

Ald. Maxwell

general trend is towards the direction of Police Commissions and not an antiquated system, he said.

The second point mentioned by the alderman as an objection, which the rest of the council board must have considered, is the objection to one or more individuals on the present Commission. If the objection is to the police magistrate then the council must remember, he said, that the magistrate must have the support of at least one other member of the board before he could do anything. One of the other members, he said, is our own mayor, and the other is another citizen of Fredericton. He said that the police magistrate holds an unenviable position. Administration of Justice appropriations have remained at the approximate figure of $15,000 for the past ten years and the local police force, he thought, was an efficient one.

"I have no brief for the police magistrate nor for myself but I think the police magistrate holds a gratuitous position and fills it well," he said.

Ald. T. Earle Doohan said that the council had moved with due consideration in taking steps to abolish the Commission. He said he had investigated the lower courts and found conditions not satisfactory. There are many things we can eliminate, he said. Ald. Doohan believed that the council owed a duty to the people and there are things that should be done for the bettering of the community.

Ald. Maxwell thought there was no reason to throw all the good things which he said a Police Commission might represent because of certain minor things that have been done. He thought the city council made its big mistake by minor ridicule of the Police Commission at the council meetings. The council should have taken up difficulties with the Commission, he thought. He said that the council laughed at the Commission for a while and then threw them out.

Ald. Dr. B. R. Ross, arising to speak, said that he had voted against the Police Commission. He said that he did not say that Ald. Maxwell "was scared" to attend the last meeting of the council when the resolution to secure legislation to abolish the commission was passed.

Stanley Boy
Rose From Ranks,
Now Military Head

A news despatch today states that Lieut.-Col. E. W. Sansom, D.S.O., who rose from the ranks of a New Brunswick military unit, has been appointed director of military training at national defence headquarters in Ottawa. Lieut.-Col. Sansom is a Stanley, N. B. boy. Col. Sansom, who is now general staff officer, grade 1, at Military District No. 4 headquarters, joined the 71st (York) Regiment, of New Brunswick, in 1906 and served for a year in the ranks. He was appointed a provisional lieutenant the next year and was gazetted in 1909. In 1914 he went overseas with the First Canadian Contingent in the 12th Battalion, which comprised New Brunswick and Quebec units.

In France he was associated with the Canadian Machine Gun Corps and was decorated with the Distinguished Service Order for meritorious services. His first command was the 1st Battalion, Canadian Machine Gun Corps, which he brought back to Canada after the armistice. He was demobilized but immediately rejoined the 7th Canadian Machine Gun Corps Brigade, and later joined the permanent forces of the Dominion.

In January of 1926, he took over the G. S. O. post with M. D. 6 at Halifax. He was later transferred to national defence headquarters.

tion to secure legislation to abolish the commission was passed.

Ald. Ross, in answering Ald. Maxwell, suggested that it was possible that Ontario was wrong in its idea of Police Commissions. "Isn't it possible that once in a while we are right," he declared. He pointed out that Ontario has defaulted in its obligations. "We have as much chance of being right as they have." Respecting favoritism, Ald. Ross said, "I hope I'm not small enough to hold favoritism in any way." He said he didn't know where there would be more kicks forthcoming than in the collection of taxes. He said that no one has ever been fired from the city unless they died of old age.

Ald. Maxwell declared he felt that no one on the council had said he was afraid to attend the meeting when the resolution was passed.

Ald. Maxwell said that the council had taken steps to abolish the Commission but had suggested nothing in its place. He wished to know if the alternative to a Police Commission was to be a committee set up by the city council to look after police affairs.

Ald. Ross said that nothing had been done as to what would be substituted. "I don't think that the council intended to set up a committee from the council to supplant the Police Commission," said Ald. Ross.

Ald. Ross, in speaking about the fact that no actions could be taken against the city corporation under a Police Commission, questioned the justice of this. "Do you think," he asked, "that the citizens should have no redress against the city? Is this fair? I am proud of the courts of this country," said Ald. Ross. He did not wish to see a situation where the city could evade a just and legal action.

Ald. Maxwell said that so far the citizens had not suffered in this regard.

Ald. David McCaughey reviewed briefly the trend of justice in law courts in past years. There is a more lawless crop of people now than there was formerly, he said. More criminally minded people. He said he has protested against the cost of the administration of justice here. It cost less in the old days than in the past 10 years, he said. The fine is more frequent in late years. He didn't think that we are doing the right thing by throwing out the Police Commission. "We'd be doing the mighty wrong thing," said Ald. McCaughey. He thought that it wasn't right to be controlled by factions. He suggested a committee of the council to confer with the Police Commission and act with them.

Ald. Ivan McKnight, who was in favor of the abolition of the Commission said he didn't believe the Police Magistrate should be a member of the Commission. He believed he should be paid a straight salary. Many solid citizens, he said, have said the same thing.

Ald. Maxwell said that he thought some legal man should be at the head of the Commission, but Ald. McKnight couldn't see eye to eye with this idea.

Cathedral Men's Club

The Cathedral Men's Club held their weekly meeting last evening in the Memorial Hall, Church street, with a good attendance. After the usual opening with prayer in unison R. P. Gorham gave another of his short interesting talks on events and personalities connected with the early history of Fredericton. Last evening, Mr. Gorham spoke on the De-Peyster family, briefly tracing the family history from the arrival of the first of the name in New Amsterdam in 1643, down to the arrival of his grandsons with the Loyalists in New Brunswick in 1782. Mr. Gorham then gave detailed information on the part one of these grandsons played in the early development of what is now the city of Fredericton, before he again returned to New York, and carried on with the family traits of leadership and business acumen to found a family name still prominent throughout the United States. Mr. Gorham's address was, as always, closely followed and greatly enjoyed by his hearers. After the thanks of the meeting had been conveyed to the speaker, play was resumed in the cumulative card tournament. The scores for the evening showed Jack Bidlake leading the contract players and Leonard Gregg as high score of the forty-fives section. The usual light refreshments, followed by the National Anthem, ended still another instructive and enjoyable evening for the Cathedral Men's Club.

From four o'clock until after six o'clock hundreds of guests representative of every church and organization in the city and the neighborhood availed themselves of the opportunity of enjoying a cup of tea with the members of St. Andrew's church. The long tables were centred with silver candelabra bearing blue and white tapers. The guests were ushered from the tea-room to the sale downstairs by Mrs. C. A. MacVey, Mrs. J. B. Crocker and Mrs. W. M. Clark. The hall downstairs featured the red and green Christmas decorations, their beauty enhanced by red cyclamen and mums on the window ledges. Two large Christmas trees were erected on the stage and were laden with mystery packages tied in red ribbons and were in charge of Miss Jean Hodge, Miss Jean Anderson, Miss Nellie Winters and Miss Marjorie Macredie. How to Keep Colds

UNDER better CONTROL

Catching Cold? . .
Vicks VapoRub helps
Prevent many Colds

At the first warning nasal irritation, snuffle or sneeze, use Vicks VapoRub—just a few drops up each nostril. VapoRub is especially designed for the nose and upper throat—where most colds start. It stimulates Nature's own functions—in the nose—to help prevent colds, and to throw off head colds in their early stages. Used in time, VapoRub helps avoid many colds.

Follow Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds

A helpful guide to fewer colds and shorter colds. Developed by Vicks Chemists and Medical Staff; tested in extensive clinics by practicing physicians—further proved in everyday home use by millions. The Plan is fully explained in each Vicks package.

Caught a Cold? . .
Vicks VapoRub helps
End a Cold Sooner

If a cold has developed, rub Vicks VapoRub on throat and chest at bedtime. VapoRub acts direct—two ways at once: (1) By stimulation through the skin like a poultice or plaster; (2) By inhalation of its medicated vapors direct to inflamed air-passages. Through the night, this combined vapor-poultice action loosens phlegm, soothes irritation, helps break congestion.
