Mail-Order Brides

Willing, But Think
$3,500 Too High

KENTVILLE, Nov. 13.—If Max Atwell's search for a "mail-order" bride is going to bring results he will have to lower his price.

Two weeks ago he advertised himself for sale to any woman who would take $3,500 to the altar with him, he wanted the money to pay off the mortgage on his farm. Since then he has had many "takers," but most of them have found the price too high.

There have been letters from three Maritime provinces and from Quebec.

"Some of these were very nice—Others were insulting," the 35-year-old Kings county farmer said, "some have tendered advice, others were love letters and still more apparently were written in a joking mood."

Most of the letters were from girls ranging from 17 to 25, and only one came from a woman of more than 30. A few applicants said they had "some money," but not the stipulated $3,500, and asked if he would be willing to reduce the amount. One went so far as to make a definite cash offer of several hundred dollars.

A young girl assured Max, "We can make a go at it," while another said she had $3,500, and was willing to invest it in "a good man and a good home," but wanted further particulars.

All the writers wanted to see the farmer and talk over the proposition.

Interest to Women

YOUR FRIENDS WILL MAKE UP A "MOVING CREW"

(By Cynthia Proctor)

Have you ever visited in a home and just yearned to re-arrange the furniture? Not that it's any of your business or anything like that—but just that feeling that you'd like to change the order of things! A moving day party relieves you of all your inhibitions! This type of affair is best planned by a young couple or those who have just moved into a new home. Issue a "moving-man's union" card to each arriving guest. Make up a "crew" of two or four for each "moving van" and either allow each crew to re-arrange the furniture in one room or simply make suggestions. For instance, your "A" crew suggests that the sofa be placed in front of the fireplace instead of against the opposite wall. The others present "vote" on the suggestions and the majority rules.

Informality is the keynote of this party. The guests may be given red bandannas on arrival or asked to wear their oldest clothes. Refreshments may be served on paper or tin plates and should be of the plain "hungry man" variety. Hams and beans or frankfurters and beans would be grand. Incidentally, this would be the kind of a party to give when you've just moved into a new house and could use a little help in moving furniture around, hanging curtains, laying rugs and getting things in place generally.

Seat seven players around a card table, giving each one a cork to which is attached a string. The player holds on to the string, but the cork is kept in the centre of the table. The dealer holds a lightweight aluminum pan in her hand and in the other hand a pair of dice. She rolls the dice and each time a seven or an eleven turns up the player endeavors to jerk her cork from the centre, but it isn't so easy because the dealer, at the same time, tries to clamp down her aluminum pan.

Chips are used as payment. Each time a cork is caught, the dealer is paid one chip; if the player successfully avoids her, the dealer pays.

TACT REQUIRED TO HANDLE A CHILD WHEN FATIGUED

(By Angelo Patri)

Tact is required in handling children quite as much as when dealing with grown-up people. Much of the trouble that arises between teachers and children, parents and children is caused by lack of tact, or in plainer words, lack of common sense.

If you wanted a grown-up person to do something your way, grant a request or a favor, and you found him irritable and tired, you would do your best to put him in a better mood before making your ideas known.

Children, more especially those in junior high school and high school grades, often get home in the afternoon tired to the point of exhaustion. Yet, as soon as they enter the house, before they have had a chance to hang up their hats, somebody wants them to do something right away.

If the child bursts into loud and angry protests it is not to be wondered at. He has been looking forward to a rest, to a few moments of peace. All day long voices have been prodding him to do this, not to do that, to go here and there and keep on going.

Most children are willing enough to go along with the teachers and parents, but they do not always feel eager and alert, ready to undertake what ever work is presented. They are tired, without apparent cause.

Weather has a lot to do with the attitudes of school children. When snow is threatening or falling, the class is restless, excitable and hard to hold. It is wise to take up no new work, but to have interesting reading, or spelling matches on such days.

Children coming down with illness are irritable. Fatigue is the worst enemy of health. Guard the children against it, deal wisely with them when it threatens, and many of the problems that trouble the home and school will cease from troubling.

POPULARITY HANGS ON ONE'S ABILITY TO MAKE FRIENDS

(By Angelo Patri)

"Is Bobbie going?"
"O, my, yes! We couldn't get along without Bobbie. Sure he is coming."
"H'm. Well, I guess I don't want to go. I'd rather stay home and read a book."

After an hour or so of being alone Hugo asked his mother a queer question. "Why does everybody like Bobby Dale so much? He isn't any smarter than the rest of us, but the way the crowd hangs on to him makes you think he's a human wonder. I can't see it."

For a minute mother pondered the question. The desire to be alone with a book was clear to her now. Briskly she answered, "He is such a friendly, helpful sort. No matter what's on foot he's ready to step along. Any idea that is offered gets a boost from him. He likes people and lets them know it. He'd walk a mile to make a boy or a girl feel that he wanted to be friendly and 'in' with them. He asks for friends and he gets them."

"Yeah. He asks for them. Before

I'd do that I'd go without friends."

"That would be a great mistake, Hugo. This world is a busy place and the people in it are hurried, bothered, lonely. The one thing each of us needs is friendship. You can have just as many friends as anybody if you set about earning them."

"How can I earn any?"

"Well, say that you get busy right now. Take the car and go out to meet the crowd coming home. Take their luggage and give the girls who are most tired, a lift. Say right out that you kept thinking about them and just had to come to see how they were getting on. Go ahead now. Practice that feeling and it will soon be honestly yours. You can't get along without friends, and you have to make them out of your free time, your crowded time, your grudging and cherished interests."

If you would be popular put the other fellow first. Strangely enough that process results in your being first, and worthy of your place.

CHEAP RATES TO PACIFIC COAST ON CANADIAN LINES

MONTREAL, Nov. 14.—With the approach of winter the opportunity is offered to residents of Eastern Canada by the two Canadian railways to travel at low round trip fares to the evergreen playground of the Dominion on Vancouver Island and the Pacific Coast, according to announcement by C. P. Riddell, chairman, Canadian Passenger Association. As in past years the mild climate of British Columbia is attracting an ever-increasing stream of visitors, drawn there by this generous offer.

To meet the demand thus aroused, both railways will place on sale low round-trip tickets from Port Arthur, Armstrong and all stations east thereof in Ontario, and in Quebec and the Maritime Provinces to destinations in British Columbia, Oregon and Washington. These tickets will be on sale up to May 14, with return limit of six months from date of sale.

Stop-over privileges will be allowed at all stations on going or return trips. Various optional routes will be in effect for these excursions without additional charge, including passage through United States territory and also optional routes on Canadian lines, or by other various routes, with slight additional charge. Special winter rates will also be available at hotels.

Victoria offers excellent golf over scenically located and spectacular courses. One of the outstanding events of the season is the Empress Winter Golf tournament which takes place from March 1 to 6. The Vancouver Island Spring Festival at Victoria, from April 24 to May 1 attracts visitors from far and near. There is also fishing, tennis and other summer sports while variety is furnished by the excellent opportunities for skiing and tobogganing and other winter sports in the near-by mountains.

LET BOY FIGHT, ADVISES JUDGE

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 14.—"The reason for normal conduct in a child, is the retarding of his urges," said Judge W. S. Mott of the Family and Children's Court of Toronto, when addressing the W. I. members of Western Ontario in conference here.

"The years from 10 to 13 are most impressive years. Don't say anything if the boy gets into scraps—let his pugnacious spirit come out—the more it is expressed the better it becomes, not the worse. Boys who will fight for their friends on the morrow will fight for an ideal."

She—Is that the gas company?
Voice—No, this is the House of Parliament.

"Oh, sorry, but I wasn't far out, was I?"
