Canada Makes Progress

At a time when so many Governments can report nothing but increasing debt and dwindling coffers, it is cheering to learn that Canada's revenue for the first four months of the fiscal year 1936 showed an increase of some 25 per cent. over that for the same period last year.

During the same period expenditure increased only about 10 per cent. Figures for the first four months of the present fiscal year show a total revenue of about $170,000,000, as compared with nearly $146,000,000 in 1935. The exact increase is given as $22,930,426.

Income tax receipts accounted for a large part of this additional revenue. They totalled $72,129,512 in 1936, as against $58,288,144 last year, but receipts from excise duties, import duties, postoffice business, and other sources also are swelled noticeably.

These figures do not of course, indicate that the depression is over so far as Canada is concerned, but they denote a decided step in the direction of renewed prosperity, and are an indication that business is improving in many directions, and that the pockets of the public are better supplied with funds than they have been for several years past.

On the expenditure side, unemployment relief still remains one of the heaviest burdens, and, as it is, in present conditions, a cumulative one, renewed efforts will have to be made to cope with the problem of employment.

However, the Dominion's financial standing, as outlined in the figures given above, justifies the faith that she will have no undue difficulty in weathering the storm, and shows that she is taking a leading position in emergence from a period of general privation and difficulty.

Disregarding Game Laws

Because, according to the Montreal Gazette, "illegal killing of all types of wild life has been allowed to become an all-too-common practice," the Quebec Department of Game and Fisheries has announced that it plans to place fishing and hunting under control of a special Government bureau. The plan is to give game wardens more authority, and to increase the penalties so that offenders against the game laws may be punished more severely and examples made of them.

The Ottawa Journal, however, claims that the fault lies, not so much with the game laws themselves as with the failure of the courts to uphold the law. "Judges," it says, "have been inclined to sympathize with defendants; at least have shown no enthusiasm for the protection of the fish and game, which could be a continued source of revenue for the people living in the areas."

Wherever the fault lies, whether in the laws or the way they are enforced, there is no doubt that Quebec is not the only Province in which "sportsmen" are able to break laws for the preservation of fish and game, and to assist in the destruction of our rapidly vanishing wild life.

There is a certain type of hunter or fisherman who does not consider he is doing wrong when he violates a law which was made so that fish and game might be preserved for his benefit, or does not care so long as he can get away with it.

This sort of sporting psychology is, of course, altogether wrong. Game laws are passed for a definite reason, and for the advantage of all concerned. Those who offend have a very poor conception of the meaning of sport.

Nazis Choose Wisely

The appointment of Joachim von Ribbentrop as Germany's Ambassador to Great Britain is further evidence of Berlin's wish to keep on the best possible terms with London, and probably is as good a choice as could be made.

In many particulars the Nazi standards of Germany are, and must remain, distasteful to Britain. The regimentation of the populace, the abolition of freedom of speech, and the persecution of German Jews, for instance, do not commend themselves to British ideals.

For this reason men who occupy a more important position than von Ribbentrop in the opinions of his countrymen might find themselves persona non grata in Britain; but, so far as is known, the new Ambassador has taken no prominent part in framing or enforcing Nazi restrictions.

At the same time, he is closely trusted by Hitler, and has, possibly, freer access to the Reich leader than have such men as Goebbels and Goering. Moreover, as a former resident of Ottawa he has had opportunities of examining and appreciating the British attitude on world questions.

It happens at times that an Ambassador chosen by a nation proves unacceptable to the country to which it is proposed to assign him, for the reason that on some previous occasion he has shown undue zeal, while visiting that country, for the interests and advantage of his own Government.

Von Ribbentrop has made official trips to London many times when, as Ambassador-at-Large to Herr Hitler, he has taken charge of vital negotiations with Britain. He was much in evidence during the disputes which followed Germany's re-arming of the Rhineland, and on similar occasions, and there have been no suspicions of his having indulged in secret intrigue while doing so.

On the other hand, he has shown evidence of being able to see both sides of a question and take a moderate attitude thereon. It seems probable that this characteristic did much to prevent an open rupture in Europe on the occasions referred to.

Excessive nationalism is one of the great menaces of the present and the immediate future, and Germany has done well to appoint one of the least fanatical of her public men to the most important post in her diplomatic service.

Cash in the Bank

Farmers in Eastern Canada have now stored in their barns one of the best hay crops they have harvested in several years. The tonnage has been up to average and the quantity, due to the fine weather prevailing during its harvest, is exceptionally good.

In view of the shortage of feed elsewhere on the continent this hay crop is virtually the equivalent of cash in the bank. Those who sell it for cash will receive a good price for it this fall. Those who feed it this coming winter will sell the live stock or dairy products produced from it at good prices.

SNAPSHOTS

So we have now a new acting premier and attorney-general according to the Conservative leader on Saturday. The government in the old days ten years or so ago, used to be run from a certain business office on King Street. Then the old government bought the office building also. It is a great thing to have a reserve staff as our Conservative friends know from experience. It takes all kinds of yarns, however, to make up a political speech.

For Courtesy and Service you have to hand it to the employees of the Capital Transit Company. That's what makes the Company so popular. Dear knows what we would do now without the bus.

A well known Fredericton curstone philosopher, whom everyone knows, says that instead of working, many people stand around and grouch and then blame God and the government. He's about right. We know two or three jobs any young man or woman could have by calling at The Daily Mail. Several young men have turned these jobs down.

The unfortunate part about that geometry paper is that it puts the pupils who wrote it on the hot spot; and the sad thing about it is to find that there are officials in the Educational Department too indifferent to do anything about it.

A young lady in this city lost a document on the street. The document, which was of value to herself only, was returned by today's mail in a plain envelope. The party who found the document was the right sort and did the right thing.

Dr. Dougan says the "Conservatives can bring on any provincial by-election at any time. We would like to get the doctors' prescription with directions how to do it. Eh, Doc!"

If that car driver who was at Princess Park yesterday would hug the side of the road instead of the girl, he would be less liable to accidents.

Egg Laying Contest Concludes 41st Week

The 41st week of the New Brunswick egg laying contest, conducted at the Experimental Station, Fredericton, was concluded on Thursday, August 13, with a production of 1018 eggs and 1120.0 points. This is an average production for the week of 60.5 per cent.

Arthur Pringle, of Stanley, is reported having 44 eggs for the week and 2066.4 points from his White Leghorns; Mrs. Leo Hayes, Devon, has a total of 23 eggs for the week, with 1251.3 points to date.

The Barred Rocks owned by the Experimental Station, Fredericton, led in production for the week with 55 eggs and 64.0 points.

The Barred Rocks owned by Karl W. Smith, Prince William, were in second position for the week with 53 eggs and 60.0 points.

The Barred Rocks owned by N. W. Eveleigh, Sussex, N. B., were in 3rd position for the week with 53 eggs and 59.0 points.

The pen of Barred Rocks owned by Lloyd Wood, Harvey Station, is the leading pen to date with 1,887 eggs and 2,128.0 points.

The pen of Barred Rocks owned by Arthur Graham, Hoyt Station, are in third position to date with 1,967 eggs and 2071.1 points.

Barred Rock hen No. 1, owned by Arthur Graham, Hoyt Station, is the leading hen to date with 228 eggs and 272.2 points.

Barred Rock hen No. 5, owned by Lloyd Wood, Harvey Station, is in second position to date with 229 eggs and 261.3 points.

DAILY FOREIGN NEWS COMMENT

WHAT IS THE REAL REASON FOR ITALO-GERMAN ANXIETY TO INTERVENE IN THE SPANISH WAR?

On July 25th we said in this column that German money had financed the Portuguese Revolution and Italian money the Spanish rebellion. That the object in both cases was to put puppet Fascist governments in power who could be persuaded either by peaceful cession or force to relinquish the valuable Portuguese and Spanish colonies throughout the world to Germany and Italy respectively to be used by the latter nations as a chain of valuable bases in an even more ambitious plan for great colonial empires. That Italy's immediate object was to obtain control of the Straits of Gibraltar. That in some quarters it was considered that Mussolini's dreams included the ultimate union of the Latin nations, i.e., Italy, France, Spain and Portugal into one great Latin empire.

Situation Somewhat Obscure

In 1912, Germany wanted Spanish Morocco so badly that the Agadir incident almost brought on the war which broke out in 1914. Does she want it today? This is difficult to imagine when the German navy is too small to keep the seas. Would Mussolini be satisfied for her to have it? This seems still more unlikely. If Italy has struck such a bargain with Germany it is only because they believe that Gibraltar may soon be in Italian hands.

A More Likely Solution

A more likely solution is that Italy wants Spanish Morocco and Ceuta for herself and has promised Germany her help in realizing her ambitions in other quarters in return for her assistance in the Mediterranean.

Meanwhile German and Italian planes, to the number of 100 are already in Spain and Morocco. Heavy siege howitzers may soon follow, possibly to be installed at Ceuta across the 12 mile strait, and on the Spanish mainland. The question has been asked in the House of Commons whether adequate measures have been taken for the safety of Gibraltar. The answer was "Yes." It is said that Hitler and Mussolini had an agreement for armed intervention in Spain but at the last moment, Hitler backed out. We will try to suggest the reason for his withdrawal tomorrow.

INVESTIGATES WOODS CONDITION

T. A. McAllaney, director of the Forest Products Laboratories at Ottawa, is in the city today. Mr. McAllaney is here to investigate woods conditions and will visit many manufacturing plants in the Maritimes. He will investigate problems peculiar to manufacturing plants, and will co-operate to make these plants more efficient. Today he was in conference with A. A. Colter, of this city, well-known lumber magnate, as well as several other operators in this vicinity.

third position to date with 227 eggs and 257.3 points.

It is estimated that there is an approximate increase of 15 per cent in the number of chickens in the province this year. There is a decided improvement in egg prices over last year but there will probably be an increase in the amount of dressed poultry marketed this fall, as it is estimated that the increase in numbers referred to in New Brunswick applies to the whole of Canada. Poultry breeders in New Brunswick should attend the Fifteenth Annual Field Day, to be held at the Dominion Experimental Station, Fredericton, on Friday, August 21, where the question of British markets for poultry will be discussed, as well as a number of other important subjects relating to the poultry industry.

signified adhesive in principle. Britain's assent depends upon the adhesion of the Portuguese government. Lisbon and Moscow have already replied favorably. The British coalition may therefore be regarded as a direct appeal to Germany and Italy. Both are holding back. "Ethiopia all over again," is the comment one hears.

In both France and Britain Left-wing critics are increasingly bitter. They see Spain overrun with Fascism while great democracies vainly struggle for agreement. They see looming ahead a fight to a finish between the opposing philosophies of dictatorship in a totalitarian state and the French republican defiance of the rights of man.

Fifteen thousand men and women marched in Trafalgar Square yesterday and passed a resolution pledging assistance to the Spanish government and people "in their courageous and resolute struggle." The contingents represented the Labor party, the Communist party, youth leagues, women's co-operative leagues and Socialist leagues.

In the procession were women pushing baby carriages. Some of the men carried children on their shoulders. As they passed Charing Cross station, a number of demonstrators raised a clenched hand in the Communist salute. A shower of coins fell on the platform when an appeal was made for the Spanish relief fund.

LISBON, Portugal, Aug. 17.—Scenes of horror in the corpse-strewn streets of Badajoz were related by telephone to Lisbon today by Madrio Neves, first newspaperman to enter the town following its capture by Spanish rebels.

Madrio Neves, correspondent of the Diario Lisbona Caia, said that the part of the Portuguese frontier city not completely destroyed was in complete disorder, with heaps of corpses along street barricades.

These, he said, were evidence of hundreds of executions carried out by the rebels.

Women and children, dressed in black, walked pitifully about, seeking their husbands and fathers.

A rebel captain, describing the 48-hour battle which preceded seizure of the city, said the government forces fought savagely until the rebels made an overwhelming bayonet charge in which they lost between 80 and 150 men.

The Diario Noticias said a strong rebel column from Seville, with 15 anti-aircraft guns, was marching to reinforce the Badajoz insurgents, who were building strong fortifications.

Colonel Juan Yague, rebel commander at Badajoz, asked Portuguese legionnaires to enlist companies to fight with him.

The Diario Noticias correspondent also said 40 Communists had barricaded themselves in a church at Al-mendra-lejo, 28 miles southeast of Badajoz, and still were holding out against the rebels.

A government column under Colonel Carbon was reported to have arrived at Merida, intending to push on to attack the rebels at Badajoz. A column of Moorish rebels started by forced march to intercept them.

On Slight Grounds

PORT BOU, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Aug. 17.—Uncensored advices from Madrid made it plain today that the slightest suspicion of Fascist leanings is a death warrant in those parts of Spain held by the government.

Authenticated reports reaching the capital state there are nightly executions throughout the country of scores of persons found guilty before militia "courts" of holding sympathies with the "Spanish phalanx," the Fascist organization founded by Jose Antonio Primo de Rivera, son of the late dictator.

Colonel Yague declared he was in a great hurry to march to Madrid and hoped to arrive soon, "because the moods and the (rebel) Legion walk fast."
