WHY NOT FREDERICTON TOO?

An advertisement published in a Saint John paper recently says:—

"The New Brunswick Bureau of Information and Tourist Travel has issued a new touring map for the convenience of intending visitors to the Province. The new map, in addition to detailing the motor routes of the Province of New Brunswick and giving all necessary touring information, also includes the Eastern States and Eastern Canadian Provinces. All main trunk highways are delineated and numbered in red. Thus intending tourists may see just how the important traffic carriers of the east connect with the highway system of New Brunswick."

This is all right. But why do these road maps give all distances as from Saint John. A man in Fredericton who has done much to promote tourist travel in this city and province recently ordered three thousand of these maps for distribution in this city. They all gave the routes as from Saint John. He was so interested that he had a section of the maps reprinted here giving the distances as from Fredericton. If the Saint John people could have a map printed with Fredericton left off the picture altogether they would probably do so. If they are out to promote Saint John exclusively they should pay their own expenses and not have the province as a whole to help them do this.

This matter was discussed thoroughly at the last Board of Trade meeting.

A COMMUNITY ASSET

Professor F. W. Harrison deserves every encouragement in the good work which he is doing to promote musical education in our city. His recital last evening was an excellent one and showed painstaking efforts both on the part of his pupils and himself.

Many good musicians in this city owe their training to Professor Harrison. His work in connection with the United Church choir and also in connection with the city schools has extended over long a period of years and has produced excellent results. He has gone about his work in a quiet way but it is never the less appreciated.

NO FRESH FISH

From time to time housewives are met with the problem of not being able to secure fresh fish on what are popularly known as "fish days". The winter can well understand that during the winter season, there might be a dearth of fresh fish, but why in the summer time should the fish merchants along the Saint John River, and not so far from the sea have to reply to customers "Nothing today but smoked fillet", no fresh fish? There must be always just as good fish in the sea as there always was. Why not have it on hand when wanted.

THE PEOPLE WANT PEACE

A report from France says that Pierre Laval was by no means eager for a Franco-Soviet pact until he discovered that the workmen of Aubervilliers, the Paris suburb of which he has been mayor for some time, were going to defeat him unless the agreement was signed. Their reason for this attitude was not love of Russia, but the fact that Russia was working for peace in Europe and the limitation of armaments. The men of Aubervilliers are not eager to be used as cannon-fodder.

This story may be fanciful, but we are inclined to believe it is the truth. The recent municipal elections in France showed a steady growth of Socialism and Communism, both of which are opposed to the French policies which have been maintained ever since the end of the war. In their economie thought, Socialists and Communists differ considerably; but both parties are for international peace, and believe the way to get it is to hook up with similar parties in other countries all over the world.

The greatest fear of French Socialists and Communists is that the government will fall under the control of superpatriots who will try to establish a Fascist regime like that of Italy and Germany, the two nations of Europe that are regarded as potential war-makers. To a smaller degree, this is also the fear of the Labor party in Great Britain, which sees the Conservatives linked with and protecting the armament sellers who are ready to supply guns and munitions to any government that can afford to pay for them.

The outstanding fact is that the common people of Europe, in every country where they can express themselves, are for peace, and will fight only for self-protection.

They are not at all interested in conquests for which they will have to pay the price.

In Germany and Italy they are fed government propaganda; their own leaders are muzzled. The Russian peasant is also without means of self-expression, but he has a government which realizes that its foremost problem is the organization of its huge empire, and that this can only be accomplished by a long period of peace.

There are two great arguments in favor of continued peace in Europe for some time to come. One is bankruptcy, coupled with the enormous cost of warfare. The other is the fact of revolution—the danger that if war is declared, the factory workers and peasants will refuse to fight against anyone but the government that plans to use them in the front lines.

There have been indications that even in Germany these facts are realized by the Nazi leaders; and when Mussolini breathes threatenings and slaughter, they are directed not against Europe, but Ethiopia, where he hopes to have a cheaper victory.

SNAPSHOTS

Taking the sex by and large, it comes in two types; the womanly woman and the one who looks well in shorts.

Poppa and Momma Dionne are angry at Dr. Dafoe's possessive attitude toward their quints. According to them the genial doctor acts as if he had invented the system.

Some people have rather strange ideas that are not so. A man down at the asylum is afraid to sit down because imagines that one portion of his body is made of glass.

All distances in New Brunswick are apparently taken from Saint John as a starting point. According to the highway maps, Saint John is bounded on the east by the rising sun; on the north by the Aurora Borealis and the west by the setting sun; on the south by the Day of Judgment.

Just like the German motto First I come, Then me and my Province. Then the rest of the world.

Home Economics Manual Training In City Schools

A splendid display of the work of the boys and girls of Grades 6, 7 and 8 of the city schools was made yesterday at the York Street School, and many citizens attended and were interested and enthusiastic over the exhibition. The exhibition of work was held from two to four o'clock, with Roland Murray, principal of the York Street School, in charge of the boys' display, and Miss Jean D. Gillis in charge of the girls' work.

The exhibit of wood by the boys of Grade 8 consisted of hall posts, hall trees, benches, cedar chests and writing desks—all evidences of well-grounded knowledge in the art of woodworking. The Grade 7 boys built plant stands and reading lamps and stand, while the boys of Grade 6 made book shelves and stands, the work shown beautiful displays of sewing being graded to their capabilities.

OUR MAIL BAG

RESTRICTED RIGHTS

The Editor,
"The Daily Mail",
Fredericton, N. B.

Dear Sir:
Several days ago, in the South of the Province, I was informed by two men working on the roads that their boss had forbidden them to attend an Opposition Political meeting. He told them they would be fired the next morning if they were seen at the meeting. The men were indignant, but could do nothing, as they did not want to lose their jobs.

I came upon another case like this on the North Shore, and from what I hear I understand it is in practice in many sections.

Such tactics are likely to do the Government more harm than good, as I do not believe the New Brunswick voter will forgive such unwarranted restrictions of his rights.

Yours truly,

V. S. JOHNSTON.

Premier Refuses To Withdraw Remark

Col. Ralston acted as a Montreal lawyer with a brief, adding he would like to know "what does it represent on the back?"

The words should be taken from the record, Col. Ralston suggested again.

"They are in the record", retorted Mr. Bennett.

J. F. Pouliot (Liberal, Temiscouata) started to introduce another point of order at this juncture, a point he tried seven or eight times. He would get only so far when the Speaker would order him to stop.

"If", Mr. Bennett said, "Col. Ralston from the observations made by me yesterday afternoon believed that I imputed to him financial benefits from the speech he made in this House, I desire to assure him I made no such implication."

This explanation did not satisfy the Liberal financial critic who wanted Mr. Bennett to take back any implication that Col. Ralston acted in his professional capacity as a lawyer.

"The language", said Col. Ralston, "as a professional engagement of some kind, by the acceptance of a brief. If he will withdraw that . . ."

"I cannot do that nor do I propose to do it", retorted Mr. Bennett, "for the simple and obvious reason that had he not been a solicitor he would not have been entrusted with the defence."

Mr. Pouliot made another attempt to state his particular point of order but again lost out to the Speaker.

Later Mr. Bennett said: "I was referring to the fact that an eminent counsel, practising in the City of Montreal was making a defence which was the defence of the particulars of transactions that were not known to him and could only be known from one source."

"That", shot back Col. Ralston "is adding insult to injury. I spoke in this House not as a member of the bar but as a member of this House without any thought or intention or idea or motive from a brief or the acceptance of a brief or from any professional qualifications or special interests."

IS BETTER

Friends will be pleased to learn that John King, one of the twin sons of Mr. and Mrs. J. K. King, is showing improvement today at his home on University Avenue. The boy had suffered a slight relapse after an illness with pneumonia. Barry is the other son's name.

In the girls' work the citizens were done by the girls of Grades 6, 7 and 8. Among the exhibits were uniforms, nighties and pajamas and dresses of various styles, including jacket and cape dresses. All were executed tastefully and were testimony to excellent instruction. The general comment from those who attended were highly complimentary and very favorable. The results in cooking were equally satisfactory.

There are about 220 boys and about the same number of girls receiving instruction in manual training and home economics in the city schools at the present time.
