Labor Camps to be Taken From Militia, Put in Labor Dept

Several Important Public Announcements are Made by Premier King.

Special to Daily Mail
OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 5—The new Parliament will meet in January. The Labor camps will be taken out of military hands and given to the department of labor. The Prime Minister will visit Washington this week. John W. Daffoe, famous editor of the Winnipeg Free Press has been offered the ministry to Washington. He has declined but Mr. King will urge him again to take it. These and other important announcements were made late yesterday afternoon by Premier Mackenzie King. The new Prime Minister thus inaugurated another phase of his "back to prosperity" program. He called a press conference and announced his intention of taking the public into the Government's confidence; so that as progress is made Canada will know what is being done. Mr. King himself announced:

 2. That he would visit Washington.
 3. That he would call on the President.
 4. That John W. Daffoe had been invited to be Minister to Washington.
 5. That Mr. Daffoe had declined.
 6. That he hoped Mr. Daffoe would reconsider.
 7. That Hon. Howard Ferguson would represent Canada at the Armistice Day ceremonies in London.

CRITICISM OF ARTS FACULTY OF M'GILL

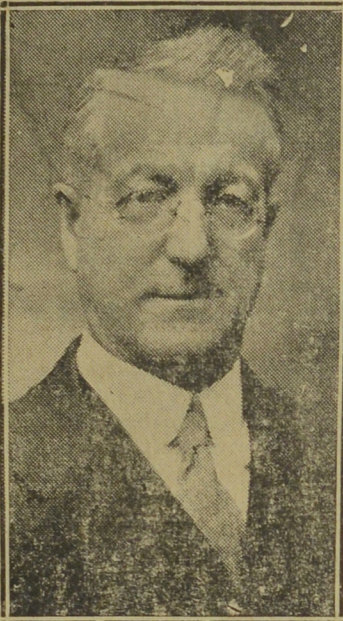

MONTREAL, P. Q., Nov. 5—In one of the frankest editorials of its history, the editors of The McGill Daily, official undergraduate newspaper, yesterday under the heading, "The Arts Faculty: 'A Dwindling Light'", launched a lengthy criticism of a branch of modern education. "The arts faculty", the editorial stated, "should either be abolished or reshaped. It needs rejuvenation, change of outlook, and particularly it needs to shake off its inferiority complex. It should stop mirroring life and, instead, live it." One of the major troubles, the editorials maintains, is that "the productive spirit is negligible in the arts faculty of the majority of our institutes of learning. The vital core is rotting, and in this pioneering the leading men are from outside the campus, individuals mostly from the pauper classes who scorn the lifelessness and back-channels of college."

JEWELS OF SPANISH PRINCESS WERE STOLEN IN TORONTO

TORONTO, Nov. 5—Jewels said to be valued at between $7,000 and $8,000 disappeared yesterday from the hotel suite of the Princess of the Asturias. It was learned last evening. The theft occurred while the heir presumptive to the Spanish throne and his bride, Maria Mercedes, were at a luncheon somewhere north of Toronto. Prince Juan and his Princess came here yesterday from Europe. They were married a month ago, and planned to visit Niagara Falls before leaving for the United States. The Prince was informed of the theft by telephone. "It was just personal jewelry of the Princess," the

Second Hurricane in Florida This Season

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 5—With five reported dead and destruction in its trail, the second hurricane of the season lashed Miami yesterday and swung across into the Gulf of Mexico. Word reached here that more than 200 federal relief workers and residents of the keys had reached the town of Homestead safely, but anxiety was felt for persons believed still on Ragged Key, Virginia Key, Long Key and other small islands southwestward off the mainland.

GIVEN REMAND

Myles King, of this city, appeared before the police magistrate today and pleaded guilty to a charge of siphoning gasoline from a local truck recently. He was remanded until November 12 for sentence.

Cabinet Ministers and Press

Word comes from Ottawa that the new Prime Minister has taken the press into his confidence. The press gallery hailed the innovation as marking the end of the "hush hush" policy of the past five years and of the discourtesy which has too often been meted out by the former Prime Minister. Instead of waiting out in the corridor and having Mr. Bennett rush past, then having another wait until he chose to recognize them, the press men were yesterday called into the Prime Minister's office and they were made very welcome. They were taken into Mr. King's confidence on many matters of public policy. Such matters as were advanced enough to be published were made known. Seldom a week passed in the old days without some press man being accused of misrepresentation, falsehood, and so forth. Such days are passed and gone. Mr. King has made it clear that while announcements of matters of public policy would come from his office, departmental announcements would come from the ministers concerned. This was taken as a definite intimation that one man government had passed and that individual administration with collective responsibility had been restored. This was exemplified in the passing mention of the loan and labor camp questions which he left to be announced by the ministers concerned. Mr. King recognizes the value of the press, and it will no doubt be to his own benefit as well as to the press that it should be so. Mr. Bennett tried to high hat the press. This cannot be done successfully by any public man or by any public body. If it were not for the press the world would not know that these public men or public bodies were alive.

The handing out of the news to the press and through the press to the public is not giving any undue handouts to the press. On the one hand the press may be glad to get the news. On the other hand the press pays out considerable to handle this news by the time that it gets on the street.

When the writer was in Winnipeg some years ago the premier of that day and one of his Cabinet ministers—the then Attorney General—adopted the policy of turning the reporters over to some cheap understrapper who use to try to high hat the news gatherers who in turn looked upon the "secretary" as a joke. The result in the long run was "just too bad" for the politicians and a more satisfactory arrangement for all concerned was adopted. The reporters had applied a boycott, or what is now called "sanctions," and there was no news given to the public at all. Different organizations wanted to know what was doing, and there was nothing doing so far as the press was concerned.

The press is the only medium of any importance yet invented so that the public may get all the news satisfactorily. Former Leader Bennett's attitude towards the gentlemen of the Fourth Estate did not help his cause to any great extent.

MOST SERIOUS EARTHQUAKE AT HELENA

Many Injured—Citizens Fear Further Major Quakes

Scores of citizens of Helena, Montana, are fleeing to mountain summer homes, to homes of friends in nearby cities, and to ranch communities. The refugees have gone by automobile, bus and train, resolved to remain away from this city of 12,000 until the earth seems definitely settled.

Three hundred and seventy-five college students, orphans and inmates of government and private hospitals were sent to widely separated Montana cities to continue school work or to receive physical care.

The after-shocks today—most severe in that category during the prolonged quakes since Oct. 12—struck at 4.23 and 5.42 a.m. Butte, Bozeman, Livingston, Great Falls and Missoula felt the jolts slightly.

Surgical rooms and about 40 rooms for patients were arranged to care for the overflow of relief cases needing medical attention. St. Peter's Hospital, crowded to the walls, was the only institution of its kind deemed safe. Other hospitals were evacuated.

Archbishop Richardson Denounces Political Practices in Dominion.

HALIFAX, Nov. 5—Grave danger to the nationhood of Canada and the solidarity of the British Empire lies in present-day political practices, existing widespread lawlessness, lack of support to England in naval matters, and inadequate defense forces, Archbishop John A. Richardson, of Fredericton, metropolitan of the ecclesiastical provinces of Canada, told a service club here today.

Speaking with "The New Imperialism" as his theme, Archbishop Richardson saw threats to the welfare of Canada as a nation in political partisanship, political, geographical and religious sectionalism, corrupt election practices, indifference of voters, the spoils system, and non-recognition of spiritual values by many politicians.

"Political indifference," he said, "is working untold harm to the Dominion which is bound to reflect badly on the Empire also." Despite the fact many citizens were very jealous of their rights of franchise a large number of individuals failed to vote at all, he declared.

"We still have corrupt political practices. We do not buy votes in the same open, unashamed way we used to, but today we drive whole constituencies this way, which is none the less evil," he said.

"We are not a law-abiding people, that is the last thing in the world," the prelate declared. "We keep laws if they suit us and break them if they don't."

In political sectionalism, Archbishop Richardson saw one of the "gravest threats" to the Dominion's national strength.

YORK COUNTY JAIL HOUSING 44 PRISONERS

With forty-four prisoners almost bulging its noble granite walls the York County jail is enjoying the greatest run of "guests" since its construction many years ago. It is not known whether the sudden influx of "guests" was caused by the change in "management" or not, but at any rate the newly appointed Sheriff C. N. Goodspeed and his able assistant Harry Maston have busily spent the first few days in their new offices trying to provide accommodation for their many charges.

With only seven cells in the main cell block and six smaller cells in the basement it was quite a task to suit all the "guests." But with the tactful hospitality of perfect hosts the Sheriff and his assistant did a fine job in placing them all comfortably.

Sixteen of the prisoners are from the Sunbury county relief project, ten of them coming in last night from the police station where they were crowded out by others.

TWO HUNTERS ARE FINED $50 FOR "JACKING"

Dual McCann and Norman Williams both of Harvey Station, York County, were fined $50 each when they were convicted yesterday on a charge of jacklighting deer by Magistrate James A. Murray. The information, laid by Game Warden Keith Dorcas and R. C. M. P. Constable Eric Randall, charged that the two accused had used a flashlight to hunt deer on the night of October 26.

Col H. H. Ritchie, chief game warden, in an interview with The Daily Mail reporter this morning emphasized the danger in jack-lighting. He pointed out that it was not only contrary to the law, which was originally passed to protect the game, but that it was dangerous to other people who might be travelling in the area where the violation is being committed, particularly the game wardens.

Due to the fact that a hunter does not see what he is shooting at when he practices the violation of jack-lighting, it is extremely dangerous, the chief game warden said. Deer (Continued on Page Four)
