UNITED KINGDOM MARKET AND CHEESE PRICES

During a visit of J. F. Singleton Dairy Commissioner, Dominion Department of Agriculture to the British Isles in May, 1934, many importers or Canadian cheese stated that the quality of the Canadian product was eminently satisfactory but that the United Kingdom was becoming more and more a price market and that consequently it would be necessary to get the price of Canadian cheese closer to that being paid for New Zealand cheese. In this fact lies a partial explanation of the slower movement of cheese from Canada during the earlier part of the 1934 season.

In July 1934 a member of the grading staff of the Dominion Dairy Branch went to the United Kingdom in order to get further information as to the quality of Canadian cheese in Great Britain, and particularly as to how the quality of the cheese when received there compared with the quality as indicated by the grading in Canada. This officer remained in the United Kingdom about four months and his observations confirmed what has already been stated, namely, that British importers were not inclined to pay the premium for Canadian cheese (as compared with the prices for New Zealand cheese) which has prevailed during recent years, or to pay prices which would permit Canadian exporters to realize cost of cheese of current make. Generally speaking, Canadian cheese is going into shops catering to a higher class trade than is the case with New Zealand cheese.

SHREWD MUSSOLINI

All of a sudden the Italian adventure in Abyssinia has come to an end—temporarily, at least. A four mile neutral zone is to be drawn between Abyssinia and Somaliland. This plan appealed strongly to the Conquering Lion of Judah last week, but was quite unsatisfactory to Italy. But now Rome announces that it is a grand idea, and has been accepted.

The reason for the sudden desire for no trouble in Africa is the revolt in Greece, and the possibility of strange complications in the Aegean field. Premier Benito Mussolini is too shrewd to be caught with a major Abyssinian movement on his hands, when the situation is so ticklish nearer home. And the thought occurs that perhaps the Italian preparations were not intended for Ethiopia, after all.

It is reported that the Turks knew a serious outbreak was due in Greece, and massed troops in Thrace, to be prepared for eventualities. General Plastiras, the friend of Venizelos, suddenly turns up in Brindisi, Italy. Mussolini has an excellent intelligence service. It may well be that he knew as much about the plans of the Greek rebels as did Premier Tsaldaris.

At any rate Italy has a considerable force ready to embark on any port to which they may be ordered, and has ceased to snort at Haile Selassie. The Abyssinian matter can be taken up later, if it seems advisable.

CRASH!

Everybody has his harmless eccentricities. We have a number.

One is that we do not like to hear persons talking an airplane crash when it was only a forced landing.

To our way of thinking, a crash is a plane coming down out of control. A forced landing can produce breakage through no fault of the pilot but solely because of ground conditions—soft sod, for example.

It does not make much practical difference. A bump by any other name is just as bumpy. But, as whoozles said, it's the principle of the thing.

CUTTING THE SCRIPT

A pleasant anecdote from Hollywood has been brought to me by an eyewitness. It appears that when the management got through arranging

"Peck's Bad Boy" for the movies practically nothing was left but the title. All the mischief that made the book a classic had been removed and sentimental syrup substituted.

Among the "improvements" was a scene in which little Jackie Searle, the priggish cousin, was supposed to push Jackie Cooper against a stool, and, as the latter stumbled, was to plant a haymaker on his chin.

Jackie Searle listened attentively as the director explained this charming episode. Then he spoke. "I'm only a little boy", he said, "and it is not for me to say how a script should be written. But I wish to state that if this bit stays in this city goes out".

All the directors and assistant directors and supervisors and script writers and experts in child psychology clustered around the rebel. "But this is only a picture", they explained. "You're just playing a part".

"I know all that very well", answered Jackie. "But after the picture I have to go back to school. And when the kids see me pulling a dirty trick like that, maybe they'll forget it's just a picture and then it will just be too bad".

And so, out went that episode!

SNAPSHOTS

Sir Malcolm Campbell has not yet succeeded in killing himself, although he is making some good tries at it.

What benefit will it be to humanity whether he drives a car three hundred miles or not?

It is understood that there is to be a new city truck and that tenders will be called for the purchase of the same in the near future. That's right. Let everyone have a chance to tender on the truck.

What's become of the old fashioned establishment that used to give away art calendars for souvenirs. Only Fred Mundle's "Pilots' Treasure" left.

The Argentine swimmer who covered 268 miles in the water without a rest is considered the nearest thing yet to a Venetian hitchhiker.

Fifty members of the Buenos Aires police have been arrested for not wearing galoshes. Here is a hint for millions of mothers hoarse from shouting, "Jimmie, don't forget your rubbers".

Two men in Reno, suitors for the same girl, tossed a coin to decide which should have her. That's what they think. Probably she decided the going herself by finding which would toss coins to her most plentifully and most often.

"Man knows less about himself than anything else in the world," says John Dewey, eminent educator. Ho. How much does John think he knows about women?

Pictures from the baseball training camps look pretty inviting. April seems to be almost as close as the pitcher's box.

Lieutenant-Governor Recalls Pleasant Memories of Fredericton

On Saturday morning His Honor the Lieutenant Governor and Mrs. McLaren paid an informal personal call at the old Neville homestead on College Hill. During his University days in the Seventies the Lieutenant Governor then a good looking young college student spent many pleasant days and hours at the Neville farm across the way. His Honor says that one of the most pleasant memories of his student days in Fredericton is the view from the front of the Neville place, which view in summer cannot be surpassed anywhere. Governor and Mrs. McLaren spent half an hour discussing with the members of the present Neville family older generations that are gone. Fred L. Neville and the Misses Neville are living on the old homestead which has been in the possession of the Neville family for over a century. They were very much pleased and honored at the call from the Lieutenant Governor and Mrs. McLaren.

STORY OF DOPING, DUPING CREDITED

Mrs. W. E. Gould Given $25,000 on Divorce "Frame-up"

NEW YORK, N. Y., March 11—The good name of pretty Henna-haired Mrs. Wilma E. Gould last night was vindicated to the tune of $25,000 by a jury that believed her story of being doped and duped in a rendezvous with bogus Prince Mike Romanoff.

But the phoney Russian nobleman—born Harry Gerguson on the East side—doesn't have to kick in with the damages.

They were assessed against Mrs. Gould's brother-in-law, former Congressman Norman J. Gould and two others—a lawyer and a private detective—from which she tried to collect $500,000 for conspiracy to "frame" her for divorce evidence.

The trio accepted that view after three hours of deliberation—but it slashed the sought tariff to one-twentieth.

Testimony "Spicy"

The trial was spiced by admission of Mrs. Gould that she was a "very close friend" of Sir Basil Zaharoff, the mystery man of munitions, in Monte Carlo, defense testimony picturing her as an alumna of Chicago and New Orleans "calls houses" and the sctory of the memorable night in February 1931.

That evening, Mrs. Gould and Prince Mike went to his down town apartment. When detectives broke in, the brunette plaintiff was in Romanoff's mused-up bed scantily clad. The imposter Prince was wearing shorts.

Three days later Edward B. Gould, former head of the Seneca Falls Pump Company, now an incompetent in an upstate sanatorium, sued for divorce.

LITHIUM WAS DISCOVERED IN ONTARIO

Has Medicinal Value In Neutralizing Acidity

GODERICH, Ont., March 11—Lithium has been discovered on the property of Albert Mugford, in Colborne Township, a little over a mile north-east of this town, in the vicinity of the spot where salt wells were operated at Salford, forty to fifty years ago.

The presence of lithium is confirmed by a report on a sample of water, sent from the Mugford well to the Government laboratory in Toronto. The discovery is of unknown chemical value at present, but a more complete report is expected on a second sample forwarded to the laboratory for analysis.

"Lithium is the metallic base of lithia, and has a medicinal value of neutralizing acidity," said Dr. J. B. Whitely, M.O.H., "and as an alkaline it has a secondary commercial value."

N. Y. Police Heads Children Guarded

NEW YORK, March 11—Detectives guarded the modest Brooklyn home of Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine last night. Reports, apparently well authenticated but not confirmed by the Police Department, were that the Commissioner's two daughters had been threatened with kidnapping.

The daughters are Miriam 16, and Ruth 18. Neighbors said that neither has left the home for the last three weeks without being accompanied by two detectives.

The Commissioner has been active recently in the police drive against crime and vice and gambling rackets.

COMMON ASSAULT

Thomas Snodgrass was convicted on two charges of common assault in the police court here this morning and sentenced to fines of $10 with thirty days' jail.

HULL, Quebec, March 10—Two men were injured one seriously and thirty persons, including a number of children, were driven to the street early today when fire broke out in a business block housing a number of stores and apartments.

OUR MAIL BAG

Editor of The Daily Mail:—

I have just received another contribution from Mr. H. J. Mackenzie of Syphers Cove and I believe that it will appeal to some of your readers.

Mr. Mackenzie is evidently a man of the out doors who sees and loves nature; better still nature has impressed pictures on his mind that fill his quiet hours with visions of forest glade, sunlit lakes and the music of birds and bees; he shows he has modesty and humor in the attached postscript to this last offence, as follows:

"I just wrote this to fill in an idle hour before going to bed—I don't know whether I or it desecrates the Sabbath day the more. Judge for yourself." H. J.

THE CAMERA HUNTER

In the fall of the year when the leaves turn red
And the hunters' moon rises overhead
I hie me to my hunting camp
Deep in the woods on a river bank.

There I can sit or lie at ease
Where sunlight filters through the trees,
Breathing in the pure clean air
Scented with perfume rich and rare,
Dispensed by flower, shrub and tree
Kind nature's gift to welcome me.

There I rest my tired mind,
Leaving my cares and the world behind,
To commune with nature and its ways
Thus spending well earned holidays.

When not asleep I spend the day
Watching the squirrels at their play;
I watch the deer come out to drink
And play around the river's brink;
While birds make merry in the trees
Their orchestra the humming bees.

I'm quite acquainted with them all
Coming here from fall to fall,
Some even answer to my call,
Showing no fear of me at all,
For my camera hanging on the wall
Is the only weapon I use at all,
And instead of hides and heads—you see

I take their pictures home with me.

H. J. Mackenzie.

Yours truly,

C. L. SYPHER.

New Bank of Canada Opened

into Bank of Canada notes and how much left on deposit. That will take a while to decide.

One thing the public will soon notice is the calling in of the familiar Dominion $1, $2 and $5 notes and their replacement by the bills, smaller in size, of the Bank of Canada.

The new institution in the control it will exercise is expected to be of great influence in the financial and economic structure of the country. There will neither be savings accounts nor current accounts opened there for the individual citizen and the money that will be pushed through the teller's wicket, for there is only one of them, will be for the most part, in hundreds or thousands of dollars, and the clients will be the banks.

For the Bank of Canada is not "just another bank," to compete with those who, particularly during the hard times of depression, won the admiration of the world because of the stability of their system of banking. Instead of competing with them, the Bank of Canada will co-operate with them, for it will supply the foundation on which credit is based, and by its ability to increase or diminish business needs of the country, will assist in the stabilization of Canadian credit, and thus perform a difficult and important function, which will call for the exercise of sound judgment.
