The Far Flung Empire Honors Jubilee Of King George V

Empire United in Mem- orable Demonstration; All the World Pays Tribute To Our King.

The Canadian Press Association has a very good account of the King's Jubilee Celebration, which was celebrated in every corner of the world where Britons reside.

Wearied and choked with emotion, the Monarch addressed his Empire last night over the wireless. He said:

"Words cannot express my thoughts and feelings. I can only say to you, my very dear people, that the Queen and I thank you from the depths of our hearts for all the loyalty and, may I say, the love with which this day and always you have surrounded us."

Canada's official representative in London was Prime Minister R. B. Bennett, but millions of Canadians at home took part in ceremonies of thanksgiving. The central celebration before the Peace Tower in Ottawa was broadcast throughout the Dominion.

The Governor-General, the Earl of Bessborough, Sir George Perley, acting government leader, and Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader, took leading parts in the national ceremony. And this was only one of hundreds of similar—though smaller—marks of affection towards the King in Canada.

"God Save the King" was the world's hymn yesterday, yet in front of Buckingham Palace His Majesty was obviously pleased and moved when a massed crowd sang to him. "He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

Beacons Flame

Last night, at Winnipeg, Lord Baden-Powell, Chief Scout, lighted a stack of wood and paper to salute Their Majesties. Thousands of similar beacons flamed across Canada and in every other Empire territory where Boy Scouts and Girl Guides are organized.

Britain itself was joyous from Land's End to John O'Groats, while the great dominions, India and the rest of the Empire all observed the momentous day with a lone exception—the Irish Free State.

At noon, British time, shortly after Their Majesties had arrived at St. Paul's for the thanksgiving service, salutes of 21 guns boomed forth in the United Kingdom, rolling and reverberating over the countryside. Church bells rang out to start the day. Parades, speech-making and parties for children were many. A number of resorts turned back the clock with ox-roasts.

Not only in the Empire but in every country or region where there is a British community or outpost the anniversary was celebrated and ships of the navy on the high seas marked the occasion in striking evidence of the strength of the tie that binds the British Commonwealth—the Crown.

Day To Be Remembered

LONDON, May 6—It was a day to be remembered—this Silver Jubilee of Their Majesties' accession to the Throne.

From the Orkneys to the Channel Islands, throughout the length and breadth of England, Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland, the day was one of true thankfulness and rejoicing.

The great service in St. Paul's Cathedral, and humble offerings in many a village church, were akin in sincerity of feeling. And King's weather reigned over all the British Isles.

From all quarters tonight comes a story of whole-hearted enthusiasm at every celebration great and small. From Paris are accounts of vast crowds assembled on the boulevards to listen to the London commemoration.

Tonight a touch from the King in Buckingham Palace lit a beacon fire

Celebration Is Over

The tumult and the shouting dies.
The Captains and the Kings depart.

It is all over. The Provincial celebration held in Fredericton yesterday was one of the most successful held in its history. Every detail of the programme was a success and the committees which had charge of the celebration, with Alderman Forbes as chairman, and all his assistants worked hard and success crowned their efforts. Chairman Alderman Mundle and his assistants on the float committee succeeded in getting together the nicest collection of floats ever seen in Fredericton. The floats were many, pretty and varied and stretched over a mile in length as they passed through the streets. The proceedings at the Parliament Buildings were both pretty, patriotic and dignified and the speeches of the different public men in church and state were impressive, eloquent and devoid of any element that would make one tired.

The medals, about which there is considerable discussion, were presented to the great, the near great, and to the would-be great. There were many who got medals who certainly deserved them; others received them for no apparent reason and others were left off the list whom the general public would like to have seen so honored. But this is generally the way things are picked out. The Daily Mail would have liked to have seen ladies like Mrs. John Black and others who started the first chapter of the I. O. D. E. in Canada included in the list of awards. It would have been a nice gesture to have placed on the honor list in this thirty-fifth anniversary year of the founding of the Order in Canada all the ladies residing in Fredericton who were on the charter membership. They deserve this honor—the regent, the former secretary, and others. Mrs. W. F. Todd, wife of the former lieutenant-governor, should have been remembered. In view of the exemplary place between Canada and the United States it would have been nice to have included the American consul at this point in the awards. It is understood that the names came from Ottawa. The general opinion about the city expressed by prominent citizens is that a poor job was made of the medal selection awards. His Honour The Lieutenant-Governor pinned on the medals in his usual dignified manner.

His Honour's state dinner in the evening was a decided success. The closing features of the day were the fireworks on the river bank and the ball at the Parliament Buildings in the evening, of which Bryce M. Love was chairman of an efficient and hard working committee, which held one of the prettiest functions of its kind ever seen in Fredericton. This committee had no snap job. There was a wealth of detail to attend to and the committee put it through without a hitch.

Our merchants all did their part in decorating their various establishments and the majority of private residences were tastefully decorated with flags and bunting. Fredericton certainly had on its holiday dress and looked at her best. And the rain kept off, as The Daily Mail stated that it would do.

in Hyde Park and almost every great hill in this Kingdom responded with a similar fiery salutation.

Not even at the Coronation have the London streets held such a press of loyal beholders. It was significant indeed to see how soon the processionary route emptied after Their Majesties returned to the Palace from the Cathedral. The multitude was just too exhausted to remain longer much as there was still to see.

Out Again at Nightfall

But they were out in their thousands again after nightfall when the Palace and other great buildings were spectacles under flood lights. Happily the day passed without serious mishap, practically all casualties here arising through spectators being overcome by the torrid heat.

Half past nine—and over Fleet Street and Ludgate Hill hangs that curious, tense half-silence always encountered before a Royal progress. Huge barricades are thrown across the side streets, but a policeman at a wicket lets Cathedral ticket-holders through, volunteering the advice they had better go up Ludgate Hill between the troops lining the Causeway.

Ambulances on Duty

Even this early the heat threatens to become overpowering, but ambulance workers are at every corner.

Arrived before the great western facade of St. Paul's one pauses to observe the Yeomen of the Guard in their Tudor dress stationed at intervals on each side of the awning spread from the foot of the broad sweep of steps to the Cathedral doors. It was at the foot of these steps that Queen Victoria, seated in a landau on just such a scorching day in June, 1897, returned thanks in the presence of martial strength of the whole Empire at her Diamond Jubilee.

Not a few who remember the great spectacle of 38 years back have wished it could have been repeated today. But the wide sweep before St. Paul's is almost empty, save for Lord Trenchard, commissioner of police, and the city marshal, both on horseback, and in full dress uniforms and unlike that of a field marshal.

Passing through the north door one reaches the great stand built for the accommodation of the world's press, from which is obtained a capital view of everything under the dome. The imposing faldstools for the King and Queen are immediately before the chancel gates. Behind them, and likewise facing towards the high altar, are regimental crimson chairs, some eight deep, for the remainder of the Royal Family. All the other seats face north and south, that is, the remainder of the great congregation is disposed flankwise on each side of the Royalities. This offers everybody the best opportunity of beholding the procession.

GOVERNOR'S STATE DINNER WAS A PLEASANT AFFAIR

About 75 Gentlemen Enjoyed the Hospitality of His Honour at Beaverbrook Building.

The State Dinner given by His Honour the Lieutenant Governor at Lady Beaverbrook building last evening was one of the nicest functions of its kind as well as the most dignified held in this city in recent years. His Honor presided at the dinner and had on his right His Grace Archbishop Richardson and Premier Tilley. On his left were Chief Justice J. B. M. Baxter and Chief Justice J. H. Barry. Members of the provincial Cabinet held adjoining seats at the head tables. About seventy-five guests sat down to the dinner. The only toast was that to His Majesty The King. This was proposed by His Honor the Lieutenant Governor.

Speeches were made by Hon. L. P. D. Tilley, premier of the Province, and by Hon. A. A. Dysart, leader of the Opposition. Both speeches were eloquent and in accordance with the occasion.

During the dinner George Johnston sang two patriotic selections in his usual delightful manner.

The catering for the dinner was under the direction of Miss M. Green, Matron of the Lady Beaverbrook building. A bevy of pretty girls acted as waitresses. The dining hall at this building is an ideal place for a dinner.

Previous to the dinner the invited guests were received by His Honor the Lieutenant Governor.

KILLED BY A BLOW ON HEAD

NEWCASTLE, Northumberland Co., May 7—A sad accident in which Elou Doucet, 24, lost his life occurred yesterday morning about two miles above Barnaby River. Doucet and a number of other men were working on the log drive for Thomas Gill, Barnaby River and in some unknown manner the logs which were piled on the bank started rolling and they knocked Doucet down. He was severely cut at the back of the head and the men rushed him to Barnaby River where he died an hour after the accident. His body was brought to Newcastle by Mr. Gill and permission was given for burial. Doucet lived at East Collette, near Rogersville. His mother and father are both dead but he is survived by several brothers and sisters. No inquest will be held.

Science has achieved a drug which overcomes the effects of drunkenness with astonishing celerity—but it is likely to kill whoever takes it. Some drinkers may hold that it is better to live with a headache than to die sober without one.

Convention for York Sunbury Saturday 18

EMPIRE PREMIERS GUESTS AT DINNER

Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald Presides at London Gathering

LONDON, May 7—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald presided over a Silver Jubilee dinner tonight in honor of the Empire prime ministers. Prime Minister R. B. Bennett was accompanied by Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Canadian high commissioner.

Besides the visiting prime ministers there were Indian maharajahs, representatives in London of the dominions and colonies, and members of the cabinet, wives accompanying their husbands.

Earlier, Prime Minister MacDonald in a broadcast speech to the Empire offered the King, on behalf of the people of Great Britain, loyal heritage and heartfelt congratulations.

"His advisors have come and gone but for him there have been no respite," he said. "The days have mounted into months and the months into years, and he has had to endure—winning, however, the devotion of all called to understand and serve him."

"We thank him tonight alike for his actions and his example. We desire also to pay homage to her whose counsel and comfort has helped and cheered him through all the years he has reigned."

N. B. WOODS ARE BECOMING DRY, FIRES OUTBREAK

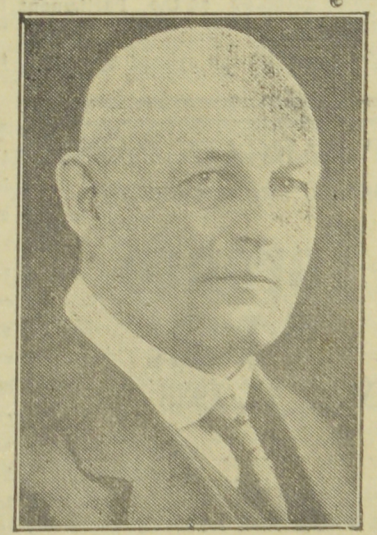

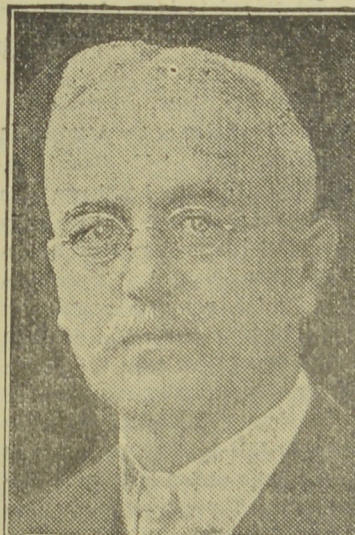

Six forest fires broke out in the province over the holiday, it was reported by the Chief Forester, G. L. Miller here this morning. The fires are the direct result of increasing dry condition in the woods. None were very serious in extent and most of them were controlled last night.

One fire broke out at Cain's River near a sporting camp at Hopewell Lodge, in Northumberland County.

Another occurred at Canaan Forks on the Canaan river, in Queens County. A third occurred at McDougall Lake in Charlotte County, and two small fires damaged some barren land at Oak Bay, in Charlotte County. The last fire occurred at Blissville Road near Geary and was started by a cigarette.

G. L. Miller reported today that the lookouts in the various zones were on full duty now with wardens and rangers also on the lookout for further outbreaks.

Federal and Provincial Candidates Will Be Nominated on That Day—Prospective Can- didates Mentioned.

The Federal and Provincial convention of the York-Sunbury Conservative Association will be held in this city on Saturday the Eighteenth instant in the afternoon. It is certain that the Convention will nominate Hon. R. B. Hanson, K.C., M.P., Minister of Trade and Commerce in the Federal Cabinet for the seat at Ottawa.

The nominations for the four local seats will take place at the same time. It is generally understood that Dr. B. H. Dougan, M. P., of Harvey Station and Dr. M. L. Jewett, M.P.P., of Milville, the present sitting members will be the candidates for the rural seats. These gentlemen have not as far as is known expressed a willingness to retire and they have given good service to the county. It is probable that the nomination for the two other seats will be offered to Fredericton men although that will be decided by the convention, when the meeting takes place. So far as one Fredericton seat goes there seems to be a strong desire amongst local Conservatives to have Alderman Hedley Forbes throw his hat into the ring as a Conservative candidate for the Legislature. He is a good business man, a returned soldier with a good war record, and is giving excellent service at the City Council Board. So far as The Daily Mail reporter can learn he is one of the favorites. As chairman of the Jubilee celebration he had a big job in his hands and demonstrated that he could put it over in good shape.

There will be something doing in political circles within the next few days. It is probable that the dissolution of the Legislature will be announced within the next few days.

There is to be a meeting of Executive Council in this city within a week when it is very likely that matters connected with the forth coming elections will take place.

Governor MacLaren Delivered Address in Jubilee Hook-up

The following is the radio broadcast delivered by His Honor Dr. Murray MacLaren, lieutenant-governor of New Brunswick, in the address being broadcast by the Canadian Radio Commission in connection with the linking of the Dominion with London:

The ancient Maritime Province of New Brunswick rejoices to add her voice to the tribute that sounds across the world. She is proud to affirm her old allegiance and her steadfast devotion to the British Crown. Her people tender their most respectful and heartfelt congratulations to their Majesties King George and Queen Mary, on this happiest of anniversaries.

Loyalty is a word that rings high and clear in all the history of this province by the sea.

In joyfulness and thankfulness for all the privileges enjoyed under their Majesties wise and kindly rule, both races English and French speaking commingle their voices on this glad and glorious day.

From all His Majesty's subjects of New Brunswick there goes up a prayer of gratitude for the blessings enjoyed during His Reign. They express the deepest affection for the persons of our Royal Sovereigns and their great admiration for their services to the Empire. Their most fervent wish is that the King and Queen may be spared long to rule over us.
