Canada will Trade With Every Country On Right Conditions

Soviet System of Government Never Was Cause For Embargo

Euler Says Results Coming

Lifting of the Embargo is Still Under Consideration

OTTAWA, June 9—Trade Minister Euler told the House of Commons last night that the Canadian Government is considering removing the trade embargo on Soviet Russia. Canada embargoed Russian products in 1933, the edict applying to most Soviet goods including coal. Mr. Heaps asked when it would be lifted. If Canada ceased trading with Russia merely because it did not agree politically with the Soviet, it should be consistent and stop trading with Germany, Italy and Japan. The system of government was not the reason for continuing the Russian embargo, Mr. Euler said. "It never was," interjected Conservative Leader Bennett.

"I am speaking for the present government," replied the minister. He said Canada would like to trade with every country if conditions were right and proper. The lifting of the embargo was still under consideration, Mr. Euler said. There were no particular difficulties in sight and he advised Mr. Heaps to "rest your soul in patience for a little while" and watch results.

CHINESE GIRL TRIES RUSE TO ESCAPE WEDDING

PEIPING, June 9—Modern Chinese girls have lip service to ancient custom which dictates that parents select their husbands unseen by them. However, sometimes they act as did Miss Tseng I-ching, 17. The father negotiated a match a few days before the scheduled wedding the girl secured money to purchase a trousseau. With it she left aboard a river steamer and disappeared. A note in her baggage explained she had jumped overboard. A few days later she was located and confessed to her ruse.

NATIONAL HEALTH MOST IMPORTANT ON GOV'T AGENDA

Citizens Must Become Nationally Health Minded

HALIFAX, June 9—Hon. Dr. W. F. Roberts, minister of health and labor in the New Brunswick government told the 43rd annual convention of the National Council of Women that one death in every three in Canada was post-natal, half the disease was preventable, and two per cent. of the population—some 180,000 persons—was continually ill last night. The first head of the first government department of health in the British Empire said the annual cost of that illness was estimated to be approximately $300,000,000 exclusive of the loss of wages and the effect upon industry. There was no one item in the entire Canadian parliamentary agenda, including the national debt and the railway problem, as important as that of national health, Dr. Roberts believed.

Fredericton--The Beautiful

The residents of Fredericton are so familiar with its beauties as to often be unimpressed with their heritage. No stranger, however, can fail to see its beauty. Anyone who takes a walk from the Queen Hotel down past the Parliament Buildings, the Soldier's Cenotaph, the Cathedral and up Brunswick street, or out Church street, can not fail to be impressed, and to say as strangers are often heard to say, "You have the prettiest city in Canada." In almost any part of Fredericton is a beauty spot. The view from College Hill showing the elm shaded city with its different shades of green, the tranquil river flowing along in front, and the hills back of Devon beyond, cannot be surpassed anywhere in America.

The suburban drives around Fredericton cannot be surpassed anywhere. The banks of the winding Nashwaak where arching trees throw cooling shadows on the road, "where hillside and rivulets dance out of the forest depths to join the murmuring stream," and where scenes of pastoral beauty unfold themselves at every turn to delight the lover of Nature in her tranquil moods. The view from the heights of land below the Penniac Bridge is supreme. The river like a narrow belt of silver stretches through green intervals dotted with the white houses of the settlers and flanked by noble hills on either side. Exquisite views will be secured both by driving up the river towards McGinley's Ferry and down the other side, or up to Pokiok, or down to Sheffield and on to Princess Park. Another restful place of interest is down to Oromocto. The trip up the Oromocto by motor boat or canoe is one that will never be forgotten.

These are only a few of the hundred and one attractions and beauty spots in Fredericton and vicinity.

Another Effort to Amend the B. N. A. Act

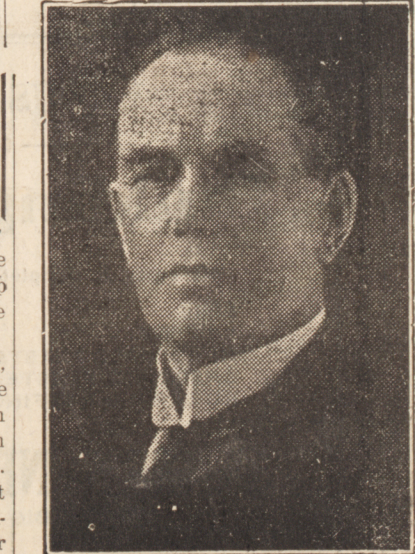

OTTAWA, June 9—Fresh efforts will be made in the Senate to obtain approval of the joint address to Westminster seeking certain amendments to the British North America Act, Hon. Raoul Dandurand, government leader in the Red Chamber, gave notice last night of an amendment that he believed would meet the objection raised against that section of the address which proposes to legalize impositions of indirect taxation by the provinces.

His amendment, Senator Dandurand said, would stipulate regarding the powers of indirect taxation, proposed for the provinces, that such taxation, "must not favor or discriminate against the sales of any goods or articles the growth, product of manufacture of any province of any country."

This the veteran government leader thought, would meet the contention raised by Conservative senators and supported by some of the Liberals, that enactment of the proposed amendments would tend to set up tariff walls about each of the nine provinces.

If a man be endued with a generous mind, that is the best kind of nobility.

42 KILLED AS GRANDSTANDS COLLAPSE

King Carol and Prince Michael Among First to Render Aid

BUCHARIST, Rumania, June 9—King Carol of Rumania and his 14-year-old son, Crown Prince Michael, rushed to the aid of persons screaming in the wreckage today when two grandstands collapsed at a gigantic Boy Scout rally, hurling thousands to the ground. Cause of accident was not established. Unofficial estimates placed the dead at 42. A censorship was imposed to "prevent panic" and an official statement placed the dead at 14, with 400 injured. This number were in hospitals and at least 100 were regarded at the point of death. About 200 slightly injured were allowed to return to their homes.

Six Under Arrest

Four municipal architects and two construction superintendents were arrested for investigation following charges of negligence in using inferior building materials. Directly opposite the royal box the stands fell with a great roar, breaking up the prayers of the priests, those words were being carried to the multitudes by loud-speakers. Cries of the injured drowned out their voices. Carol, in the white summer uniform of a Rumanian general sprang from the reviewing platform and was among the first to arrive at the scene of the disaster, followed by Michael in a Scout uniform. The King helped to raise the first pieces of splintered planking covering the victims.

NOTED MINING ENGINEER DIES AT AGE OF 81

Had Charge of Cecil Rhodes Mining Interests in South Africa

A despatch from Gloucester, Mass., announced the death of John Hayes Hammond at his home at Fresh Water Cove. He had reached the advanced age of eighty-one years and had not enjoyed good health for some time. Mr. Hammond was beyond a doubt the world's most famous mining engineer. Many years ago his skill in his profession attracted the attention of the late Cecil Rhodes and a strong friendship grew up between them. In the early nineties Mr. Hammond was engaged to take charge of Mr. Rhodes' extensive mining interests in South Africa at a salary of $75,000 a year. While engaged in this work he participated in the ill advised raid into the Transvaal, led by Dr. Jameson, which had a lot to do with precipitating the Boer War. He was arrested, along with a number of the leaders, was fined $200,000 and narrowly escaped the death penalty. Mr. Hammond shared with Cecil Rhodes much of the credit for the development of the rich diamond and gold mines of South Africa. He had been living in retirement for a number of years.

The setup of the Canadian Cottons was explained yesterday before the Turgeon Royal Commission in Montreal. Seven mills were consolidated into Canadian Cottons, Limited, the Turgeon royal commission probing conditions in Canada's textile industry heard from A. O. Dawson, company president, after concluding the investigation of Dominion Textile Company, Limited. The mills absorbed were three in Cornwall, Ont., and one each in Montreal, Hamilton, Ont., Milltown, N.B., and Marysville, N. B. Mr. Dawson said. Six mills were still in operation with the seventh, the Montreal mill sold to Dominion Textile Company, Limited. Mr. Dawson, a past president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, told about the incorporation of his company in 1910 and about the financial organization of the firm. Canadian Cottons took over the old Canadian Colored Cotton Mills Company, Limited, in 1910, he said. The latter firm was "a not too happy union" of several financially hampered mills incorporated in 1892, he added. Canadian Cottons was incorporated with an authorized capital of $8,000,000, Dr. Dawson testified. At present there was issued $3,661,500 out of $4,500,000 in preferred shares and $2,715,000 out of $3,500,000 in common shares. At the final session of investigation into financial records of Dominion Textile Company, Limited, earlier in the day, Sir Herbert Holt (vice-president and a director of the company, was chief witness, testifying all morning about financial organization of the firm and profits gained by the original incorporators.
