As anticipated in The Daily Mail several days ago the cultivation of bog cranberries on a commercial basis in a number of areas of New Brunswick is quite a probable event, especially in the Saint Charles and Point Spain districts in Kent county, where farmers have been growing cranberries, both on lowlands and up land bogs with fair amount of success.

So reports S. C. Eidt, assistant superintendent of the Dominion Experimental Station at Kentville, Nova Scotia, who together with C. E. Bailey and L. C. Young, superintendent, and assistant superintendent of the Station here, have just returned from a four-day survey trip to provincial cranberry areas. A report of the survey will be submitted to Dr. E. S. Archibald, director of the Dominion Experimental Farm at Ottawa.

There is a probability that demonstration bogs will be established and this matter will be inquired into by the officials at Ottawa. A brief estimate of the survey is that the possibilities for modern cultivation are promising.

In the Ruisagornis area it was found that there is a large tract suitable for cranberry culture but the problem of flooding the berries for protection against the frost will have to be looked after.

In the Ruisagornis area the water supply is below the bog area and pumps would have to be installed at considerable expense, Mr. Bailey said. At Pennfield, in Charlotte county the officials reported a fine tract of wild cranberries to be thriving about ten miles from the highway and in Albert county like tracts have been found, although in the latter area the berries were mostly in the salt marches causing heavy loss through salt water damage. Owing to the convenience of sand dunes on the coasts of Westmorland and Kent counties areas in that district are particularly well adapted, the officials say.

Farmers here report that the damage from frost is small, owing to the proximity of the sea, which is another help to good development. Mr. Eidt reports that farmers in this district were producing better crops than in the other areas but that their crops varied from year to year, probably because of slight frost damage that would have to be overcome by the installation of proper equipment. He said that on the eastern shore there are many places which are capable of being developed, and in the St. Charles district some farmers are trying to cultivate cranberries now.

Many of the farmers are attempting development in a haphazard manner and that the establishment of a demonstration bog would be a great help in teaching them modern methods in the care and development of their bogs.

Donald Gillis of Devon, returned last evening from Memramcook where they attended the retreat which was held during the week at St. Joseph's University.

Liberal Chief Says The 1933 Platform Will Be Confirmed

Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King Gave a Clear Cut Program In Radio Address Last Night

OTTAWA, Aug. 2—Liberalism holds personality more sacred than property and the Liberal party will devote itself to finding means of distributing the wealth of the nation with increasing regard to human needs, Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader, said tonight in the second of his pre-election radio speeches.

Speaking from Ottawa over a national hookup arranged by the Canadian Radio Commission, Mr. King declared the party would go into the election on the 14-point platform enunciated in 1933. This platform has been endorsed by Liberal victories in federal by-elections and provincial general elections. Neither the Liberal party nor its leader saw any reason for changing them as time had shown they met the needs of Canada today.

The Canadian people were sick of promises, said Mr. King. They wanted to know where parties stood on the problems of the day, what their policies were and what their underlying principles. He said the Liberal party would offer no armful of promises and advised his hearers to consider the promises made by other parties in the light of the Bennett government's failure to fulfil its 1930 promises.

Mr. King saw tendencies of Fascism in the way Prime Minister R. B. Bennett made promises and announced policies without consulting his followers.

Reading the statement of the Liberal party's policies, as made in February, 1935, Mr. King proceeded as follows:

"Unemployment of first concern."

"The Liberal party believes unemployment is Canada's most urgent national problem. It would deal with the present emergency conditions through representative national commission, which would co-operate with the provinces and municipalities in the administration of unemployment relief and in an endeavor to provide work for the unemployed."

"On the contrary, it was the Liberal party as a whole that contracted its platform, Mr. King said. When Prime Minister Bennett enunciated his 'new deal' over the radio last January, his own cabinet-colleagues did not know what he was going to say, let alone his followers in the House, charged the Liberal leader.

"It will abolish the extravagant increases in the tariff made by the present administration, which have had the effect of strangling trade, exploiting consumers and robbing railways of business."

"It will abolish all unwarranted extra taxes on imports, such as the exchange and dumping duties, as imposed by the present administration."

"It will end the making and altering of tariffs by executive action."

Stability For Uncertainty

"It will substitute stability for uncertainty in the administration of customs laws."

"It will continue the Liberal policy of British preference by a percentage reduction in existing tariffs rather than by a percentage increase against foreign countries in existing tariffs."

"It will grant to British imports a real preference."

"I cannot stress too strongly the importance the Liberal party attaches to getting rid of prohibitory tariffs, and other restrictions which have been strangling Canada's trade. It believes that upon the development and expansion of our domestic and foreign trade depends the only ultimate solution of the problems of unemployment, railways, debt and taxation, and the establishment of substantial measures of social reform."

"Liberation of internal trade"

"The Liberal party will seek to end artificial price control and agree to restraint of trade. Price-fixing by agreements restrict and hamper trade internally. The internal trade of our country has become encumbered and enmeshed by secret understandings and agreements."

Primary Industries

"Development of primary industries. The Liberal party by its policies will continue to further the development of agriculture, lumbering, mining and fisheries by effecting reductions in the costs of production of Canada's basic products and by obtaining wider markets therefrom, by encouraging export trade, and by state assistance in the marketing of natural products."

"This statement should serve effectively to silence those who persist in saying that, because of its objections to certain obnoxious features of the Marketing Act, the Liberal party is opposed to state assistance, and a legitimate measure of state control, in the marketing of natural products."

Fears Monopolies

"The party also believes that the compulsory features of the act, as it stands, are certain to be used to create monopolies in manufacturing, as well as in other branches of industry, and that in this and in other ways the interests of consumers will be seriously prejudiced."

"In a word, the Liberal party's attitude towards the Marketing Act is similar to that taken towards the Ottawa agreements, namely, that the act in certain of its features is in need of revision; and that, if it is to serve the public interest, and not under the guise of assisting agriculture, be made to further the ends of dictatorship, its provisions will necessarily come before Parliament for further consideration, should a Liberal administration be returned to power."

Control of credit:

"The Liberal party believes that credit is a public matter, not of interest to bankers only, but of direct concern to the average citizens. It stands for the immediate establishment of a properly constituted national central bank, to perform the functions of re-discounts, and the control of currency issues, considered in terms of public need. A central bank is necessary to determine the supply of currency in relation to the domestic, social and industrial requirements of the Canadian people; and also to deal with problems of international commerce and exchange."
