

Four Caraque Men Drown in Bay As Boat Upsets

Were Putting Schooner Up for the Winter When Accident Occurred.

CARAQUET, N.B. Nov. 7—Details of the drowning of four fishermen last evening near Lower Caraque were received here last night.

Two men survived after a dory containing the six capsized a short distance from the fishing village.

The dead: Nazade Lebouthillier, 45; his son, Alphonse, 17; Maxime Paulin, 38, and Martin T. Paulin, 20.

Philius Doucet and Abbe Legere managed to cling to the overturned boat until they were rescued by other fishermen from the Gloucester County village.

An attempt to salvage a large box led to the quadruple tragedy in rough waters ebbing from the Baie de Chaleur to the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

All four bodies were recovered. Dr. F. X. Comeau, coroner, decided an inquest would be unnecessary.

Grimly ironical, the drownings occurred as the fishermen were ending a season's operations, having until that time survived the perils of their hazardous occupation.

The elder Lebouthillier, a well known figure among Gloucester County fishermen, and the five other men were beaching the schooner for the winter when it heeled in a gust of wind, causing the big box, used for storing fish, to slip overboard.

Returning in a single dory from the scene of the winter beaching, the six men tried to salvage the box. When Doucet grabbed it the little boat overturned spilling all the occupants into the cold bay waters.

The four victims, weighted by their clothing soon disappeared in the rising tide. Cries for help, ringing through the darkness, were finally answered from the shore, but when rescuers arrived only Doucet and Legere could be seen. Medical treatment revived the exhausted survivors.

The bodies were found this morning. Captain Lebouthillier's wife returned home only 10 days ago after a period of illness in a Montreal hospital. He also leaves six children, while Maxime Paulin is survived by his wife and seven children. Martin Paulin also was married.

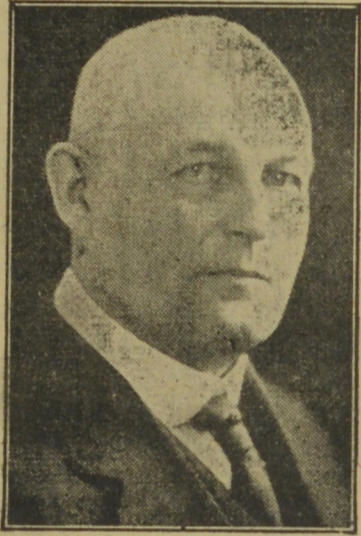

The schooner, owned by W. H. Loggie Ltd., had returned to Caraque Sunday with a load of cod from off Nova Scotia.

A single funeral for the four victims will be held tomorrow, Friday morning from St. Paul's Church, with a mass celebrated by Rev. R. Robichaud.

Buy a Poppy

Poppy Day is nearing. Saturday is the day. The purpose of Poppy Day, the selling of poppies and poppy wreaths, and the laying of the wreaths on war memorials, is two fold, viz., to honor the dead and help the disabled living and the needy dependents of the dead. Surely there could be no objectives in which patriotic people would rather share!

The wreaths and poppies that are offered for sale each Poppy Day are made by disabled war veterans,—veterans who are permanently and seriously disabled. The proceeds of the sale are used to help them and also dependents of comrades who are no more. The disabled take this way of seeking to help themselves financially.

Could any appeal go more to the heart and purse! We were surprised when informed that some people wear the same red poppy year after year.

We respect the thought that goes with bestowing the wreaths on the Cenotaph and the wearing of a poppy in the buttonhole of one's coat. The outward expression is fine and is as it should be, but that in itself is not realizing the objective of the day.

Those who observe the spirit of Poppy Day should see that their poppies are of the 1935 brand.

The call, coupled with the little red flower, is surely such as to merit the investment as well as the display.

A Remembrance Day Poppy can be bought for a few cents. Is that too great a sacrifice to make in memory of the heroic dead or for the crippled and orphaned living! Our support is needed. No amount is too small, none too large. Give what you can afford. On November ninth buy a poppy and on November 9, 10, 11 wear a poppy—a 1935 poppy.

THE POPPY VENDOR SPEAKS

A Poppy, Sir? Just a dime
To help some crippled veteran
Have a better time
In his short span of life that's left!
No? Say now, you look quite young,
You must have been about nineteen
When the big affair had just begun.
You dress quite richly, too—
Are you sure you didn't stay at home
And get the job some other fellow left
To go and risk his flesh and bone
To help this country, ours?
Say! I'm sorry to make you red,
Your face is like these Poppies,
(I must have struck the nail right on the head,
'Cause I can see he really is ashamed)
How many did you say?
Well, I'll be —!
He stuck a ten-spot in my fist,
And turned around and lammed.

REWARDS ARE OFFERED TO CATCH SLAYER

Notebook of Addresses Is Only Clue

TORONTO, Nov. 7—Persistent reports today that police were holding a suspect in connection with the slaying of Ruth Taylor, 20-year-old stenographer, brought only "nothing to say" from police headquarters.

Inspector John Chisholm refused to comment on the reports. Other officials likewise would make no comment.

Toronto police heads said today they were considering a $2,000 reward today for information leading to the capture of the moral degenerate who beat Ruth Taylor, 20-year-old stenographer, to death Monday night and criminally assaulted her before leaving the battered body in the bushes of a ravine in the east end of the city. The Evening Telegram offered $1,000 reward for the apprehension of the assailant of the girl, whose body was found yesterday.

Police department officials said that no definite announcement would be made yet regarding the possibility of the $2,000 reward.

Doris Newman, 19, a domestic at Government House here, was reported to be in Montreal with Kay Miller, a girl friend. She had been missing from her place of employment since last Thursday, and news that she was in Montreal relieved fears that Miss Newman had met a similar fate to that of Miss Taylor.

One angle of the Taylor case was cleared up today when police received a telephone call from a man in Kitchener. Miss Taylor had spoken of a man friend named Bill. Police said he had been eliminated as a possible attacker.

MARITIME POLITICAL UNION IS ADVOCATED

Unfairness By Central Canada Charged

HALIFAX, N. S., Political union of Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island, with Halifax as the capital of the Maritime Provinces, was advocated yesterday by J. Newton Harvey, prominent Vancouver business man, in an address to a service club here.

Regional tariffs, adjustment of subsidies and placing of banking facilities at the disposal of business men requiring them were also suggested to give the country "a wholesome, healthy, national Canadian spirit, and thus make Canada what she is destined to be."

Mr. Harvey, a native of New Brunswick, deplored "discrimination" practiced by Central Canada against both the Maritime Provinces and British Columbia in the past.

Lack of enterprise was not the reason for the Maritimes' failure to keep pace with Central Canada. He had seen the central provinces absorb Maritime banks and industrial enterprises to the detriment of the communities in which they formerly were located.

British Columbia had progressed despite similar obstacles, he said, noting that Vancouver was destined to become one of the greatest cities on the continent.

SUDDEN DEATH BILLY SUNDAY LAST NIGHT

Visiting Brother-in-Law at Time of Passing

CHICAGO, Nov. 7—Rev. William A. (Billy) Sunday, 72, well known evangelist, died suddenly last night of angina pectoris at the home of a brother-in-law here.

Sunday, who came here several days ago from Winona Lake, Md., dined with his wife and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. J. Thompson, his brother-in-law and sister. He went upstairs shortly before 8 p.m., after complaining of illness and died before a physician arrived.

His moans, after he had gone upstairs, attracted members of the household, who summoned medical aid immediately. The noted evangelist had been an invalid for some time. He had suffered a mild attack previously.

Sunday was born in Ames, Ia., Nov. 19, 1863. He was graduated from a high school in Nevada, Ia., studied at Northwestern University in suburban Evanston, Ill., and became a well-known professional baseball player.

Between 1883 and 1890 he played with Chicago, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia in the National League as an outfielder.

Upon his retirement from professional baseball, Sunday became interested in religious work and in 1891 was appointed an assistant secretary of the Y.M.C.A. in Chicago.

Bride, Radiantly Happy, Smiled and Waved Repeatedly.

(LONDON, England, Nov. 7—London took the Duke of Gloucester's lovely Scottish bride to its heart today.

Thousands, assembled before dawn, offered Lady Alice Scott a tumultuous welcome on the drive to Buckingham Palace from her home in Grosvenor Place. Looking radiantly happy she smiled and waved repeatedly. Beside her was her brother, the Duke of Buccleuch, who gave her away.

Following the wedding ceremony the scene before the Palace was reminiscent of war years. The King and Queen, the Duke and his bride, the Princess Royal and other royals appeared on the balcony evoking a hurricane of enthusiasm. The big gates of the palace were fairly stormed, the crowds breaking police lines and even disturbing the Guardsmen and sentinels within the quadrangle.

Another outbreak of cheering occurred when the bride and groom, escorted by household cavalry, drove to St. Pancras Station on the honeymoon journey to Boughton House, Northamptonshire, a seat of the bride's family. Rain had fallen earlier, but the Duke and Duchess drove in an open carriage.

Members of the Royal Family, the bride's family and the bridesmaids showered the couple with rose petals as they drove slowly through the palace forecourt. Princess Elizabeth, both hands filled with rose petals, rushed to the side of the carriage and threw them over her uncle and new aunt.

The King and Queen, the Prince of Wales and the Dukes of York and Kent walked to the grand entrance to see the couple leave. The Princess and the Duke threw rose petals, silver horse-shoes, silver boots and silver true-lovers' knots into the carriage as it passed out of the palace gates.

The immense crowd cheered again and again and cried, "Good luck!"

The 35-year-old Duke and his 33-year-old bride had their first moment to themselves when they stepped into the flower-filled royal coach of the "Silver Jubilee" train which took them to Kettering. From there they continued by automobile to Boughton Hall.

The populace had been robbed of most of the pomp and pageantry, which had been planned for the wedding, owing to the death of the bride's father, the Duke of Buccleuch, on October 19.

B. C. APPLES FROST DAMAGE IS HEAVY

NELSON, B. C., Nov. 7—Frost damage to apples in the Kootenay district will be higher than believed at first, fruit authorities announced yesterday. Early estimates placed the loss at about 10,000 boxes but it was stated that the loss probably would run to 15,000.

Over the entire British Columbia apple area there has been a tremendous loss, it was stated, and authorities believed the Kootenay country was hit harder than other points in relation to its total tonnage.

Potatoes, cabbages and other kinds of vegetables also were damaged.

LIQUOR CONTRACT ACTION DISMISSED

TORONTO, Nov. 7—Action brought by George Margolis against Edward H. Kellner and Arthur Diesbourg to recover $34,000 for alleged breach of contract to buy 200,000 gallons of liquor manufactured by Consolidated Distilleries has been dismissed by Chief Justice H. E. Rose.

His Lordship held that while it was shown that Diesbourg was the principal and Kellner was the agent in the contract, the sale was illegal under the Liquor Control Act. He also held that there was no evidence to show that the plaintiff was acting for a distillery or anyone than himself.

NEW BIRD MAN INVENTION HAS BEEN DEVELOPED AT BANFF

BANFF, Alberta, Nov. 7—Development of a "flying suit" making flight possible without the aid of airplanes is claimed by John Kropocz, 65-year-old inventor.

He has completed an aluminum suit with metal wings and a series of springs, operated on the principle of the gramophone. Kropocz calls his invention the "metal man". The suit is designed for attaching to the shoulders around the waist. The wings are attached to a tube containing the power springs.

Once started, the machine may be pedaled by treading a device for that purpose. A ground level start, however, is not possible. The wearer would have to jump from a height to get it into the air.

A safety coat inflated with hydrogen balloons fastened to the lining, is another feature of the flying suit.

In a test with the "metal man" the model, released from a high window of a Banff hotel, flew a distance of more than two miles.
